Jobless Rate at 10-Year High

What's going on? Did an enemy force attempt to make an advance into Greater Victoria today? See page 17 for the answer.

Commons Calls Special Debate

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Seasonally adjusted unemployment last month soared to a 10-year high at 7.1 per cent of the labor force, Statistics Canada reported today.

The figure represents 434,000 persons and is nine per cent higher than a year earlier.

PCs Demand Immediate Action

Immediately following the report a meeting of house leaders from all parties scheduled a special debate tonight, replacing regular Commons business.

The report shows seasonally adjusted unemployment climbing from 6.3 per cent in July to 6.5 per cent in August to 7.1 per cent in September.

Following news of the rise, Opposition Leader Robert Stasfield demanded immediate government action to combat unemployment, including a new budget with income tax cuts.

And New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis called for a massive program of social works such as housing and urban transportation to stop the trend.

Lewis estimated that as much as $1 billion would be needed this winter to create 250,000 to 500,000 jobs.

However, the 434,000 figure was a decline from 455,000 who were unemployed in August. The jobless total for last September was 398,000.

The statistics bureau reported that the number of unemployed last month was 5 per cent of the labor force of 8.62 million. This was down from 5.1 per cent in August, but compared with an unemployment rate of 4.7 per cent in September last year.

The 7.1 per cent figure is one that has been adjusted by statisticians to indicate the over-all trend and is the one most closely watched by economists. The comparable figure for September last year was 6.8 per cent.

The statistics bureau said the underlying trend showed higher unemployment in both the under-25 and the 25-and-over age groups, and higher unemployment was more pronounced in the latter group.

Smaller Reduction Than Usual

Referring to the unadjusted figures, the bureau said the decline in the unemployment rate to 5 per cent from 5.1 in August was "a much smaller reduction than usual for this time of year."

There was an about-average decline in the number of people employed, as summer jobs disappeared, but fewer people left the labor force than usual in September. The August and September figures usually show the dramatic shift in the employment picture as students leave summer jobs and go back to school.

Compared with a year ago, Statistics Canada said, there were 238,000 more workers in the labor force, and 202,000 more workers with jobs. There were 36,000 more workers without jobs.

The statistics bureau reported there was a downward movement in the unemployment figures for those who were without work for more than a month.

Of the 434,000 unemployed estimated in the labor force survey for the week ended Sept. 18, 14,000 were listed as being on temporary layoff, expecting to go back to their old jobs.

The number of jobless who had been seeking work for less than a month in the September tally was 115,000, up significantly from 84,000 in August.

Those without work for one to three months declined in September to 143,000 from 183,000 in August.

Workers who were jobless for six months or longer numbered 98,000 in the September survey, compared with 106,000 at mid-August.

B.C. Jobless On Rise

British Columbia is keeping up with the nation — at least in unemployment — with a seasonally adjusted rate of 7.1 per cent for last month compared with 6.8 per cent in August.

This rise occurred in spite of a 25,000 decrease in the B.C. labor force.

In a breakdown of figures, there were an estimated 31,000 men and 19,000 women unemployed in a provincial labor force of 913,000.

The largest decline in the work force was in the 14 to 19 age group with students returning to school, but a larger number than normal of persons between 20 and 24 remained out looking for jobs.

The goods producing industry experienced the largest reduction in employment, indicating the return of many younger workers to school, and there was a normal seasonal decline in the primary industries such as farming.

Current unsettled conditions, the manpower department said, were reflected in a large decrease in employment in finance, real estate and insurance, as well as retail trade.

The unadjusted figures for B.C. rose to 5.5 per cent in September from 5.4.

Provincial unemployment rates, as a percentage of the labor force in each province, ranged from a low of 2.4 per cent in Prince Edward Island to a high of 9.2 per cent in Newfoundland last month.

Hormone Hobbyist Wins Nobel Medical Prize

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Dr. Earl Sutherland of the United States was awarded the 1971 Nobel Prize in physiology and medicine today for his research in hormones, a project he said had become almost a hobby.

Sutherland won the tax-free $88,000 and the prestige of the Nobel Prize for his "discoveries concerning the mechanism of the action of hormones," the Karolinska Medical Institute announce.

Sutherland, 55, of Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., received the prize for his discovery of the function of cyclic adenylacid or cyclic AMP. This substance signals hormones to go to work.

"I like to call it a second messenger," Sutherland said at his home in Nashville, Tenn., site of Vanderbilt University.

He spoke of his years of research, saying: "In fact, in the beginning, it really was more like a hobby."

Tests have shown that the addition of AMP to cancerous tissues makes the cells either return to normal or die, he said. Much research is needed before any conclusions can be drawn.

Exclaiming "isn't that terrific," when informed he had won, he said he will go to Stockholm in December to receive the prize.

Sutherland has been studying hormones for more than 20 years. Hormones are chemical substances, mainly secreted by the endocrine or ductless glands. They influence the activities of the cells, tissues and organs of the body, controlling such important activities as growth, development, reproduction and metabolism.

This was the sixth year in a row that an American has won or shared the medicine-physiology prize.

Sutherland discovered a previously unknown chemical called cyclic AMP, for cyclic adenylic acid, which proved to be a missing link in a long series of biological control mechanisms.

NEWS BRIEFS

Pirates Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Nelson Briles stopped Baltimore on two hits today as Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Orioles 4-0 and took a one-game lead in the World Series. It was the third straight victory for the Pirates after the Orioles had won the first two games in Baltimore. The Series now switches back to Baltimore for the sixth game Saturday and, if necessary, the seventh game Sunday.

Aerial Fight

DAMASCUS (UPI) — A Syrian military spokesman said a formation of Israeli warplanes crossed over the Syrian border today and were engaged by Syrian fighter planes. The report came as Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was consulting in Damascus with Lt.-Gen. Hafez Tassad, the Syrian president, on the options of war or peace in the Middle East.

Ex-Governor Dies

DACCA (AP) — East Pakistan's former governor, Abdul Monen Khan, died today at Dacca Medical College Hospital after he was shot by gunmen believed to be Bengali guerrillas.

Appeal Goes Door-to-Door

Major effort in Greater Victoria's 1971 United Appeal campaign comes on Saturday, when 3,000 volunteers will carry out an intensive residential canvass.

This year's goal is $758,723, and campaign chairman Eric Charman said today he is hoping "at least" $160,000 of this will be raised in the door-to-door campaign.

On page 11 today, the Times shows a cross-section of the 23 agencies who are supported by the Community Chest.

Their aims and services are varied but they have a common need — financial support from the community at large.

Number of Programs—PM

The Cabinet met this morning for its regular session, and government sources said a number of programs were under consideration.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday Canada was starting to feel the effects of the U.S. 10 per cent surcharge on imports — which affected about $2.5 billion of Canada's annual exports of $11 billion to the United States — But he did not say what action Ottawa would take to lessen the effects.

Trudeau said the government would announce further economic measures "very soon."

Government sources said the plans under consideration by cabinet included a number of spending proposals — such as major expansion of job retraining for persons under 25 years old — but the government was not planning any tax cuts to stimulate the economy.

As he entered the cabinet meeting, Trudeau refused to answer all questions about the unemployment figures, but he was angry over the premature release of the figures in the Montreal Gazette.

"Where the hell did the Gazette get these statistics?" Trudeau said. "They're not released until this morning."

Stanfield said there should be an immediate federal-

Discomfort Index Zooms to 10.6

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's economic discomfort index, an unofficial measure of unemployment and inflation, has shot up to 10.6 because of last month's high underlying rate of joblessness.

The discomfort index should not exceed six if the country were achieving its goals of relatively stable prices and full employment. It was 9.2 last year, and 8.8 during the first half of 1971.

Both Wednesday's report on consumer prices and today's report on last month's employment showed some signs of improvement in September over August statistics.

The September consumer price index fell to 134.7 from 135, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, and unemployment declined in September to 434,000 or five per cent of the labor force from 455,000 or 5.1 per cent of the labor force in August.

However, consumer prices were still running 3.5 per cent ahead of a year earlier, and the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment last month used by the statisticians to show the underlying job trend — rose sharply to 7.1 from 6.5.

The discomfort index, conceived by a United States economic adviser to show the combined effects of inflation and unemployment, ran to 9.2 in both 1969 and 1970, the highest since 1958. But it was cut to 8.8 in the first half of 1971, mainly by a slowing down in the consumer price index brought on by last fall's supermarket price war.

Since mid-year, however, the index has risen rapidly, to 9.9 in August and 10.6 in September. For the third quarter of 1971 it averaged 9.8.

CAMPBELL TO ENTER FREE SCHOOL ROW

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today he likely will speak to Campbell River parents about their high school's accreditation difficulties.

Campbell said he would be speaking as a "professional educator" and not as municipal affairs minister. He is MLA for Comox, a riding which includes Campbell River.

Campbell was a school teacher. He refused to say what position he would take in the dispute, preferring to reserve his views for people in Campbell River.

Campbell River Secondary principal John Young has charged that the provincial government revoked accreditation at his school to stop his criticisms of the government's "anti-children policies."

A school board official in Campbell River has said the dispute is a minor one involving record keeping practices between the school and the provincial government.

Montreal Firemen Walk Off Jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's 2,400 firemen walked off their jobs today, leaving skeleton staffs in about one-quarter of the city's stations to handle emergency calls.

There were no major alarms in the first two hours of the walkout, which began about 11 a.m., but at least one false alarm was reported.

The decision to strike followed a meeting attended by about 1,000 off-duty firemen to consider a wage offer from mediator Jean Cournoyer, Quebec labor minister.

The men, disgruntled by the city's refusal to offer wage parity with Toronto firemen, left the meeting about 11 a.m. and began spreading the word that on-duty firefighters should attend a study session.

Raiders Hit Cuban Town

MIAMI (AP) — A commando group in two boats attacked a small fishing village on Cuba's northeast coast Tuesday, killing at least two persons and injuring four, Havana radio said today.

The broadcast monitored in Miami said the night-time attack was carried out "from the north" and blamed it on "the government of the United States and its accomplices."

After the assault by what the radio said were heavy and middle calibre weapons, the two attacking crafts "departed toward the north," the broadcast said.

It described one of the boats as a "mother ship" and the other "a speed launch."

The broadcast indicated villagers and army patrols had fired back, but apparently there was no attempt at a landing.

EDMONTON, CALGARY MAYORS RE-ELECTED

Alberta voters, who recently made a clean sweep at the provincial level, apparently were in a different mood Wednesday at municipal polls.

All but one of the incumbent city mayors who sought re-election were returned to office and only a handful of incumbent aldermen were rejected.

Among the easy winners were Rod Sykes of Calgary and Ivor Dent of Edmonton. See story on Page 30.

Subsidy Makes One Job

A total of 1,243 persons have applied for job opportunity certificates, but only one person has been hired under the government wage subsidy scheme.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today that 743 certificates have been issued since committee staff began processing them two weeks ago. A job opportunity committee official said today that 50 companies have asked for referrals, but there is no way of knowing how many people they will hire until the companies apply for subsidy payments.

Persons who have been on welfare for three months and who have lived in B.C. for one year may apply for the certificates of opportunity. They present these to employers, and if hired must work for eight weeks.

The government pays 50 per cent of the employee's wages during the eight-week period.

Indians Organize Alberta School Boycott

ST. PAUL, Alta. (CP) — Alberta's 43 Indian chiefs will be asked to organize a provincial school boycott to protest federal Indian policies.

Indian parents, students and chiefs attending a two-day meeting Wednesday at Blue Quills school near this northeastern Alberta community said the boycott will be needed if a commitment isn't received from Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien.

About 200 students on Cold Lake and Kehewin reserves have been out of school for more than two weeks in protest and parents on the Saddle Lake reserve plan similar action Friday.

Mr. Chretien has ordered improvements to upgrade living conditions and education at Cold Lake and Kehewin but the Indians say the money will be taken from other Indian projects.

The boycott request will be presented to a three-day meeting of chiefs which starts Monday.

Wednesday's meeting also approved a recommendation to continue the boycott at Cold Lake and Kehewin and to continue "consultation meetings" at the Indian affairs office here. Last week students and their parents marched into the office and brought work to a standstill.

The Indians also will ask that the House of Commons standing committee on Indian affairs launch an investigation into problems on Alberta reserves.

Tom Barnett, New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Comox-Alberni, told the meeting that the present policy of transferring students from reserve schools to the provincial system is contrary to committee recommendations made in June.

"The special study on Indian affairs took over a year and we were never told officially that our recommendations were rejected."

The committee recommended that no transfers be made without approval of Indian parents.

"As a member of that committee I would certainly be willing to meet the request of the people of this district to investigate the situation," said Mr. Barnett.

Campaign Of Hate —Bennett

Premier Bennett today blamed a "campaign of hate against the United States" being conducted by Prime Minister Trudeau and B.C. opposition leader Dave Barrett as the cause of high unemployment in Canada.

"Their attacks on the United States, their campaign of hate against the United States has meant that for the first time in the history of relations between Canada and the United States that Canada has not been exempted from special United States actions," Bennett said.

The premier's statement came after he was asked a question about Malaspina Gas Pipeline Ltd., the company which the government has selected to build a natural gas pipeline to Vancouver Island. (See also Page 3.)

The New Democratic Party has charged that giving the contract to Malaspina will result in contracting out of jobs to Americans.

Bennett said Barrett's and Trudeau's "chickens are coming home to roost now."

"I believe that these hate-the-United States-people, hate-America, have a lot to answer for because they're the main cause of unemployment in this country."

BIGGEST SINGLE, AVOIDABLE KILLER

LONDON (AP) — A British government report published today says smoking is the biggest single, avoidable killer in Britain and accounts "at a conservative estimate" for one of every four deaths among men between the ages of 45 and 64.

The government warning, made in Health Minister Sir George Godber's annual report, was underscored by an independent organization which named tobacco addiction as a bigger menace to life and health than alcohol or cocaine.

"This is still predominantly a smoking community, giving every incentive to children and adolescents to follow the foolish examples of their elders," Godber said.

He said public opinion eventually must force cigarette addicts to indulge their habit only in private or with other consenting adults.

Godber's report said smoking caused one in eight deaths among men between 35 and 44, one in four in the 45-64 age bracket and one in five of those between 65 and 74. The report said these estimates were on the conservative side.

Smoking, he said, showed its effects in lung cancer, bronchitis and coronary heart disease, helping keep the life expectancy of the British male at 69.1 years, one of the lowest of the Western world.

Of the 31 countries and areas listed in the life-expectancy table, England and Wales were 17th, Northern Ireland 20th and Scotland 28th.

Deaths in England totalled 540,196 in 1970, compared with 543,425 in 1969. Cancer deaths rose from 108,290 in 1969 to 109,342.

"We may be accepting as natural a level of incidence of cancer and other diseases which could be reduced for further generations, if not for our own. We must be a society in which it is not the norm to smoke."

In a report, the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children called on the government to spend as much on campaigning against smoking as it did on major weapons of war.

A disagreement over smoking has meanwhile brought disruption behind the chic porticos of Sotheby's, the renowned Bond Street fine arts auctioneer.

Three company directors said they have quit because of the firm's decision to agree to a new brand of cigarette being called Sotheby's Special Reserve.

Greenpeace Salute Costs Crew Cash

JUNEAU, Alaska (Reuter) — The commander of the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Confidence has docked the pay of 23 of his men who signed a letter of protest against a proposed U.S. nuclear test in the Aleutian Islands.

The men also received suspended reductions in rank. One officer who collected signatures for the letter was restricted to quarters for three days and given a letter of reprimand, a coast guard spokesman said Wednesday. He did not name those involved.

The protest against the proposed five-megaton nuclear test at Amchitka cost the antitest coast guardsmen sums ranging from $15 to $50.

The penalties were levies by the captain after a ship's trial —a captain's mast. A coast guard spokesman said that so far none of the men had exercised their right to appeal or requested a formal court martial on the charges.

The Confidence was sent on Sept. 30 to meet the Canadian fishing boat renamed Greenpeace—manned by 12 Canadians who sailed to the Aleutians to protest the proposed nuclear test.

As the coast guard vessel delivered a message of warning from the U.S. customs service to the Canadians, crew members passed over a letter of support for the Greenpeace's mission, signed by 23 coast guardsmen. The letter was later published in an Anchorage newspaper.

November Protests By Anti-War Group

The Victoria Anti-War Committee is preparing to stage protests on Nov. 3 and 6.

The demonstrations, will tie in with a nation-wide protest which was decided on at an anti-war national conference in Toronto last August.

Moratoriums, boycotts of classes and student walks are being planned to protest Canada's support of U.S. military policy.

A major part of these protests will be directed against the proposed nuclear blast on Amchitka Island.

The local committee, which is made up mainly of university and high school students, will seek support of the university's Alma Mater Society and high school students in Greater Victoria.

It will hold its next meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. in the Student Union Building.

provincial meeting to co-ordinate job programs for the coming winter. The federal sales tax on building materials should be eliminated to stimulate the construction industry.

He said there can no longer by any valid excuse for the government to delay taking immediate action to face the winter ahead.

The September unemployment figures were in themselves an indictment of the Trudeau government's "failure" to stimulate the economy effectively.

The government's predictions of improvement were shown to be hopelessly wrong."

Stanfield said the rise in Canadian exports to the U.S. in September rules out any attember unemployment on the Aug. 15 U.S. surtax on imports and other American economic measures.

Informed sources said the federal-provincial meeting on the economy likely will be held earlier than scheduled.

The conference, now scheduled for Ottawa Dec. 6-8, is expected to be held in November though the latest plans are not yet definite.

Final word must still come from one or two provinces on an earlier meeting, sources said.

Regionally, the unadjusted unemployment rate improved in the Atlantic provinces, Ontario, and the Prairies, but worsened in Quebec, rising to 6.8 per cent of the labor force from 6.7 per cent in August, and in British Columbia, rising to 5.5 per cent from 5.4.

The seasonally-adjusted figures, however, showed unemployment in the Atlantic provinces rising dramatically to 10.3 per cent from 9.4 in August and eight per cent last May. Quebec's rate rose to 9.3 per cent from 8.2 in August and 7.7 per cent last May.

The other regions all showed increases in the underlying trend of unemployment, though less dramatically. Ontario was up to 5.6 from five per cent in August, matching last May's figure.

The Prairies reported adjusted figures showing unemployment at 5.2 per cent last month, compared with five per cent in August and 4.4 last May.

Heath Gets Tory Market Blessing

BRIGHTON, England (AP) — Prime Minister Heath won the support of his Conservative party today for the economic strategy at home that could ease Britain's path to the European Common Market.

The party's annual convention gave Heath an overwhelming mandate Wednesday to take Britain into Europe. It approved today the government's handling of key domestic issues that could still stand in the way—inflation and unemployment.

With only two of the 4,000 delegates recorded as dissenting, the convention endorsed the government's package of tax cuts and investment incentives aimed at steadying prices, reducing living costs and creating jobs.

Chancellor of the Exchequer Anthony Barber told the convention that in the last year the Conservatives have cut taxes by £1.4 billion ($3.36 billion), "an amount which has no parallel in our history, twice as much as in any previous year."

He conceded that the cost of living, now rising at 10 per cent a year, and the highest unemployment level in the last 30 years, now are the government's responsibility, although he attributed the causes to the policies of the Labor administration, defeated in 1970. But he stressed he believes the economy is beginning to recover.

He predicted lower taxes and interest rates had set the stage for a fall in unemployment. "Never in any previous year has any British government taken more action with the direct purpose of creating more employment," Barber said.

He also said British industry's voluntary decision to hold price increases to five per cent in the next year would combine with tax cuts to steady prices and reduce inflation.

Precedent Breaking Trip Over

TOKYO (Reuter) — Emperor Hirohito and Empress Nagako returned home today after a seven-nation tour of Europe that broke all precedents for the Japanese imperial family.

To the surprise of many Japanese, the 70-year-old emperor received a cool and sometimes hostile reception in several of the countries he visited, particularly The Netherlands and Britain.

It was the first overseas tour by a reigning Japanese monarch. The European visit is expected to be the forerunner of further overseas imperial journeys with the United States and Southeast Asia already mentioned as the most likely.

Homosexuals Want Break On Taxes

HAMILTON (CP) — Homosexuals want legal marriages for tax reasons and to foil the designs of relatives, George Hyslop, founder of a Toronto homophile organization, said today.

He told the annual meeting of the Canadian Mental Health Association that legal marriage for homosexuals would protect jointly-owned property.

He said he and another man have lived together for 13 years, acquired a considerable amount of mutually-owned property, and are partners in a business.

He said that although each has a will making the other his beneficiary, each would inherit only as a stranger, and would not have the tax benefits enjoyed by a surviving husband or wife.

In addition, Mr. Hyslop said, when one member of a homosexual couple dies, "the family moves in to divide the spoils."

Mr. Hyslop was participating in a discussion on various types of family living.

Civil Righters Refill Army's Irish-Bomb Craters

BELFAST (CP) — Members of a civil rights group said today they have started filling in the huge craters British troops made with explosives Wednesday in minor roads leading to the Irish Republic's border.

The operation, aimed at blocking off about 200 unauthorized roads linking Northern Ireland with the republic, started early Wednesday as troops moved in with explosives and made craters about 10 feet deep.

The army has suspected for a long time that the Irish underground is using the roads to transport large amounts of arms, ammunition and explosives for the outlawed Irish Republican Army.

The army will be out later today to check if any of the holes have been filled in. An officer commented that if they had been, "we will just have to blow them up again."

A man died from gunshot wounds in the Roman Catholic Suffolk district of Belfast early today.

FIND BODY

Ambulancemen found his body about an hour after British soldiers had opened fire at a civilian who threw a nail bomb at a military patrol in the same district.

But an army spokesman said: "It was too dark to see if anyone was hit. There is no official link-up between the two incidents."

The man was the 119th person to die violently in Ulster in the last two years.

Soldiers early today swooped on homes in the Catholic New Lodge and Lower Falls districts and reported seizing detonators and other explosives equipment.

TEEN-AGER WOUNDED

Snipers and soldiers exchanged gunfire in Londonderry and Belfast, a teen-age gunman was wounded by an army bullet, soldiers drove back a Londonderry mob with nausee gas and rubber bullets and saboteurs bombed a British ship in Cork harbor.

The harbor explosion roared out before dawn, damaging the freighter Ben Vooar, loaded with a cargo of salt. No one was injured in the blast.

RANULPH ON ROCKY ROAD HOME

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sir Ranulph Twisleton-Wykeham-Fiennes is facing his toughest voyage — from Vancouver to Britain; he's broke.

The leader of the British team which travelled British Columbia's waterways from the Yukon border to Vancouver said he spent all his money on the expedition.

"So far it has cost me about £6,000 ($15,000) of my own money and we just don't have any left — things look pretty desperate," he said.

His problem developed when six RAF planes that were to be in Vancouver Nov. 22 were ordered instead to Greenwood, N.S. Now he has to get all his equipment to the east coast using one broken-down Land-Rover.

He said he will sell two of the expedition's 15-foot rubber rafts, which he estimates are worth about $1,000, and give lectures to try to raise the rest of the money.

Sir Ranulph plans to stay in Vancouver for two or three more weeks to gather material for a book he plans to write. Arrangements have been made for the return of the expedition's other seven members.

Malaspina Directors Defended

Malaspina Gas Pipeline Ltd. consultant Dan Eckman said Wednesday company directors will not make stock option profits on its proposed pipeline construction project from Williams Lake to Vancouver Island.

Eckman said equity stock will be made available to the public if and when Malaspina becomes a public company.

The company has been chosen by the provincial government to build a $105 million pipeline to bring natural gas to the Island.

Approval from the B.C. Public Utilities Commission must be won before the contract is awarded and Malaspina can go public.

NO RIP-OFF

Eckman said it is "hogwash" to charge that a "rip-off" is involved in the government's intention to allow Malaspina to supply natural gas to Vancouver Island.

The charge was made by Opposition Leader Dave Barrett who said B.C. Hydro apparently is able to build a similar line $60 million cheaper than Malaspina.

Eckman also denied Barrett's suggestion that Malaspina's bid was facilitated because Eckman is a former executive assistant to Premier Bennett.

PROUD OF IT

"I have not received, nor would I expect to receive a helping hand from the premier. Far from being a subject of shame or an attempt to obscure, the fact that I happened to work for the premier is a matter of some pride for me," Eckman said.

Eckman said Hydro probably will distribute the gas once it has reached the Island, adding: "It will set the rate, and it is a matter of public record what profit annually Hydro has from natural gas sales."

Indian Firefighters Claim Discrimination

HOPE (CP) — Indians on welfare were refused jobs fighting forest fires last summer while lumber workers were being conscripted to go on the firelines," Chief Casey Williams of the Lytton band told a protest meeting Wednesday.

Chief Williams said he protested discrimination against Indians, but got no satisfaction.

"A British Columbia forest service official blamed Indians for starting the fires," he said. The meeting was told it was found the fires were caused by sparks from locomotives.

The protest was called by the International Woodworkers of America after members complained of poor working conditions while fighting blazes at Kanaka Bar last August.

Erie Wood, secretary of IWA Local 1-367, said members complained of poor food, lack of supervision, first aid, water supply and inadequate transportation and communication facilities.

"They even conscripted a 61-year-old truck driver in Hope when they could be training these Indians for fire suppression

"We think the forest service is showing rank discrimination against the Indians. If they have to take men off jobs to fight fires, they should not do it by threats or press-gang tactics."

Wood said a transcript of the meeting will be sent to Lands and Forests Minster Ray Williston.

SOME EXPERTS SAY:

Tax Bill 'Not So Bad'

OTTAWA (CP) — The government tax reform bill might not be as bad as it's cracked up to be, a group of experts suggested Wednesday. (See also Page 37).

The 707-page bill, introduced in the Commons last June, now is under clause-by-clause consideration in the House after receiving second-reading approval Tuesday.

Finance Minister E. J. Benson Wednesday proposed 95 amendments to the bill at the same time as the seminar of chartered accountants was indicating at least general approval of the measure.

Don Huggett of Montreal, a partner in McDonald, Currie which was one of the seminar sponsors, declined to say whether the bill was "a superb job or a monstrosity."

But he did describe it as representing perhaps the most pervading change ever introduced in tax law anywhere.

Once the initial shock at the size and complexity of the bill wore off, he said, "You find the bill contains the answers to most problems."

The seminar worked out a series of suggestions for Canadians as a means of coping with the anticipated taxation changes. These included:

—Small businesses probably should raise salaries to avoid higher tax rates for business incomes over $50,000.

—Indiyiduals facing a 55-percent taxation rate should form personal holding companies to receive part of their income, reduce current taxes and spread them over several years. This would have to be done before Jan. 1, the intended date for implementaton of the bill.

—Pending increases in contribution limits to pension and deferred profit-sharing plans and retirement savings plans should be used to the maximum possible.

—Consider deferring exercise of stock options until 1972.

—Give generously to a wife before Jan. 1 and to all others after Jan. 1.

BODY SHOP GOT GO-GO AHEAD

WASHINGTON — Neighborhood Prayer Group and the Gateway Civic Association of northeast Washington took the news in stride when they learned last spring that a body shop was to open in their neighborhood.

After all, reasoned the 180 members of the civic association, the body shop wouldn't be inconsistent with the new service station being built across the street.

"Second thoughts about the decision didn't begin to surface until it became clear that the only bodies in the body shop were warm, feminine and unquestionably topless.

The Body Shop, a topless go-go tavern, is now under seige by an irate group of neighborhood residents, who feel they were led down the garden path by the proprietors of the new enterprise.

Members of the Gateway Civic Association, led by president Benjamin Alexander, claims the proprietors were less than candid about what services they planned to provide at the location.

Alexander's wife Mary, also a member of the civic association, said that the Neighborhood Prayer Group was the first to raise objections to the ABC about the body shop.

"We inititated this complaint because the association's past president was deceived about what was going in there," she said.

The past president since has resigned, and his family has moved from the area, Alexander said.

The proprietor of the body shop, Harold Williams, denied that he had ever implied that the enterprise was to involve automobile repairs and denied ever speaking with officials of the Gateway Association.

"We never spoke with them, and we never deceived anybody," Williams said. "In fact, the only time I saw this guy (the association's past president) was when he used to come in the place (as a customer) after we opened."

The Rubber Money System

A MEASURE OF THE BURDEN of inflation, on the government as well as on the Canadian people, may be seen in the excitement which greeted a very minor reduction in the cost-of-living index. Ottawa announced yesterday that the index declined .3 of a point in September, from August's 135 to 134.7. That was enough to evoke expressions of encouragement in Parliament — at least in the government benches — and headlines in many newspapers. But the index for September was still 4.2 points above that for September a year ago, and only food showed a definite drop.

The hard fact is that the latest index is 34.7 points above the 100 base figure of 1961, which means that we must pay one-third more, on average, for what we buy today compared with prices 10 years ago. And these prices of a decade ago were themselves increases over previous levels. The average index for 1961, for instance, was about 129, compared with 100 in 1949. But comparisons are tricky, for while the 1952 index was 116 compared with the 1949 base, it stood at 185 compared with the earlier 1935-39 base.

As the figure gets too large we establish a new 100 base and start all over again. There are certain adjustments in the list of goods included in the index, in order to take account of changing consumer tastes and needs, but there is no change in the upward march of prices — and the corresponding downward march of the dollar's value.

If the past record is grim, what of the future? Despite many efforts to control the rise of consumer prices there is little prospect at this time of seeing any marked improvement. The alternative would be government control of prices — which means wages and profits as well — and that must be viewed as a measure of desperation. President Nixon's success or failure with his temporary and partial controls will be watched closely in Canada. Prime Minister Trudeau has more than once proposed that compulsory controls should be imposed if the requested voluntary efforts failed — as they did.

The economic world has changed a great deal since the 1949 index was established, still more when compared with the earlier bases. The forces which once governed prices have become much more complicated. The rise of international corporations, of strong bargaining unions, and of a social attitude which encourages a demand for new and better goods regardless of the ability to pay — these factors have contributed to a mounting cost of living which bears unfairly on the population.

Only those whose income increases to match the depreciating dollar can sustain their standard of living without borrowing. Persons living on fixed incomes or savings are at a disadvantage, often tragically so. And government is vitally involved, often to its benefit.

What happens to the $1,000 bond which the government sells to citizen investors on the promise that with interest it will double its value in nine years? Knock a third of that eventual value off through inflation, deduct another portion for taxes, and the investor will have received little for lending the government his savings. As one wartime finance minister told an audience: "You might as well buy these bonds because you're going to have to pay the interest on them anyway."

So the country hails a drop of .3 of a point within a month, even though the annual increase was 4.2 points. Clearly we must stop looking at dollars without keeping one eye on the price index. We may let others fool us, but we shouldn't fool ourselves.

Improved Status for the BCTF

IF THE FORECAST MADE IN the October News Letter of the British Columbia Teachers' Federation is borne out, Premier Bennett will have done the profession in this province a favor by changing it from what amounted to a closed shop. "Early reports on BCTF membership", says the News Letter, "indicated virtually 100 per cent of the teaching force will be voluntary members in the organization."

Should this be the case, the federation will achieve added stature. It will become the official association of virtually all teachers because they want to be members, not because, as was formerly the case, membership was a condition of employment.

Compulsion will have yielded to freedom of choice, and a 100 per cent membership on the latter basis would prove conclusively the satisfaction of the profession with the benefits the federation confers upon it. A more democratic element has been introduced into the Federation and one which promises to make its official actions more responsive to the wishes of all who teach in provincial schools.

Mission Largely Accomplished

WITH THE FUTURE OF THE Amchitka underground atomic blast still in doubt, the Greenpeace is to return to home port in Vancouver. The 12-man crew has made its point against nuclear testing even though it is an obvious one. Cannikin, if carried out, will be a blot on the human record; it could endanger not only its island site but the ocean and wildlife of the vicinity; the planned explosion is a continuing example of what Norman Cousins calls man's "persistent tribalism."

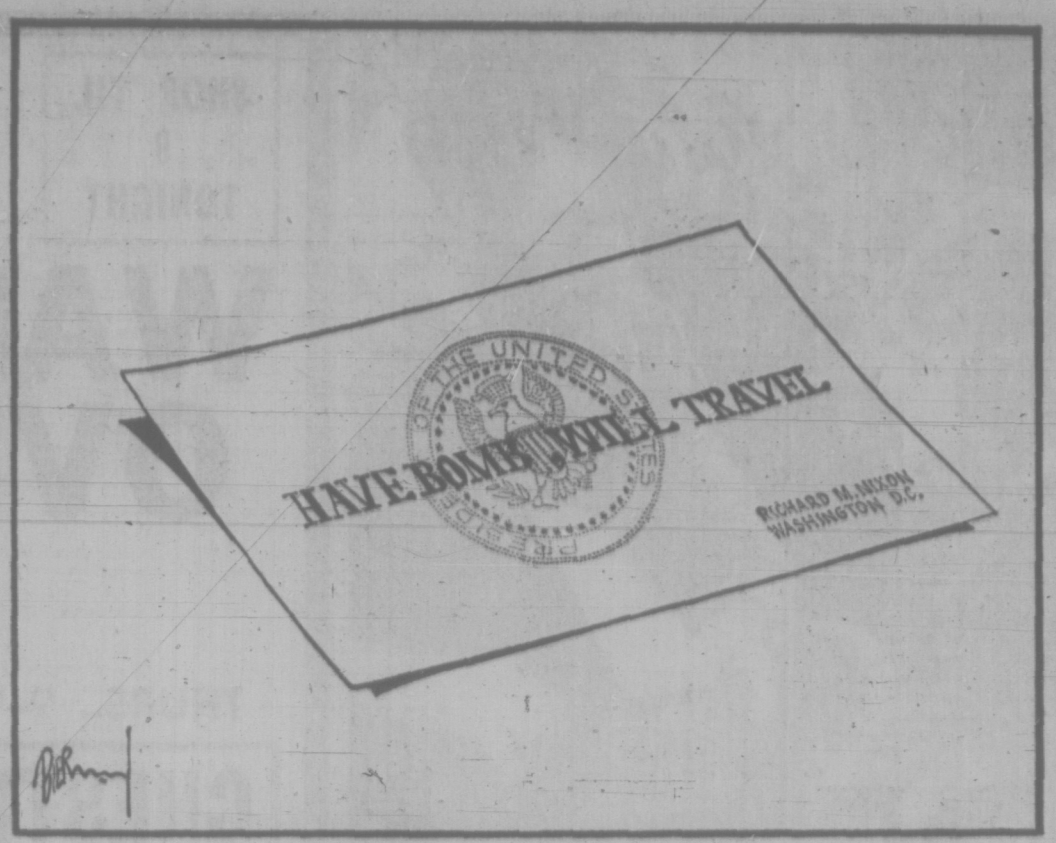
The Greenpeace mission has not only brought home to the proper authorities in the United States the objection of Canadians and many other people to the proposed five-megaton blast, it has awakened the world to the danger of accepting nuclear testing as one of those things we have to live with. The Greenpeace has made us more aware of the avenues of peaceful protest, and more concerned with the future of what are, after all, our own lives.

No Donkey He

PRESIDENT GEORGES POMPIdou of France may not be as imperious as his predecessor, General De Gaulle, but he is not at a loss for memorable phrases. In a recent press conference, Mr. Pompidou remarked on the United States import surtax: "I'd say, if you will, that this is the big stick, but it could eventually transform itself into a carrot if only one were disposed to play the role of donkey, which is not our intention." As a concise and colorful retort to Nixonomics this statement is hard to beat.

Turning to Canada, he disabused us of any notion that France has decided to ignore Quebec in the wake of the General's famous declaration and the Paris-Ottawa freeze-up. Mr. Pompidou said: "For France, a good understanding with Canada and our special ties with Quebec go together." The nature of these special ties would make an interesting chapter in the president's memoirs.

So France has shown again that its studied independence of thought and action persists in spite of the General's death. Perhaps Gaullism is more than a reflection of the moment or of one man, and illustrates, rather, the more enduring aspects of French statecraft.



Basic Change

London Free Press

Fundamental changes in the monetary and political patterns of world trade are going to come from the New Economics of the Nixon administration. It is apparent that the demands of the United States on its trading partners are to be much more basic than mere temporary, emergency action.

President Nixon has left no doubt that the 10 per cent surcharge on United States imports will remain in effect until there is a complete overhaul in international exchange rates, and until he is satisfied that U.S. manufacturers "get a better deal in foreign markets."

Not many countries would dispute the basic justice of that. But it is very unclear what part of the burden the United States itself is prepared to assume in the establishment of realistic exchange rates and fair trade practices.

The president "with regret" indicates as well that his administration will continue to penalize those countries which Washington admits have had no part in contributing to U.S. economic problems.

It is perhaps this prospect which led Prime Minister Trudeau to raise the question of whether the United States had decided to re-order the economic structure of the North American continent so that Canada is relegated to a role of hewer of wood and drawer of water.

If that eventuality does prove real it would be necessary to undertake a fundamental reassessment of the relationship between the two countries.

Correspondence From Our Readers

Community Pride

May I, through your column, express sincere appreciation to those individuals who are members of the Vancouver Island Equipment Owners' Association and employees of several firms who freely contributed their time and skills in one section of Colquitz Creek at Hyacinth Park on Saturday, September 25. Extremely expensive equipment was put into operation at no cost to the public in order to bring about a significant improvement to one creek section and such generosity and sense of community pride should not go unnoticed.

There were so many men from various firms that this letter is the only practical way in which to express the appreciation of the Saanich Municipality.—Hugh A. Curtis, Mayor.

Loveland Lake

There is a strong possibility that the beautiful Loveland Lake area will be closed to the camping and picnicking public. If so there will be a great hue and cry over the other polluters such as mining companies, etc. And rightly so. But in all fairness we must admit it is easier and more profitable to police companies than it is to police the general public.

We have camped in the Loveland Lake area for twenty years and have noted its increasing popularity. Sad to relate we have also noted its decline in sanitary conditions with deep disgust. Many picnickers and campers leave piles of litter and garbage. Most litter can be burned or left at the gobbler at the John Hart junction. And if people can afford to camp they can afford a shovel to bury excrement.

Short of closing the area what can be done? We have counted as many as fifty camping units in a half mile area. Proper toilets and a garbage depot could be installed. Men could be deputized to patrol wilderness camping area with authority so that charges could be laid under the Litter Act. A massive education program in schools might help so that children could educate their parents. Something will have to be done for already three areas have been closed, and inspection of Loveland Lake has been noted recently.

The only answer in my opinion is that facilities must be installed or the entire water system serving Campbell River should be closed to all, including commercial enterprises.

Take heed fellow campers. Wake up to your responsibilities or you will not be permitted in the wilderness at all. It is up to you, isn't it? — E. Anfield, Comox, B.C.

End "Defence" Sharing

The Voice of Women is trying to end our "defence" sharing agreement with the U.S.A.

Why does this agreement exist? Invasions have always come from the south. We have nothing to fear from the north except when we ask for trouble by storing nuclear weapons, building secret naval bases, and allowing practice flights by nuclear-equipped U.S. planes over our prairies — all designed to injure another neighbour. We create any need we have for defence by obvious hostility instead of goodwill.

But if we refuse the latter and so require defence, why not look after our own? Other small nations such as Italy, Belgium, Holland, Denmark, Norway, and Sweden supply their forces with cheaper and better equipment than we buy from the U.S.A.

Meanwhile our servility and nit-witted giving away of irreplaceable resources is supposed to procure us special influence and favor. Just how much these amount to in the crunch is revealed by Mr. Nixon's 10 per cent surcharge which applies to us too, by the sudden closing of big U.S.-owned plants here so as to take the available work home to U.S. citizens while ours go on welfare, and to plan a nuclear blast much nearer to us than to the U.S. mainland—a blast both so dangerous and so unnecessary that American scientists are offering protection to the men working on the project if they will strike.

Special favors? For whom? — F.W.

Flogging a Dead Horse

The Sandringham strikers have dwindled after obeying the orders of their union masters for over a year.

At long last a wise union leader has stated that the strike is dead and it is foolish to flog a dead horse (though the death was admitted some weeks ago when a poster was put out which stated that one of the hospital owners was wanted for murder of a union).

But an unwise union leader implies he will continue to flog the horse, to get it alive again. What logic! Surely this man's right hand does not know what his left hand is doing. — E. L. Bartlett, Physiotherapist.

Successful Hostel

May I through the medium of the press report on the success of Samaritan House Youth Hostel. Also, a thank you, to Nanaimo Family Life Association on behalf of the citizens of Nanaimo for allowing the Samaritan House Youth Hostel to organize under its auspices.

This summer in eleven weeks an average of 27 guests with an average age of 18 years were accommodated overnight in the Quennell School gymnasium — a total of 2,063.

The Greater Nanaimo area which found itself with scores of young men and women, who had come as temporary visitors, did not have to be concerned about these young people. They knew that they were in clean surroundings, under supervision at Samaritan House.

In addition, the visitors were fed at night and in the morning, could shower or wash their hair, get counselling or medical and dental aid if need arose.

The travelling youth responded warmly to this kind reception, as various citizens have testified, giving Nanaimo high praise as a friendly town with the cleanest hostel they'd seen in their travels. Much credit is due to our co-ordinator Rick Fears and his staff. The committee is very grateful to the many local young people who donated their services and often relieved our staff for a complete shift. Mr. J. McPherrin, Secretary of S.D. 68, expressed his thanks, as did Principal G. Halkett, at the excellent condition of the gym when turned back to them on September 15. — Helen Hedberg, chairman of Samaritan House, Nanaimo.

Thanks for the Help

On behalf of the Bate Construction Softball team, I wish to express the appreciation of the team for all the effort put out by your sports department in the past year.

We participated in the B.C. Sr. (A) Men's finals at Campbell River and won. We won the Western Canada in Edmonton and came third in the Canadian at Halifax. I am sure that without the help of your fine sports staff we would have not gone as far as we had.

I would in partjcular wish to thank Doug Peden, Bill Walker, Ernie Fedoruk, and the others who helped so much. — John Ostler, CDS, 778 Topaz.

Why Hate Americans?

The letter in a recent Times issue signed Canadian, objecting to an American moderator and his manner on a local radio station, illustrates a popular view here among us Canadians which I find distasteful and wrong.

I too listened for a while to that program, and heard that moderator unable to get off the ground with various topics for hate kooks who were not adding to discussion but merely being insulting to the man and his country. In the circumstances he had no choice but to shut them off the air. The marvel was that he listened to their 'democratic' views as long as he did.

I think that the fabulous ingenuity and energy of our great neighbor has been and is one of our great assets, and I don't find it necessary to hate Americans in order to feel myself a Canadian. —Thelma Cooke, 548 Dallas.

Encourage Them to Play

As a volunteer chess instructor of several years' standing I warmly endorse Mr. Large's plea that parents should encourage their children to play chess. This fascinating and exciting game is rapidly becoming ever more popular in Canada and young players are carrying all before them!

Mr. Large has done much good work in promoting the game; last spring he very efficiently organized a highly successful inter-school chess tournament. At the same time we should remember children are by nature both active and noisy. Chess needs quiet and concentration. Yet in my own experience I have found the children very patient with the efforts of an old man to interest and amuse them.

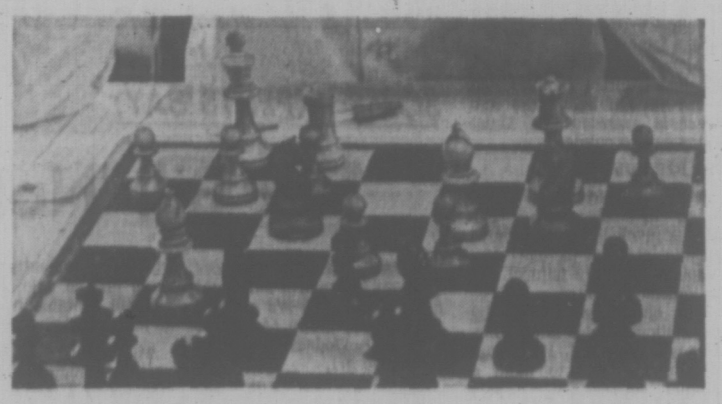
I feel that parents should themselves be able to play the game and so enjoy their children's interest and progress. Contrary to popular ideas, chess is not difficult to learn. True there are some rules, but they are fixed and universal and can be easily mastered by a little steady application. Chess is for all ages, a boy may sit down with his father and may beat him. Now I must ask the question why do so few girls (and ladies too) take up the game here? In Europe there are many brilliant women players.

For beginners of any age I would recommend two small inexpensive books "Chess in an Hour" or "Chess in 30 Minutes" on sale at good book stores. For the advanced player there is a whole literature on chess; our public library has a good range, from simple to advanced.

I get no Chinese or native Indians in my classes. I would like to volunteer to teach the children of these two gifted peoples. I know the Chinese have their own Chinese chess, a very fine game, but I am sure it would pay them many times over to become proficient in our chess game. Knowing it, they or our native Indians can sit down and enjoy a game anywhere, with a man of any race and play as equals. Common interests and equality will make for better understanding which today we so sadly lack.

All we need is a quiet central room, heated, with some tables and chairs. Chess sets are easily supplied. I would gladly give my services as instructor, free, on say one afternoon a week, after school until 5 p.m. or later. We would organize tournaments to keep up interest.

Sorry I have no telephone but a note to my P.O. Box 84, Victoria, would have my prompt attention and I can telephone any interested party to make an appointment to discuss the possibilities of what I suggest. I have references, of course. — John Kenny.



Sandor Highlight

I find it incomprehensible that your music reviewer failed to comment on what was, for me, the highlight of Gyorgy Sandor's concert at the McPherson Playhouse. Mr. Sandor played the Beethoven Opus III sonata with all the thoughtfulness, sensitivity and technical skill required of such a great work. The result was an artistic experience of the highest order.

Perhaps your reviewer finds Beethoven incomprehensible. — G. H. Kelly, 837 Royal Oak Avenue.

(Editor's Note: Mrs. Johnson was apparently not alone in her adverse view of the artist's playing.)

Lighting Up the Piano

A press report refers to a recent conversation with visiting artist Gyorgy Sandor in which he remarked on the poor results of stereotyped recordings of classical pianoforte pieces while he himself advocated more individual interpretation.

Many who were privileged to be present at his recent recital in the MacPherson Theatre were electrified by the way he "lit up" the program with the opening item by Bach and then proceeded to set fire to the Steinway with "Fantasy in C Minor," and so on to the conclusion with "Funerailles" by Liszt, being recalled for no less than four encores.

When we remarked on this afterwards he jokingly said he "played the encores in the ashes" (of the piano). It was a memorable evening the like of which has perhaps never been heard here before and may never be repeated in our lifetime; all thanks to his native Hungarian from Budapest, Laszlo Gati. — Clarence Goode. Founder Regional Director of the B.B.C., 1940 St. Ann.

Economic Union With U.S.: It Wouldn't Work

By PETER C. NEWMAN

Since the middle of August, when Richard Nixon threw his first economic bombshell, Canada has existed in a state of neurotic agitation, like the bewildered favorite nephew of some rich and once-generous uncle who has suddenly and inexplicably turned cold and uncaring.

For 30 years, the basic premise of economic life in this country was that the Americans would give us special protection from the stormy winds of international trade.

Now they've served notice that they will shelter us no more.

So far, Ottawa has managed to make the worst of a bad situation, first by public panic and now by private dithering. Even Pierre Elliott Trudeau's unflappable mask is showing faint cracks of concern. It may well be that his old disdain for life's realities will never carry complete conviction again.

800,000 Jobless

What troubles the prime minister and his advisers are private economic projections which indicate that the American trade offensive, on top of everything else, could mean a Canadian unemployment figure of 800,000 by February. This would be an army of jobless larger than the number of men and women enlisted in Canada's armed services at the height of the Second World War.

In this awkward and ebbing time, the search for desperate counter measures in Ottawa and elsewhere has turned to the examination of an intriguing notion: If we can't wheedle favors out of the Americans, why not join them?

Over their pre-luncheon martinis and their after-dinner cigars, businessmen are examining the suggestion that Canada should move toward a common market with the U.S.

Neil German, the Calgary lawyer who recently became president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, has already endorsed the idea. The Economic Council of Canada is studying the possible implications of such an approach and U.S. Treasury Secretary John Connally has informally discussed the advantages of a common market, which would include Mexico as well as Canada.

The advocates of this option claim that economic union with the U.S. would ensure a much more efficient allocation of Canadian resources; that we would, both as a nation and as individuals, become richer as our living standard reached that of the U.S. They believe that such an arrangement would give Canadian industry the one chance to obtain what it has never had—access to a huge consumer market.

It's an alluring prospect, all right, but it won't work.

There is little proof that a common market would deliver the benefits claimed by its proponents — and considerable evidence that it would produce some disastrous effects they aren't even discussing. But because it's an option that Canadians must now consider seriously and may eventually even have to vote on, it's essential to understand what's involved:

GERMAN

The establishment of a North American Common Market would mean the gradual dismantling of the tariffs on the billion dollars worth of goods that flow across the border every year. It is a commerce that constitutes the world's largest trading partnership. Historically, our tariffs have been considered the legitimate price of Canadian independence — the economy's only protection against unlimited completion from the industrial giant south of the border.

At the same time, the nature of the U.S. tariff structure has been at least partially responsible for the Canadian economy's concentration on raw material extraction. U.S. tariffs rise according to the degree of processing. The tariff on cod, for example, jumps 30 per cent when it's shipped in the form of fish sticks instead of frozen blocks.

President Nixon's new 10 per cent surcharge on our processed goods has all but closed the U.S. market to most of our manufacturers who were already burdened with a high tariff and now can't compete with made-in-America brands. By deliberately exempting most of our raw materials from the new tariff, the U.S. has relegated us willy nilly to the role of a hinterland supply house for the U.S. industrial machine.

A common market with the U.S. and the totally unimpeded access to our resources such an arrangement would allow, might well mean, as its advocates claim, an unprecedented resources boom. The trouble is that primary extractive industries don't create jobs.

The spectacular resource boom of the 50s failed to provide any base for expanding employment opportunities. Despite the billions of dollars invested in new mines, pulp mills, smelting, and oil wells, by 1960 all of these industries were employing only 4 per cent of the labor force, 1 per cent less than in 1950.

Canada's most pressing economic problem is that we have the fastest growing labor force in the world.

Quantum Leap

Dr. Sylvia Ostry of the Economic Council of Canada has predicted that 2.6 million new jobs will have to be found in the 70s merely to absorb the influx of new job seekers. That's the equivalent of 22,000 new jobs a month during the next ten years. Only such labor-intensive activities as manufacturing could even hope to produce jobs in those numbers.

At the heart of the argument put forward by the proponents of a common market with the U.S. is their conviction that our factories would obtain the advantages of large-scale production and gain access to the huge consumer markets of the U.S. It would give them the kind of quantum leap in customers they couldn't hope to reach without at least another century of Canadian population growth.

There are four main flaws in this simplistic notion:

At the same time as our industries would gain access to the U.S. market, American manufacturers would be swamping us with their goods which would start with a competitive edge over our own products, because of the built-in price advantages of their longer production runs;

The disadvantaged regions of Canada would be no better off than before. It would be mainly the factories of southern Ontario that could be successfully integrated into the American economy. Most of the industrial expansion started after the establishment of a common market would take place south of the border, through the extension of production runs in American factories. Of the many factors that go into the production of any item, only two — marginally lower wages and proximity to raw materials — might favor a few Canadian locations;

A study for the royal commission of Canada's economic prospects by D. H. Fullerton and H. A. Hampson showed that the average costs of manufacturing in Canada run about 36 per cent higher than in the U.S. and an Economic Council investigation of the same problem concluded that the capital invested for each Canadian employed in manufacturing is 40 per cent greater than in the U.S. These are disadvantages that no common market arrangement could overcome;

Nearly two-thirds of the factories that do operate in Canada are now American owned. In fact, more than 90 per cent of Canadian plants important enough to have more than 5,000 names on their payrolls are owned by the outsiders. Under a common market it's highly doubtful that American plants would be allowed to compete with their parent firms. The classical doctrine of free trade implies that business transactions are carried on by independent companies in different countries at arms length. But in this era of multi-national corporations, it would be a pure illusion to imagine that most of the subsidiaries operating here would become anything but feeder plants for head office operations.

Canada's only long-term experience with industrial free trade supports these pessimistic productions. The Canadian agricultural implements industry, which has had duty-free access to both countries since 1944, has had most of its production facilities transferred to the U.S. Canada's share of North America's total production of farm implements was formerly 12 per cent: It has since dropped to about 6 per cent, even though several of the giants of the industry are Canadian firms.

The Harsh Facts

There are now 600,000 tractors on Canadian farms, but tractor production has virtually ceased in this country. Massey-Ferguson still makes tractor parts in Toronto and Brantford, Ont., but they are shipped for assembly to the firm's Detroit factory.

Advocates of a common market dismiss these unpleasant technical realities and insist that Canada's standard of living would go up nevertheless. They ignore the harsh facts of regional economic disparities, which are even more pronounced in the U.S. than they are here. There are no tariffs between Ontario and Quebec (which can be viewed as a common market), yet there has historically been a persistent income differential of about 25 per cent for exactly the same jobs between the two provinces. In other words, there is no guarantee that we would become better off. More likely, the young would have to solve their unemployment problems by moving south, where the jobs would be.

In calculating our chances and choices in the face of the Nixon administration's economic initiatives, it's important to analyse the root causes of the current U.S. manoeuvres.

One of the characteristic responses of any country in economic difficulties is to try and export its problems. This is the basis of the U.S. game plan. President Nixon is engaged in the incredibly ambitious feat of trying to reverse at one blow a $12 billion deficit in his country's balance of payments, by holding the rest of the world to ransom.

BALL

In effect, he is denying other countries access to the rich U.S. consumer market until they alter their exchange rates favorable to the U.S. The international community of nations, including Canada, is being asked to bear the cost, among other things, of the disastrous American incursion into Vietnam and the expensive process of buying up Canadian and European industry as part of the U.S.'s expanding hegemony abroad.

The more severe the U.S. internal crisis becomes, the less likelihood there is that they will listen to our pleas for a special relationship.

Except for one thing: The Americans want and need our energy resources.

To put it bluntly, the Americans would like to drive us into some kind of common market arrangement because they must have access to energy resources that their own country can no longer provide at a reasonable cost. At the moment the world has 6 per cent of the world's population and utilizes 50 per cent of the world's total energy resources.

"The arithmetic implied here is simple," Prof. F. H. Knelman, chairman of the humanities and science department at Sir George Williams University, has predicted. "The projected U.S. needs of oil, natural gas, uranium, water, hydro-electric power, etc. are such that Americans will want to have free access to all these resources, no matter where they are on this coptinent, or in its continental waters. This means only one thing — complete ownership and exploitation of Canada by the U.S."

Free Movement

As George Ball, the former U.S. undersecretary of state so knowingly forecast, in his book The Discipline of Power: "Sooner or later, commercial imperatives will bring about free movement of all goods back and forth across our long border: And when that occurs, or even before it does, it will become unmistakably clear that countries with economies so inextricably intertwined must also have free movement of the other vital factors of production-capital, services and labor."

The removal of U.S.-Canadian tariffs would inevitably be followed by "harmonization" of the two countries' regulations, common anti-trust laws, and a common currency would follow. Eventually, pressures would come for the removal of all boundaries and the establishment of common citizenships. It would be the end of the Canadian dream.

Peking Frustrates Rebels

By JOHN L. HESS

ALGIERS — The Chinese invitation to President Nixon to visit Peking has thrown the revolution movement into "disarray" according to Eldridge Cleaver, the extremist black American leader.

"I don't think they'll just be chitchatting," he said in an interview. "I think there's a deal being made, and I think this is cause for alarm from the point of view of the black man — the possibility of the world being carved up again without us being consulted on it."

★ ★ ★

The apparent defection of Peking from the doctrine of permanent revolutionary warfare has hit particularly hard among the score of so guerrilla movements in exile here.

Most of them are African — there is even one group from the Canary Islands — and most are thought to receive modest subsidies from the Algerian government.

"Everybody sort of assumed that the contradictions between the United States and Asia could be solved only by struggle," Cleaver said. He suggested that a deal was now being made for the United States to get out of Asia, leaving it free to concentrate on its interests in Africa, the Middle East and Europe.

Cleaver, a large, bearded man of 36 with hooded eyes, received his visitor in an anteroom of a neat concrete suburban villa that serves as headquarters of the international section of the Black Panther party, renamed the Revolutionary People's Communications Network since his recent split with Huey P. Newton. He wore blue jeans and a dark T-shirt. A dark pear-shaped stone hung from his neck.

Cleaver led his guest to a small but well-equipped recording studio. He explained that taped interviews and speeches and even video tape made there were sent to Europe and America for broadcasts and meetings.

In a soft and calm tone that never varied during the hour-long interview, Cleaver said that the Algerian Government provided the house and a "minimal" monthly contribution. "We receive nothing from any other government — which is one of my complaints," he said.

He indicated that he was particularly upset by the improved relationship between North Korea — where one of his two small children was born — and South Korea.

CLEAVER

"We've done a lot to educate the American people about the situation in North Korea," he said. "This will change."

The "shocking surprise" of the visit to Peking of Henry A. Kissinger, President Nixon's adviser on national security affairs, had had a strong impact, he acknowledged. "I find many people around the world panic when it comes to messing directly with the United States," he said.

★ ★ ★

"I think a lot of options are closed. I think the movement depends more and more on itself. We, too, I think, will become more self-interested."

Cleaver gave no indication of any softening of his own position. He said the split in the Black Panther party was a result of a decision of David Hilliard, its chief of staff, and Newton to "work within the system."

Hovering in No-Man's Land

THE GLOBE AND MAIL
An Editorial

That was rather a funny dance which former Liberal Cabinet minister Paul Hellyer and the Action Canada assortment performed.

There were the phoned-in votes, which gave the impression of direct people participation. There was the equally strong impression that a Canada led by Action Hellyer would have a great deal of power concentrated in Ottawa; social services would be co-ordinated under a national central agency; a federal contributory health care program would take precedence over provincial plans; farmers would be given aid on a national basis.

●

Yet Action Canada voted against becoming a political party and fielding candidates. Instead it voted to "improve" the present party system and called for "direct responsibility of the member of Parliament to the citizens of the riding he (she) represents." It would also investigate means of enabling Canadians to vote directly on important issues, through some kind of electronic communications set-up.

Glimpsed through all the verbiage the opponents of Action Canada became visible: Prime Minister Trudeau and his super-group advisers who, according to Mr. Hellyer in a marvellous reproduction of the words of author Walter Stewart, exercise "near absolute power" and can circumvent the cabinet, the Liberal caucus and Parliament. "We are well on the road to the one-party system," said Mr. Hellyer.

●

If we are, then it is difficult to see how Action Canada could effectively halt the march. A slight organization, with some friendly feelings for the Conservatives and Social Credit, it hovers without power in a no-man's land.

Is it not time that Paul Hellyer, a man of some considerable political presence, took his small-c conservatism where it belongs and crossed the floor of the House to join the Conservatives?

The Conservative Party, like every other party, is receptive to extremes of left and right and usually manages to hammer them into acceptable shape. The wonder, really, is that Mr. Hellyer should have selected the Liberals in the first place. His natural home awaits him.

So much for so little.

Chabot Tells Employers to Play Fair In Paying Wages Due to Employees

If all bosses paid wages when due there could be fewer crises in B.C. labor, provincial Labor Minister James Chabot told an employer group Wednesday.

The minister told the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce that employers could show greater responsibility in their relations with employees. He pointed out that last year 4,420 employers failed to pay minimum wages or holiday pay to more than 10,000 B.C. workers.

As a result, the labor department interceded to collect $712,000 on behalf of these employees.

"No wonder there is animosity, no wonder there is distrust and lack of co-operation of labor in B.C.," Chabot told the meeting at the Empress.

Each year, his department deals with 100,000 complaints by workers against their employers, with a departmental staff of slightly more than 200.

The same volume of complaints is dealt with by the labor department in Ontario, Chabot noted. But in Ontario there are 1,200 on the department's staff.

Departmental staff is ready and willing at all times to resolve differences without the need of the mediation commission, Chabot said, chiding the refusal recently of electrical workers to come to agreement with B.C. Hydro.

It was irresponsible also for Teamster Union Canadian director Ed Lawson to say that he would defy any recommendation of the mediation commission. To say so as a member of the Canada Senate — sworn to uphold the law — is prejudging the directions negotiations will take, Chabot said.

Chabot, speaking on crisis in labor, cited acts on both sides of the labor-management fence as contributing to a breakdown of confidence.

He also made a feference to the inadequacy of legislation, which he said might be made more flexible. "But that is for the future to decide."

He refused to comment later on whether he forecast changes in the controversial Mediation Commission Act (Bill 33).

He rejected a suggestion that deadlocked labor disputes be referred to the legislature for solution. This would cost about $100,000 and take 10 days to call into session each time a dilemma arose, Chabot said.

"We were elected to govern, and this is not a sound answer," the minister told his audience.

"Legislation is there to protect the public interest and welfare," he added.

Another area in which employers could act responsibly at present is to take advantage of the B.C. government opportunity program for welfare recipients.

Chabot hoped his listeners would help return welfare cases to the "mainstream of employment" by taking up the government's offer to pay 50 per cent of wages of persons placed in newly-created jobs.

He said that although prime responsibility for unemployment rests with the federal government, the province shares part of it and through the highways and forestry departments it is providing some employment opportunities.

Employers should be planning now to create new jobs for the winter. "December is too late," Chabot said.

Burnside High Plan Aired

Establishment of continuous-year high school in the upper Burnside area and consolidation of three elementary schools were recommended at a meeting of the Greater Victoria school board's construction and maintenance committee Wednesday night.

The school board will be asked to send briefs to the provincial government for approval of funds.

Committee chairman Peter Bunn said a preliminary meeting with provincial education department officials indicated that very detailed plans would be required. They had questioned the need for a new high school in the Burnside area because the total school population had declined there last year.

"So far it's a nebulous sort of thing; we seem to be building a school on foundations of sand," Bunn said, after he, too, admitted to being wary about going ahead too quickly on the new school.

The school, which would handle 950 students, would cost about $1.7 million.

In the consolidation proposal, Beacon Hill and South Park schools would be phased out for one school at the site of James Bay elementary near Macdonald Park.

The proposal, which has been discussed sporadically during the last eight years, depends upon land trades being worked out with the city of Victoria.

The board wants to use Macdonald Park for school playing fields in a joint-use program and in return would give up, by law, the land the other two schools now stand on.

TRUSTEE ROLE TRANSFORMED

A drastic change in the role of school trustees has taken place over recent years, according to Trevor Davis, North Saanich representative on Saanich school board.

Commenting on the B.C. School Trustees' Association convention held in Vancouver last week, Davis said few members of the public realize the diminishing power of school boards.

"The scope of teaching is determined entirely by the provincial authority, the people employed are protected by a tough union, and the money to be spent is entirely prescribed by the provincial government."

"Essentially to be successful, today's trustee must have some measure of influence at the provincial cabinet level," Davis said.

He added that he hopes steps will be taken to decentralize the education system.

The trustee cited the example set by independent schools which he said, preserve complete operational independence, while providing good education at no greater cost than the public schools.

"Perhaps public school boards should be given a similar opportunity," commented Davis.

Dockers Challenged

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal judge has ordered top longshore union officials to show why they should not be punished for defying a back-to-work order in the West Coast dock strike.

Judge William Sweigert of the U.S. district court Wednesday night ordered a show cause hearing after government attorneys argued that the union was in contempt of court because workers in the Los Angeles Long Beach area and Oakland were off the job.

The petition filed by U.S. Attorney James L. Browning accuses International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union Locals 13 and 63 in Los Angeles-Long Beach and Local 10 in Oakland of failing to comply with a temporary restraining order which sent most of the 15,000 ILWU members back to work Saturday after a 100-day walkout.

STEPS FOR HEALTH — 88-YEAR-OLD RETIRED DENTIST DR. JEROME G. HESS gave up his dentistry practice after 42 years because of his declining health in 1952.

Nine years later he started taking dancing lessons to get some regular exercise and ward off the aging process. It evidently worked. Last year Hess won a national fox-trot and tango title in Miami, Fla., and now — at the age of 88 — is training hard to defend his title in April. "I'll be ready," promised the retired dentist, who has been going to Fred Astaire Studios twice a week for lessons since 1965.

CP May Expand Ferry Service To Handle Trucking to Island

Canadian Pacific Railway's B.C. Ferry Service may expand to handle more ferry trucking business, CPR president Ian A. Sinclair said Wednesday.

Sinclair emphasized that nothing definite has been decided, but he said any move would mean more ferries rather than expansion of existing ones.

He said the company is studying trucking business potential at Swartz Bay and Sidney terminals. Sinclair's statements were made in Victoria at an Empress Hotel press conference following the October meeting of the CPR's board of directors.

CPR chairman N. R. Crump said the only concrete announcement he could make was that of the resignation of director C. A. Fielding of Sudbury, Ontario.

'FAIR' YEAR

He said the CPR has no plans to sell the Empress, no immediate plans to acquire the Crystal Garden property and no plans to sell the ferry Princess Marguerite.

Crump said The Empress "had a pretty fair year considering it was B.C.'s centennial year" and indicated he is satisfied with results of extensive redecorating at the hotel.

Zoning difficulties at the Crystal site, said Crump, are discouraging the CPR's interest in buying the property.

The company does not plan to extend its subsidiary, Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, north of Nanaimo. Crump said the company also does not plan to ask the Canadian Transport Commission again for permission to close down the E. and N.

A CPR bid to close the railway was rejected by the commission in 1970 after strong opposition from concerned Vancouver Island citizens.

WAIT AND SEE

Crump said the CPR will wait asd see if passenger business increases before thinking again about trying to halt the service.

He also said the company is continuing to study the possibility of building a coal pipeline in B.C. To make this profitable, another 8 to 10 million tons of coal must be contracted for.

Sinclair said company talks with the Japanese have not shown that these contracts will be forthcoming and the CPR is still able to deliver more coal to Roberts Bank than has been sold.

Marathon Realty plans for developing its Inner Harbor properties have been "put on the back burner," said Sinclair.

Crump elaborated to say: "If there's no highrise, can it be commercially feasible?"

On general topics, Crump said he expects the CPR to have a "fair year," but the effect of changes such as new federal tax legislation, the United States import surcharge and the freeing of the Canadian dollar remains largely unknown.

Crump said the surcharge is unlikely to hurt the CPR directly, but freeing the dollar weakened the export position of lumber and base metals.

He said Canada cannot build its own merchant marine on a competitive basis because the cost of shipbuilding here is prohibitive.

Other factors include the great reservoir of skills other nations such as Spain already possess for manning deep-sea tankers, higher wages for Canadians and the unwillingness of Canadians to be at sea for one year.

PANEL TO AIR PERMIT SYSTEM

William Venables, director of the provincial government's pollution control branch, will be one of the participants in the 38th annual meeting of the Pacific Northwest Pollution Control Association in Spokane Oct. 27, 28 and 29.

He will be a member of a panel that will discuss the permit system as it affects industry.

The three-day meeting focuses on environmental protection through new pollution control technology.

One of the principal speakers will be Robert Canham, executive secretary of the national Water Pollution Control Federation in Washington, D.C.

About 400 scientists, engineers, educators, industrialists, municipal officials and treatment plant operators are expected to attend.

Topics under discussion will include combined storm sewage treatment using powdered activated carbon, pollution abatement through infra-red, dry plastic peeling of potatoes, and neutron activation analysis to monitor environmental quality.

Trans-Atlantic Flyers Named 'Men of the Year'

A pair of once-in-a-lifetime trans-Atlantic flyers Wednesday were named Victoria's men of the year by the Chamber of Commerce.

This year's centennial London-Victoria air race contestants Claude Butler and Rick Cockburn were cited at the chamber's annual meeting at Empress Hotel.

For bringing world attention to the capital city of B.C., Butler and Cockburn were given identical silver trophies, although neither of them ended in the money in the race, July 1-8.

Butler, who flew a twin Piper Aerostar 601, said one purpose of the race for him was "the goodwill we could create. We sure created the utmost wherever we went."

But to Butler "the outstanding achievement of the whole race" belonged to Cockburn, who piloted a vintage Harvard trainer.

Cockburn flew his Harvard solo across the Atlantic both ways.

Let's work together to create jobs for British Columbians on social assistance

November 1 to April 30, the Government of British Columbia will pay 50% of the wages or salary you pay to anyone you employ who is registered in the new Job Opportunities Program and who carries a "Certificate of Opportunity"

People who are able to work don't want social assistance. They want jobs. They want the security of a regular pay-cheque . . . a renewal of confidence in their abilities and talents . . . a feeling that they are playing a part in the dynamic growth of this great Province.

They can't create jobs for themselves. Only you can do that. And to help you the Government of British Columbia will make it worth your while by paying 50% of the wages or salary for each new job you create for a person who has been a resident of British Columbia for 12 months prior to November 1, 1971, and who has been on British Columbia social assistance for the past three months or more.

HOW THE PLAN WORKS

1. Each social assistance recipient who registers in this program will be issued a "Certificate of Opportunity."
2. This Certificate qualifies the holder for employment under the terms of the program.
3. If you employ a person having a Certificate, you will pay that person's full wages or salary and the Government of British Columbia guarantees to reimburse you half. This also applies to fringe benefits if they are part of the normal terms of employment.
4. There is no limit to the number of people you may employ under the terms of this program.
5. The job opportunities you provide must be newly created and not jobs already available, and they must involve a minimum of eight (8) continuous weeks of full-time employment.
6. The salaries or wages you pay must be what you normally pay your employees in each job category.
7. Claims for reimbursement of wages or salary will be paid by the Government on a monthly basis.
8. Anyone with a Certificate of Opportunity may be employed by you under the Job Opportunities Program at any time between November 1, 1971 and April 30, 1972.

COMPANIES, ALL PUBLIC BODIES, ORGANIZATIONS AND INDIVIDUALS WHO WOULD LIKE TO CO-OPERATE IN THIS NEW PLAN SHOULD MAIL THE FOLLOWING FORM IMMEDIATELY:

BRITISH COLUMBIA GOVERNMENT JOB OPPORTUNITIES COMMITTEE

Honourable Dan Campbell, Chairman

Hon. Dan Campbell, Chairman
British Columbia Government Job Opportunities Committee,
Parliament Buildings,
Victoria, B.C.

We (I) would like to co-operate with the Government of British Columbia in creating jobs for those on Social Assistance who qualify for the 50% British Columbia Job Opportunities Program for the period of November 1, 1971 to April 30, 1972.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

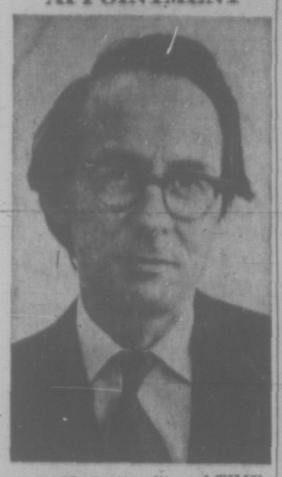
Columbia Shutdowns Set

VANCOUVER (CP) — Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd. has announced four temporary shutdowns of pulp and woods operations in British Columbia.

Company president G. W. Scrimshaw said the shutdowns are the result of a delay in economic recovery and all-time high inventories.

Pulp mills in Prince Rupert and Castlegar will be closed from Nov. 1 to Nov. 22. Twinriver Timber Ltd. will be shut down from Nov. 1 to Nov. 29 and the Interior woods operation at Nakusp will be closed from Dec. 1 to Jan. 3, 1972.

TIME APPOINTMENT



John M. Scott, editor of TIME Canada, has been named a senior editor of TIME, the Weekly Newsmagazine. The announcement was made by Henry A. Grunwald, TIME's managing editor. Mr. Scott, 41, will continue to be based in Montreal where he has directed TIME's Canadian editorial staff since 1962. In addition to its Montreal editorial headquarters, the magazine has news bureaus in Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto and Vancouver. TIME Canada, which began publication in 1943, is printed in Montreal and Vancouver. ***

Crown Z

Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. reports net earnings of $6 million for the first nine months of 1971, up 16 per cent from $5.2 million in the January-September period last year.

Net income per share climbed to 76 cents from 66 cents, president Robert G. Rogers said. Sales rose to $150 million from $141 million.

Rogers said the increase was due primarily to strong building materials demand created by the home construction boom this year in the U.S., the company's major export market area, despite the 10 per cent import surcharge on dutiable lumber.

Labatt

John Labatt Ltd. has sold its 47 per cent share of Lucky Breweries Inc., San Francisco, for $6.6 million.

The company said the sale price is about $3.5 million under book value — not asset value — of Lucky.

The purchaser is Paul Kalmanovitz, a Los Angeles brewer and investor who previously held about 20 per cent of Lucky shares.

N. E. Hardy, Labatt president, said increased costs of operations in a highly-competitive market have kept Lucky from being a profitable operation. The company lost $1.7 million last year.

Inland

Inland Natural Gas Co. Ltd. reports net earnings increased 28 per cent to $2.64 million (87 cents a share) for the fiscal year ended June 30 compared to $2 million (68 cents) the previous year.

President John McMahon also announced the completion of the sale of $7.5 million 8¼ per cent, 20-year first mortgage bonds to a group of investment dealers headed by Dominion Securities Corp. Ltd. Net proceeds to Inland are $7.33 million and the bonds are being offered to the public at par.

Provigo

Provigo Ltd., Quebec-based food business, showed an 18 per cent improvement in net profit in the quarter just ended, despite a downtrend in the food industry generally.

The company's sales went up 3 per cent from $115 million to $118.6 million, and profit from $993,000 to $1.17 million, partly through operating economies.

Share earnings were 31.4 cents vs. 26.6 cents, also an 18 per cent improvement.

Pan Am Mines

Pan American Mines Ltd. property near Payson, Ariz., shows sufficient uranium-bearing material to justify continuing development, reports a consultant.

The Montreal-based firm will be able to proceed with the main pit development and exploration of other parts of the 4,700-acre prospect during the winter.

Within the next month, president Pat Brawley will meet with a group of major energy corporations interested in taking part in a project at Mormon Lake, farther north near the Utah border.

Burrard

Interest income rose from $138,129 last year to a current $231,389, reports Burrard Mortgage Investments Ltd., which has undergone a year of consolidation.

President H. O. Westra reports deferred income is up from $77,000 to $92,000, and investments written down to reflect current values amount to $76,475 (18 cents a share).

Higher expenses (from $130,600 to $374,600) reflect acquisitions and hiring new employees.

Gross income was $418,000 ($227,800) and net loss after the writedown $11,300 compared with a profit last year of $101,300 or three cents loss vs. 30 cents profit on a share basis.

Pinex

A significant occurrence of copper ore is reported by Pinex Mines Ltd. in the Ellis Bay area of Lake Athabaska, northern Saskatchewan.

The company's president, Mervin E. Davis, said representatives of several major companies have visited the property, which has shown copper values in pitting and trenching carried out during the summer.

Induced polarization and high-frequency probe is under way at present, "with the help of two major mining companies," Pinex said, with the object of diamond drilling targets over the winter. Open-pit potential is seen by chairman Bernard O. Brynelsen.

'Lasting Recovery'

VANCOUVER (CP) — American economic policies, despite the concern they have caused in business quarters, held out the promise of a better and more lasting economic recovery, F. W. Nicks, chairman of the Bank of Nova Scotia, said here.

Nicks, in Vancouver for a meeting today of the bank's board of directors, said the economy had picked up encouraging momentum this year.

"It would be foolish and short-sighted not to recognize that while the new U.S. policies include measures that are clearly rough for a good many of our companies — and we obviously want to get these removed as soon as possible — they also include steps to spur on the needed further revival of the whole U.S. and North American economy," he said.

Nicks said a revival of housebuilding in both Canada and the U.S. was a key element in B.C.'s. "leading the rest of Canada in the recent economic recovery."

He said the production of sawn lumber in the first seven months of 1971 was 14 per cent higher than in the same period last year. Lumber prices are well above last year's "unremunerative levels" and producers are in a good position to maintain exports to the U.S.

"B.C. producers have come through the period of slowdown in a stronger position than have their eastern counterparts because markets for pulp, on which the B.C. industry has concentrated, have not been as adversely affected as those for newsprint."

Growth Investment

When you invest in Canada Savings Bonds, you invest in the growth of your country.
This year's bonds which mature in 1980, offer an average annual yield of 7.19%. Because of the compound interest feature which lets you earn interest on interest, a $100 bond will return $187, if held for the full nine years. It can, however, be cashed anytime. At face value plus accrued monthly interest.
Canada Savings Bonds are available in denominations of $50 to $25,000. They may be purchased for cash or in monthly installments, and each purchaser may buy up to $50,000 worth. Make 1971 Canada Savings Bonds a part of your investment portfolio. Contact your nearest Wood Gundy office, and watch your money grow along with your country.

Give to the United Appeal?

★ ★ ★

WHY?

"Support the United Appeal" — every year the call goes out to residents of Greater Victoria, and of course many thousands do support it, handsomely.

But those who offer their services every year for this mammoth fund-raising drive, as organizers, canvassers and in other ways, are painfully aware that a great many residents do not respond.

One theory is that this is due to a failure to identify, to appreciate the basic aims of the campaign.

★ ★ ★

Unavoidably, the very term United Appeal has a slightly impersonal ring to it. Who are the agencies supported by the campaign? What do they do? How do they benefit the community at large?

To answer some of these questions, and attempt to show a sample cross-section of the 23 agencies for whom the Communtiy Chest has this year set a goal of $758,723, we sent out our photographers.

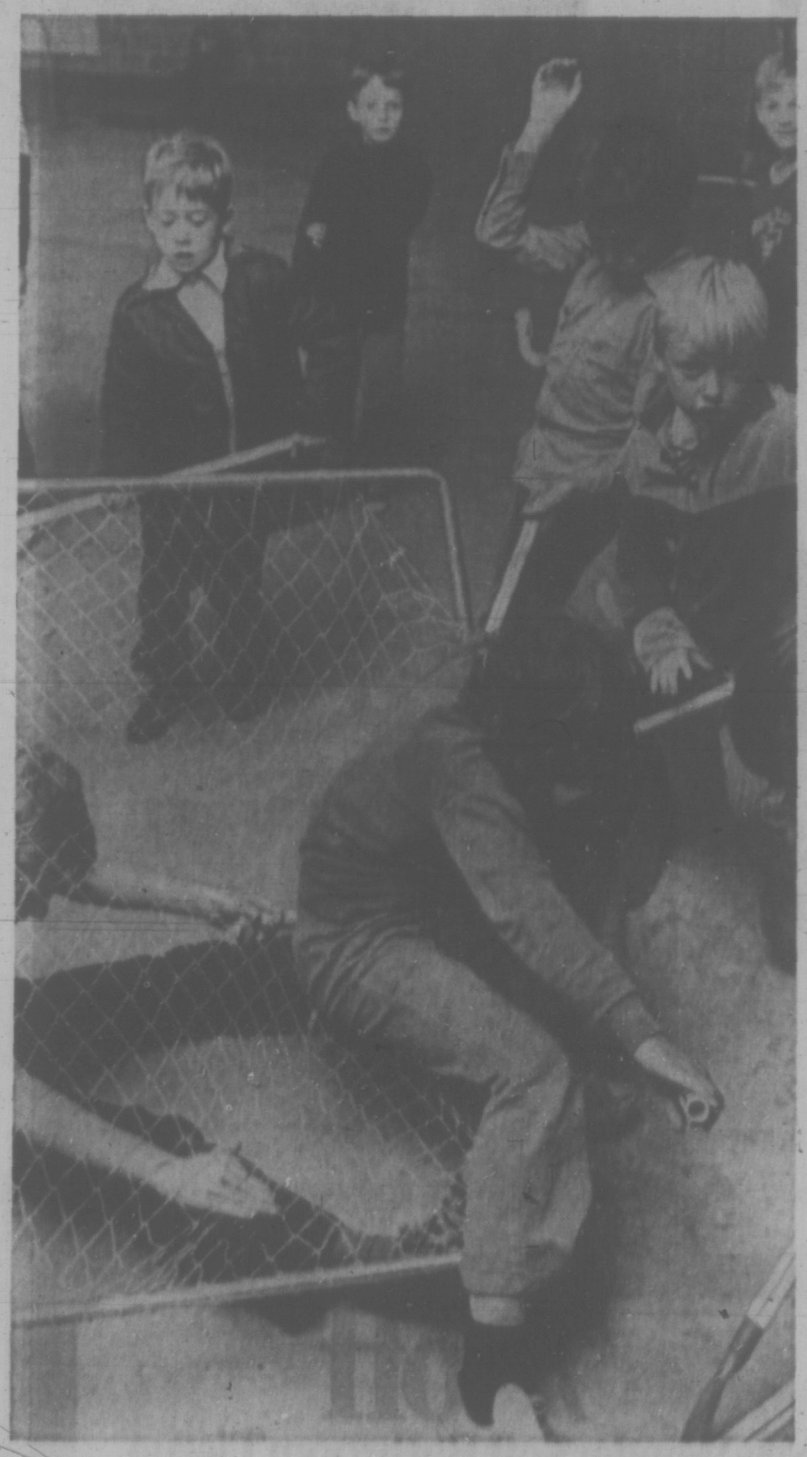
Their pictures, we feel, show in human terms why the United Appeal deserves the support of everyone.

Because . . .

The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals was established in Victoria in 1895. Its Napier Lane premises, opened in 1964, are the most modern of their kind in Canada. The centre can accommodate about 40 dogs and 30 cats, as well as a variety of smaller animals. The SPCA staff of eight looks after strays and accident victims, advises the public on animal problems and investigates cases of cruelty or neglect.

BECAUSE . . .

THE MEALS ON WHEELS SERVICE (right), run under the auspices of the Silver Threads, provides about 150 hot meals a day for persons who, for various reasons, are unable to cook for themselves. The majority are senior citizens but they also include the blind, persons suffering from multiple sclerosis and the temporarily disabled. The meals are prepared in the Goodwill centre and delivered by 65 volunteer drivers and 65 hostesses. These are sometimes husband-and-wife teams.



BECAUSE . . .

Opened a little over two years ago, the G. R. Pearkes Clinic for Handicapped Children provides specialized care, treatment and schooling for about 180 handicapped youngsters in a modern, cheerful and superbly equipped building. The children, ages ranging from a few weeks to 16 years, include those with cerebral palsy and other neuromuscular conditions, spinahifida and hearing impediments. A full-time staff of 22 is helped by more than 220 volunteers who last year contributed 14,000 hours of their time at the clinic, which is operated by the Cerebral Palsy Association of Lower Vancouver Island. Of the clinic's 1971 budget of $142,331, the allotment from the Community Chest is $45,013.

U.K. AGAIN POSTS WORLD TRADE PROFIT

LONDON (AP) — Britain made a profit of £57 million ($136.8 million) in its trade with the rest of the world in September, the department of trade and industry reported today.

The surplus was below the profit for August when the revised total was £72 million.

The September figures gave Britain an average surplus of 20 million for the first nine months of the year.

Exports to U.S. Increase 10.8%

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian exports to the United States rose in September to $102 billion, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday, showing a greater rate of increase after President Nixon's new import duties than before it.

September exports to the U.S. were up 10.8 per cent from a year earlier, while exports for the first nine months of 1971 totalling $8.89 billion were up 8.7 per cent.

Exports to all countries totalled $.48 billion in September this year, compared with $1.37 billion a year earlier. For nine months this year, total exports to all countries ran to $13.1 billion compared with $12.5 billion a year earlier.

The statistics bureau said shipments to the U.S. accounted for 94 per cent of the September growth.

The 10-per-cent extra import duty levied Aug. 15 by President Nixon applied mainly to manufactured goods, and was estimated to affect about one quarter of Canada's exports.

Statistics Canada said the U.S. market continued to be strong for lumber, petroleum and gas. Auto sales continued high, recovering from last year's strike. Aluminum exports were up sharply, and most other commodities were moderately stronger in the U.S. market.

However, exports of iron ore, nickel and communications equipment were lower for the month.

Firm Failure At Lowest Level

TORONTO (CP) — Business failures in Canada during August dropped to their lowest level in two years, Dun and Bradstreet, a credit-reporting agency, reports.

August failures totalled 145, down 21 per cent from 184 in July. The August figure was the lowest monthly total since August, 1969.

Dollar liabilities resulting from the failures totalle d$10.7 million, less than half the $21.6 million in July.

Ontario and Alberta reported the sharpest drop in failures. All provinces reported a decline except British Columbia.

'Copper Revival Needed'

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The copper industry faces an uncertain future in the 1970s with increased consumption requiring continued growth, says a Canadian mining leader.

Inflation and unemployment in several industrial countries brought the copper boom of the late 1960s to a halt last year, said R. Gordon Driver, president of Noranda Mines Ltd.

"We need a revival of consumption growth which hopefully will come soon in North America and gain momentum through 1972," Driver told a meeting of the American Mining Congress here Wednesday.

Development of new copper properties should be slowed to see how the world market for copper develops in the 1970s, he said.

"To grow with safety we must be imaginative and flexible in developing new reserves," said Driver.

NEW HIGHER PRICES

Development of copper deposits in remote locations, such as northern Canada, will have to wait until demand forces the price of copper substantially higher, Driver said.

Higher production costs may leave copper vulnerable to substitution by aluminum in uses connected with electricity, Driver warned, though aluminum has only half the conductive property of copper.

Environmental control regulations have already forced up metal production in Japan and the United States, he said, and could increase production cost by four to five cents per pound of copper.

"Pollution controls are here to stay," he said, "but hopefully they will take cognizance of special situations and recognize the difference between actual pollution, political pollution and hysterical pollution."

FORCED SALE DELAYED

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sale of financially-troubled Canadian Plywood Corp. Ltd., ordered by B.C. Supreme Court Sept. 27, has been delayed pending an appeal.

Sale of the firm's assets by its receiver to Pacific Mills Ltd. was ordered following a hearing before Mr. Justice G. F. T. Gregory. But the corporation sought a stay of the order in the hope of obtaining a higher price for its assets which would allow it to pay a greater amount to other creditors.

The order sought would restrain the receiver from taking any acts, executing or delivering any conveyances or assurances or delivering the assets of Canadian Plywood into the hands of Pacific Mills pending an appeal or until further order of the court.

War Act Inquiry Witnesses Say Quebec Is Still Tense

MONTREAL (CP) — Trevor Berry, former defensive halfback for the Saskatchewan Roughriders, said Wednesday the atmosphere of last October's stringent War Measures Act still seems to permeate Quebec society.

The former Canadian Football League player, now working for the Manitoba Civil Liberties Union, was commenting in an interview on his impressions after two days of hearing and seeing witnesses at a citizens' commission of inquiry into the War Measures Act, invoked last Oct. 16 by the federal government in response to two political kidnappings in Quebec.

Mr. Berry, one of the commissioners, said one result of the commission is that a "good hard look is being taken at civil liberties."

At one point in Wednesday's session, another commissioner approached two large, well-dressed men at the back of the audience who told him they were police officers. They left before the commissioner announced their presence.

The commission winds up a three-day series of public and private hearings in Montreal today.

With three other commissioners from English Canada and five from Quebec, Mr. Berry has listened to a wide variety of testimony from labor groups, politicians, lawyers and private individuals.

"I think it's fairly important to have English-Canadians on the committee," Mr. Berry said, terming the commission "the start of the rise to consciousness across Canada of Quebec."

"Canadians are not aware of the state of civil liberties in this country."

REACTIONS DIFFER

One civil rights group, the Human Rights League, has received both criticism and praise from witnesses before the commission.

Jean-Luc Arene, who was imprisoned during last October's crisis, had nothing but praise for the group.

Mr. Arene said that for his first two weeks in jail he was not allowed to bathe and could not communicate with people on the outside.

"But a man from the league got me a pencil and paper and access to showers. After two weeks in prison, something like that assumes great proportions," Mr. Arene said.

Earlier Wednesday, labor leader Michel Chartrand, describing his period in jail said, "I saw some representatives from the Human Rights League."

"They wanted to know if I needed any soap or candies. I told them I didn't need anything. I sleep and I eat. But what are you doing about all these people here?

DIDN'T SEEK RELEASE

"And they said they couldn't deal with that, they just wanted to make sure we were being treated all right," said Mr. Chartrand, head of the Montreal council of the Confederation of National Trade Unions.

Fernand Foisy, also of the Central Council of the CNTU, said the league did not participate in moves with labor groups to press for the release of people arrested under the act.

Florent Audette and Andre Gravel, both officials of the Montreal Construction Union, told the commission that they believe police detained them during the October crisis because of their union activities and their opposition to Mayor Jean Drapeau during the last municipal elections, in which Mayor Drapeau captured all 52 city council seats.

Mr. Audette was held for eight days before being released without charge.

Despite his wife's efforts to find out what had happened, he did not see a lawyer during this period.

WAS CANDIDATE

Mr. Audette, who has five children, the oldest of whom was seven at the time, said, "most of my family was frightened for months afterwards."

Mr. Gravel, an election candidate representing the opposition Front d'Action Politique, was picked up by police two days before the Montreal election Oct. 25.

"Although I was only held for a few hours," Mr. Gravel said, "my whole political campaign was jeopardized."

Nat Aronoff, a former city councillor, said that Mayor Drapeau's pre-election prophesy that "the streets of Montreal will run with blood" was irresponsible and untrue.

The commission plans to split into three-member groups for hearings across Canada next month.

Muldoon—N. Zealand's Lynchpin

AUCKLAND (CP) — New Zealand politics today are centred on the anatomy of Muldoonism.

Muldoonism? Never heard of it?

Nor had anyone even in New Zealand until a few years ago, but today everyone in the country is for or against it—there are no neutrals.

The creator of Muldoonism is Finance Minister Robert David Muldoon.

Now aged 50, he has been in the Cabinet only four years, but has already established himself as possibly the most controversial figure in New Zealand politics for a generation.

YOUNG TURK

A public accountant by profession, he entered Parliament in 1960 and soon made a mark as one of the young turks of the ruling National party. On appointment to cabinet he also quickly won regard as a minister who did his homework.

But it has been only in the last couple of years, since it became obvious that he was one of the two candidates to succeed Sir Keith Holyoake as National party leader and perhaps prime minister, that Muldoonism has really come to the fore as a philosophy of government.

One definition would be that Muldoonism involves a tough, hard-hitting, uncompromising, right-wing line, with attack seen as the best form of defence.

GIVES NO QUARTER

Its supporters say it gives no quarter to those seeking to undermine society, and favors frankness in government—taking the public into confidence on lines of thinking even if it hurts.

Its opponents call it needlessly provocative, money-dominated, talkative and authoritarian.

Divisions of opinion on Muldoonism occur even within the National party. The heir apparent to 67-year-old Prime Minister Sir Keith Holyoake, is deputy prime minister J. R. Marshall, 59.

Marshall showed in the European Common Market negotiations and many others that he is an exceptionally able bargainer.

But one wing of the party favors Muldoon's more forceful style as the policy most likely to win a further term of office for the Nationals, who have already held power for 11 years and face another election in 1972.

APPEAL TO GREED

Labor party leader Norman E. Kirk, the Opposition leader, says Muldoonism embodies "unabashed, right-wing conservative attitudes."

"As motivation, Mr. Muldoon provides 'incentives' which are substantially an appeal to greed. . . .

"There is a voracious hunger for publicity. The volume of words sends listeners reeling, punchdrunk and bewildered.

"These are not the politics of consensus but of dictation and, to a degree, of intimidation."

Many see Muldoon as a potential saviour from what they consider are subversive trends which theaten the country. He is the man of the hour in time of need, they declare.

Muldoon himself says he takes essentially a pragmatic line and that "isms are not suitable for New Zealand." It is desirable, he says, to bring out the facts as soon as possible and display them to the public gaze.

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1971 —PAGE 17

—Bill Halkett photos

ARMY PERSONNEL FROM ACROSS CANADA came to the aid of the municipality of Saanich today, lending a hand in its beautification of Colquitz Creek. Seventeen soldiers, undergoing basic demolition training at the navy's diving unit, blew up a 25-foot retaining wall in the creek that was once used as a dam. Led by CPO William Allen they first constructed a blast mat to avoid fragments of the concrete being hurled into the air, lay 30 ounces of dynamite, seen detonating at left, and successfully cleared the major part of the wall, at right. A second smaller charge was laid this afternoon to clean up the remainder. Unit commander Lt.-Cmdr. Art Rowse described the exercise as a happy blending of the destructive and constructive.

In 14 Well-Chosen Words, He Had No Report on Uvic

The University of Victoria senate spent 45 minutes at its meeting Wednesday night deciding to ask senate chairman Bruce Partridge for a report on university activities.

Two hours later, it took Partridge 14 words to say he had no report to make.

The issue came up when David Dunsmuir, graduate student senator, noted aloud that the report of the chairman was not included on the agenda of the meeting.

Dunsmuir said it was "extremely disturbing and extremely distasteful" for the item to be omitted from the agenda, since the report of the chairman previously was useful for information on university affairs and a good opportunity for senators to ask questions of the university president.

The result of the 45 minutes of discussion was that senate voted to include the item on the agenda for the Wednesday meeting and all future meetings, even if the only report Partridge had was that he had no report.

* * *

Even the vote on the motion by Dunsmuir caused some controversy. The vote was originally counted to be seven in favor, eight opposed and six abstaining. In this form, the motion to include the chairman's report on the agenda would have been defeated.

But Dr. Rennie Warburton asked for a recount, saying he had counted differefitly. The recount was made, and the results came up nine in favor and seven opposed. Abstentions were not recounted.

Senators were asked who had changed his vote, but none answered and Partridge said changing votes for recounts was not customary in senate tradition.

It was found, however, that Dr. S. W. Jackman's hand had not been seen in the original count, accounting for one of the extra positive votes.

* * *

Dunsmuir had earlier expressed concern over the chairman's apparent reluctance to make a report in the public session of the senate meetings in the last year.

"The chairman's report is a useful umbrella under which matters of general university interest can be discussed," he said. "Although a report that there is no report is not very soul-satisfying it is at least an opportunity for discussion."

Dr. Bryan Farrell agreed with Dunsmuir that the chairman's report can be a valuable vehicle for reporting on the university, and that items which members of senate may consider trivial can be of utmost importance to the general public.

Partridge did not discount the possibility of future reports to senate, but he felt it "silly" to delay public announcements until the monthly senate meetings.

When the time for the report from the chair came up, Partridge said: "The chair is not prepared to make a report in this session of senate."

There was provision on the agenda for him to make a report in the closed session of the senate meeting.

World-Wide Talkfest

Area members of the Boy Scout and Girl Guide movements will chat by short-wave radio with similar groups around the world this weekend, courtesy of the Victoria Short Wave Club.

The occasion, the 14th annual Jamboree on the air, will see Club members set up a portable radio station for Cubs, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Rovers and Venturers at the Sidney Scout Hall.

Gov't Slammed On Pay Scales

Delegates to the annual convention of the B.C. Government Employees' Union voted today to censure the government "for its tight-fisted wage policies" and indifference it has shown its employees.

The motion was passed amid wide applause after union treasurer Nancy Hamilton said many hundreds of government employees are "so poorly paid that they would be better off on welfare."

Close to 260 delegates from branches of the 16,000-member union are attending the convention which began this morning in the Empress Hotel.

Mrs. Hamilton referred to the increase in welfare rates recommended recently by a provincial appeal board.

WELFARE BETTER

The appeal involved Mrs. Toni Cowlishaw of Vancouver, who said she was unable to maintain a minimum standard of living for herself and her six children on $341 a month on welfare. The board recommended $491 a month.

"I'm not standing up here to criticize the board's decision," she told delegates.

"It may well be that even $491 a month isn't enough to support a woman trying to raise six children on her own. And I'm not here to criticize the concept of social welfare in any way.

"My purpose is to emphasize to this convention that the appeal board's decision makes it clear once again that many hundreds of the employees of the government of B.C. are so poorly paid that they would be better off on welfare.

She said the research department of the B.C. Government Employees Union hasn't had enough time to complete a survey of the numbers of provincial employees who are supporting five or six dependents on a take-home salary of $491 a month.

"But we do know this much," she said. "There are about 8,000 employees of the B.C. government who have less than $491 a month left after income tax, medical premiums and other deductions are subtracted from their gross monthly salary."

She said there are 77 job categories in the B.C. government with a gross salary of less than $590 a month.

Not all of these persons are supporting five or six dependents, she said, but many are supporting large families.

"It is outrageous that the B.C. government comes out every year with a throne speech which says that this province has a body of government employees second to none anywhere in terms of their dedication and competence, and then a few weeks later comes out with a budget that holds the salaries of many of them below the welfare line," she said.

BRAGGING

"It' is outrageous for the B.C. government to keep so many of its employees living in near poverty while it continues to finish each fiscal year with a substantial surplus of revenue and brags about it."

Convention delegates instructed the union's executive to determine as precisely as possible how many provincial employees "are in a plight similar to that of Mrs. Cowlishaw" and to place this information before the Civil Service Commission, government and the public.

Academic Planning Falls Short

Lack of over-all academic planning at the University of Victoria was the cause of considerable concern at Wednesday night's meeting of the Uvic senate.

Several senators said the job being done by the senate academic planning committee is not good enough, and is causing the university's campus planning committee to take too much of the load in decision-making.

Dean A. R. Fontaine of the faculty of graduate studies said a large part of the problem is the university's lack of a full-time administrator who could keep up on the inflow of information from planners and requests from university departments.

The academic planning committee, he said, is too large and cumbersome a body to do any effective work the way the planning system is currently set up.

Fontaine has been chairman of the academic planning committee the past several months and said the job is too much for a person who already has other responsibilities. What is needed is a professional who can provide leadership and co-ordination in the field of planning, he said.

Dr. Beattie McLean said planners at the university should be prepared to answer the requests of the public, who want to know about possible nursing schools, law schools and other facilities.

The subject was referred to the Uvic administration, which will study the problem and recommend steps to provide a better planning facility for the campus.

Professors Must 'Show Their Wares'

University of Victoria faculty members who in the future are promoted to the rank of professor will be invited to give a public lecture as an initiation project.

The Uvic senate made this recommendation Wednesday night in keeping with a tradition carried on at some North American universities — that of the newly-promoted professor "showing his wares" to his colleagues and the public.

The suggestion came from Dr. S. W. Jackman, who said the presentations should be made within a year of the promotion of the faculty member.

Dr. Alexander Kirk and Dr. David Chabassol, both recently promoted to professors, voted against the motion. The measure will not affect them however, since it will come into effect after June 30, 1972.

Longer Work Day Offered

The B.C. Hospital Employees Union has offered to lengthen members' work day in a new contract while seeking an over-all reduction in the work week.

Union spokesman Bill Rolfe said from Vancouver today the 7½-hour shift in hospitals operating 24 hours a day has proved unworkable. In bargaining talks which have just begun the union is offering to lengthen the work day to 8 hours while shortening the work week from 37½ to 36 hours.

In effect this would be the equivalent of a 4½-day work week but the union proposes the half-day a week be banked to be taken every other week.

89% WOMEN

The BCHEU represents 10,000 employees in most B.C. hospitals, 80 per cent of them women. Members include ward maids, practical nurses, orderlies, laboratory technicians in most hospitals, maintenance and crafts men.

It does not represent registered nurses who have their own association.

The union has about 2,500 members on Vancouver Island, including the majority of staff at St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee Hospitals, Queen Aexandra Solarium, Mt. St. Mary's Hospital and The Priory, an extended care hospital at Colwood.

TALKS BREAK OFF

Rolfe said the union is applying today for a mediation officer after the first meeting with the B.C. Hospitals' Association negotiating committee Tuesday. The association bargains for 73 hospitals in B.C.

Talks broke off after three hours when the employers suggested an adjournment to Nov. 9.

Duncan Bradford, hospital association executive director, said it was a little premature to bring a third party into talks, adding his association needs the extra time to make a "responsible evaluation" of union demands.

Bradford said the union has proposed 130 contract changes which will increase annual hospital costs by 30 per cent or $27 million. The demands were received 10 days ago.

The current contract expires Dec. 31. The union is asking for a 25 per cent wage increase over two years in a pay settlement which would also establish a base rate of $500 a month.

'End of the Road' On Smoke Abatement

NELSON
. . . no conflict

Greater Victoria can expect no decrease in air pollution from the B.C. Forest Products mill on Gorge Road, according to Dr. Jack Fisher, the firm's manager of research and development.

"We've gone to the end of the road, so to speak, as far as combustion is concerned."

The crux of the problem, according to Fisher, is economics. The BCFP mill burns its wood wastes to generate power for its operation as well as to dispose of those wastes.

No other power source and waste disposal system would be feasible, he told members of the Society for the Prevention of Environmental Collapse Wednesday evening, and he added "I don't see any way a wood industry of our type can burn these wastes . . . without the white smoke."

Fisher and BCFP Victoria general manager Walter Nelson appeared at a meeting attended by about 20 SPEC members to discuss the issue of air pollution from the mill operation.

Nelson told the meeting he sees no conflict between "the aims of this association (SPEC) and our company," and detailed smoke abatement moves taken by the firm to date which he said have cost almost $1 million.

* * *

These moves included the elimination of beehive waste burners (Nelson pointed out that BCFP was the first such operation in the province to take this step), installation of a cinder collector which virtually eliminated carbon char from the smoke emitted, the use of photoelectric and television monitoring devices to maintain a check on quality of emissions, selective fuel use and most recently the installation of a mechanical bark remover to improve the burning quality of the fuel.

According to Fisher the white smoke which makes up the largest part of BCFP air pollution is 70 to 85 per cent common salt, and the remainder is a combination of "normal elements."

He said sulphur compounds are almost nonexistent in the mill's smoke discharge.

The city's air pollution bylaw, to which the company conforms according to the smoke inspector, limits the amount of sulphur gases emitted from a stack to 2,000 parts per million.

The bylaw also specifies that emissions must be kept lighter than a certain color (No. 2 on the Ringelmann Chart) except when for six minutes each hour the operation is allowed to do its worst for the purpose of cleaning the furnaces.

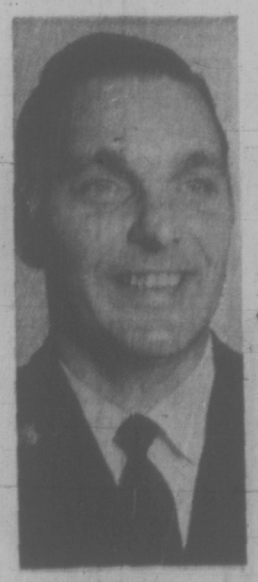
BCFP conforms.

Trucker Killed

A driver was killed this morning when his truck slammed into a power pole in the 4600 block Blenkinsop Road, Saanich police said.

He was identified as Joseph Spark, 55, of 921 Falaise Crescent.

The accident occurred about 9:30 a.m.



PETERSON
. . . unanimous choice

New Saanich Chief Determined To Improve Policemen's Image

The man who will become the new Saanich police chief Jan. 1 says he is "determined" to maintain the good police image in Saanich, and also to try to improve national public attitudes towards the police.

Bob Peterson, 41, whose appointment was announced Wednesday by Mayor Hugh Curtis, said in an interview: "I'm concerned about the image of police officers across the country. I'm determined, in whatever way I can, to attempt to change that."

Curtis said Peterson was the unanimous choice of the three-member Saanich police commission to replace retiring chief Bert Pearson.

"No one else was approached, discussed, considered or referred to. We asked for the chief's recommendation and it was Peterson."

Pearson said he told the commission he "didn't know where in Canada they would go to find anyone who would be better qualified."

Born in Duncan, the son of a millwright, Peterson followed his father into the sawmilling industry after graduating from Mount Douglas high school in 1948.

His decision to enter public service in 1953 was prompted partly by his father's death in a 1950 sawmill accident.

After spending 10 years as a constable he was promoted to acting corporal Nov. 19, 1963, to sergeant June 1, 1964, to inspector Jan. 1, 1968, and to deputy Oct. 1 of the same year. He was one of the first two inspectors named in Saanich.

Last year at a Canadian Police College course Peterson was chosen valedictorian. Curtis said this was an "outstanding achievement" which "gave Saanich a pretty clear idea of the calibre of men we had available."

Curtis said the outgoing chief had served Saanich well since the late 1930s and he had seen "the absolute transformation of the municipality from a quiet, rural district to a complex, active and very large part of a metropolitan area."

He said Pearson had met the challenge and "come through with flying colors."

New Glow in Pittsburgh Kindled by Kiddie Corps

PITTSBURGH (AP) — There was a brand new glow in Pittsburgh Pirates for today's fifth World Series game against Baltimore Orioles and it was put there by a pair of rosey-cheeked youngsters who began the most important game of their lives kidding each other in the bullpen.

Bruce Kison pitched 6 1-3 innings of one-hit relief ball and Milt May, swinging for his buddy, stroked the pinch single that drove in the winning run as the Pirates trimmed the Orioles 4-3 Wednesday in the first World Series game ever played at night.

Their heroics tied the series at two victories apiece and set up today's pivotal fifth game, with the Orioles sending first game winner Dave McNally against Pittsburgh's Nelson Briles. The game starts at 1 p.m. EDT.

It would be tough for the Birds and Bucs to match the dramatic show that the pulsating fourth game provided.

DRAFTED TOGETHER

And in the end, the issue was decided by two 21-year-old rookies who hang together just the way you might expect they would.

"He's my best friend on the club," said Kison, grinning at May. "We were both drafted together in 1968 and we played together in the rookie league."

They were a long way from those early professionals days when Kison marched out of the bullpen in the first inning Wednesday night. The Orioles had jumped Pirate starter Luke Walker for three quick runs and it was up to the slim youngster to see that things didn't get worse.

Only a few minutes before he went into the game, Kison was joking with May in the bullpen.

"He was trying to sing the Star Spangled Banner," smiled Kison, "and it was terrible. I sort of glared at him . . . gave him a dirty look for the way he was singing."

HITS ARE SCARCE

Kison got the Pirates out of the first inning without further damage. Then Pittsburgh bounced off the deck with a pair of runs in the bottom of the first on doubles by Willie Stargell and Al Oliver—neither of whom had produced much in the series up to that point.

Stargell's run-batted-in was his first in post-season play and Oliver was 1-for-10 until he delivered.

The two runs left the Pirates one down and Kison set about the mission of keeping it that way.

In the third, Richie Hebner singled and came along on hits by Roberto Clemente and Oliver. That tied it at 3-3 but the Bucs thought they should have had more.

On the pitch before his single, Clemente had cracked a line drive over the yellow home run line that circles the outfield fence. But Clemente's shot was waved foul by right field umpire John Rice, setting off a long protest.

But the single stood and so did the 3-3 tie despite Pirate threats that left the bases loaded in both the fifth and sixth innings.

"I knew," said Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh, "that sooner or later, we'd push one of those runs across."

With one out in the seventh, Bob Robertson singled and moved up on Manny Sanguillen's hit. Here Murtaugh went to his bench with Vic Davillo swinging for Jackie Hernandez and lofting a fly ball to left centre.

Paul Blair reached the ball salvaged an out anyway when Sanguillen got trapped between bases.

That left runners at first and third with two out and now Murtaugh went to May to swing for Kison.

May got a base hit to right that delivered the deciding run.

Armed with the lead, Murtaugh turned the wrapup job over to Dave Giusti, whom he calls "The best reliever in baseball." Giusti who had 30 saves during the regular season and three more in the National League Playoffs, mowed the last six Orioles down in order to preserve the victory.

Calgary Manages Overtime Escape

By ERNIE FEDORUK

You had to figure the Western Canada Hockey League bubble was going to break. It did, but Calgary Centennials' 5-4 overtime victory Wednesday over Victoria didn't pain the Cougars quite as much as the manner in which they allowed it to happen.

The surprising Cougars had a third straight victory virtually in the bag at Memorial Arena.

They led 4-2 with less than six minutes to play, then 4-3 with 2½ minutes remaining.

It popped, for sure, at 4:37 of sudden-death overtime when winger Russ Weichnick scored a power-play goal to provide Calgary with its third straight victory and undisputed possession of first place in the Western Division.

It was the first loss for Cougars, who now take to the road for introductions to other league centres. Cougars play in Edmonton on Friday, move to Medicine Hat on Saturday and wrap up the three-game hop Sunday in Swift Current.

Wednesday's rude awakening might indicate to the Cougars that there still is work to be done. Their mistakes against Calgary were more obvious than in either of Cougars' first two successes.

It is to their credit that they tried as hard as ever, and perhaps deserved a draw with Centennials. Playing before 1,789 customers, the Cats out-shot Centennials 35-26.

But the mistakes, particularly two late in the third period that allowed Calgary to fashion its comeback, were costly.

TWO FOR STRUCH

Centre Tim Struch's second goal of the night earlier in the session staked Cougars to their 4-2 lead. Mike Rogers got that one back at 14:05 with a quick, screened slapshot that was allowed when Cougar's Dave Okrainec miscued on a clearing attempt.

The crusher was Calgary's tying goal at 17:35, coming seconds after the Centennials were forced to kill off a minor penalty. Murray Kennett, a standout on Victoria's defence for most of the night, allowed the puck to spring loose from his control.

It darted towards a pileup of players in front of Victoria goalie Dave Maynard, then rookie Derek Black took a quick slap shot. It went in, and the teams forced the league's fifth sudden-death overtime session in 15 games.

A dubious hooking call against Victoria's Gary Donaldson opened the door for Calgary's winning goal.

DISASTROUS SLIP

Kennett, most unfortunately for Cougars, stumbled on some debris on the ice at the Victoria blueline. That allowed Calgary to roll into the Victoria zone on a three-on-one break, and Weichnick made no mistake with a blazing shot.

Rookie Danny Gare and starry Brian Walker counted Calgary's first two goals while Ervie Miller and Greg Robinson backed up Struch's two-goal performance. Struch now has counted five goals in three games for Cougars.

Victoria, as in each of the first two games, again drew the lion's share in penalties, but it was a relatively-tame affair. Referee Bunker Hill tagged Cougars with six minors, Calgary with five.

Walker counted his goal on a perfectly set-up power play while Miller and Robinson both connected for Victoria's first two goals while enjoying a man advantage.

The Cougars didn't skate with the authority they showed in the first two games, but exhibited some strong forechecking that caused the Centennials plenty of problems.

That included the high-scoring Calgary line of Walker, Doug Horbul and Ron Homeniuke.

Slow-Starting Bruins Begin to Make Noises

By The Canadian Press

If coach Punch Imlach is wise, he'll have his Buffalo Sabres honed to a keen edge for tonight's National Hockey League game in Boston.

The Bruins have begun to growl after a distressing start in the 1970-71 season. They turned vicious Wednesday and clawed New York Rangers 6-1 right on the Blueshirts' home ice.

Boston's star centre Phil Esposito got the opener, scoring on a power play in the early minutes of the game.

The Rangers, who tied an NHL record last year by losing only twice at home, tried to beat back the Bruins, but scored only once, late in the second period.

Rod Gilbert was the marksman, collecting his 500th career point, but Boston goalie Ed Johnston stopped 34 other shots.

GIACOMIN STOPS 35

Ed Giacomin also handled 35 shots in the New York net, but missed those fired by Ed Westfall, Mike Walton, Fred Stanfield and Derek Sanderson. Westfall accounted for two of the Boston goals.

In other games Wednesday, Chicago Black Hawks blanked St. Louis Blues 1-0, Pittsburgh Penguins defeated Los Angeles Kings 4-1 and Philadelphia Flyers edged California Golden Seals 5-4.

Cliff Koroll's goal at 18:43 of the second period was the only one the Hawks were able to register against the Blues, but it was good for two points for the team.

His goal took a little of the gloss off a brilliant performance by rookie goalie Peter McDuffe, who made 34 saves in his NHL debut.

Chicago's Keith Magnuson and St. Louis' George Morrison hooked up in a fight that enlivened the game in the second period, but both escaped with five minute penalties. Tony Esposito kicked out 18 shots gaining the shutout.

In Oakland, Gary Dornhoefer scooped Jean-Guy Gendron's rebound over goalie Gary Kurt to give the Flyers their victory.

Norm Ferguson scored three goals in a losing cause for the downtrodden Seals. Bobby Sheehan got the other one. It was the second time in his NHL career that Ferguson netted three goals in a game.

Serge Bernier, Bobby Clarke, Jimmy Johnson and Simon Nolet were Flyers' other marksmen.

Veteran Ken Schinkel's goal 56 seconds after the game opened put the Penguins into orbit. Rene Robert made it 2-0 before Billy Fleet connected for the Kings. Jean Pronovost and Greg Polis scored insurance goals for Pittsburgh.

Hornets Share Lead After Tripping Bays

Saanich Hornets pulled off an upset victory at Royal Athletic Park Wednesday night, defeating Oak Bay Invaders 22-12 to grab a share of first place in the Vancouver Island Bantam Football League.

Hornets headed into Wednesday's game in third place, two points behind the previously-unbeaten Invaders.

Gord Mitchell, Chris Grew and Jamie Attenborough scored a touchdown each and Dave Sarsiat kicked three converts and one single for the Hornets. John Smith and Iain Benson replied with majors for Oak Bay.

Knights of Columbus got two touchdowns from Denny St. Pierre en route to their first win of the season — an 18-6 decision over Juan de Fuca Tigers. The loss dropped Tigers into a tie with Knights in the league basement.

Andy McKuck scored the other Knights' touchdown, while Del Liddicoat chalked up the Tigers' only major.

Minsky Accepts Race Invitation

LAUREL, Md. (CP) — Windfields Farm's Minsky, a full brother to the mighty Nijinsky, accepted an invitation Wednesday to represent Canada in the $150,000 Washington International at Laurel Race Course Oct. 25.

The three-year-old son of Northern Dancer was the top two-year-old in Ireland in 1970 and has won three stakes this year — two in England and one in Canada. He is trained by Sydney Watters and will be ridden by the leading North American rider of 1970, Sandy Hawley of Oshawa, Ont.

Lions Sign Replacement For Evenson

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League today announced the signing of Dick Lyons, a 195-pound fullback cut this year by New Orleans Saints of the National Football League.

He was signed as a temporary replacement for regular B.C. fullback Jim Evenson, who suffered stretched knee ligaments in a game Monday in Hamilton. Evenson's leg will be in a cast for 10 days and he isn't expected back in the lineup until B.C.'s final league game, Oct. 30 against Calgary.

The Lions have also lost tight end Dave Denny for the rest of the season. He suffered an ankle injury which will require surgery.

Canadian Paul Hendershot, a 175-pound defensive halfback, has been brought in for a five-day trial.

The Lions, tied with Winnipeg for third place in the Western Conference, meet Edmonton Eskimos Saturday night and then go against Saskatchewan the following weekend.

'Open' Soccer Final Arranged

TORONTO (CP) — Vancouver Eintracht will meet Toronto Croatia here Sunday afternoon to decide the first Canadian open soccer champion.

The Vancouver team won the Canadian amateur title when it beat Windsor Maple Leafs.

Croatia won the championship of the National Soccer League which embraces 14 Ontario teams.

Ex-Cat Helps Flin Flon Snap Losing Streak

MEDICINE HAT — Ron Andruff isn't wasting any time in earning his spurs with Flin Flon Bombers of the Western Canada Hockey League.

Traded to the Bombers by Victoria Cougars, the rugged winger got the call for regular action after the defending Eastern Division champions lost their first three games of the season.

Andruff scored his second and third goals in two games Wednesday as the Bombers tripped Medicine Hat Tigers 7-5 to snap a four-game losing streak.

Veteran Blaine Stoughton also scored twice while Norm Michell, Al Hillier and Rod Loynachan counted singles. Veteran Jeff Ablett, with two, Tom Lysiak, Bill Christie and Stan Weir scored for Jack Shupe's Tigers, who trailed 6-2 midway through the third period then came to life and scored three goals in a span of 2½ minutes.

Referee Joe Cassidy assessed 17 penalties, 10 to the Bombers. Wade Anderson of Medicine Hat and Doug Hicks of Flin Flon each received a major for a third-period fight.

Bulldog Brown Defends Title

HENNING, LUKOWICH TOPS . . . BRUINS HIGHLY RATED

New Westminster Presented Ready-Made Club

(Sixth of a Series)
By ERNIE FEDORUK

It's no longer a secret. Ernie (Punch) McLean, they say, has more good hockey players hiding behind Prairie granaries and grain elevators than anyone else in Western Canada.

Some will remain hidden because this year he needed only to fill in "a couple of spots" before introducing New Westminster Bruins as a leading contender for Western Canada Hockey League honors.

McLean transferred his Bruin franchise from Estevan to New Westminster and, along with that, a "ready-made club" that already is being touted as one to beat.

Early respect shows despite the graduation of seven 1970-71 regulars, including draft choices Ed Sidebottom, Dave Bonter, Glen Irwin and Yvon Bilodeau. Gone, too, are Bob Miller, the Bruins' No. 2 pointgetter in Estevan, and goaltender Grant Green, last year's shutout leader with five.

But Bruins still have all-star centre Lorne Henning, No. 3 in scoring last season with 64 goals and 66 assists, and all-star right winger Bernie Lukowich.

Henning is Mr. Big. He scored "only" 44 goals in his rookie campaign, blasted in 50 in his second season, and added the 64 last season. If the progression chart is right, he should reach the 70-goal level this season.

McLean figures his big line of Henning, Lukowich (a 36-goal scorer last season) and rookie left winger Emile Demoissac could produce "at least 150 goals."

The Bruins are blessed with exceptional strength at centre. In addition to Henning, Ken Ireland returns after a 17-42 season and McLean has been very impressed with rookie Vic Mercredi, who finished third in the British Columbia Junior League scoring parade while toiling with Penticton Broncos last season.

B.C.'s all-star centre, Mercredi missed almost a month of action because of a broken wrist.

Another notable acquisition from the BCJHL is Bob Craig of Vernon, a rugged performer who can play either defence or wing. Craig has been used on defence in pre-season play to add muscle to a rearguard lineup which includes holdovers Bob Stumpf and Barry Smith.

McLean's goaltending worries were eased considerably when he acquired ex-Edmonton Oil King Brian Newbert in a trade with Victoria Cougars.

Of course, if Punch isn't happy with what appears to be a "set" team, he can always reach in and see what comes out from behind the granary.

First in the Eastern Division last season but upset in the semi-final round by Winnipeg Jets, Bruins again are being considered a first-place club in the Western Division.

Though bracketed in a division with Edmonton and Calgary Centennials, Bruins may find a welcome advantage in playing their extra games of an unbalanced schedule against two new expansion entries — Victoria and Vancouver Nats.

Bruins haven't missed the playoffs since 1960 and it is highly unlikely the string will snap this season.

NEXT: Swift Current Broncos.

OUTDOOR SCENE

By Barry M. Thornton

Logging, not hunting, is the most important long-term cause of change for Vancouver Island blacktail deer populations states Ian Smith, the regional wildlife biologist.

In a recent report on deer herds, Smith offers evidence that hunting does not have any significant effect on the deer populations.

The report, co-authored by G. W. "Bud" Smith, wildlife technician with the fish and wildlife branch, is based upon information gathered during road checks throughout past deer hunting seasons with special emphasis placed on opening weekend figures.

Interviewed on the report, Ian Smith stressed that winter range is the critical limiting factor for most big game species today. In historic times on Vancouver Island however, the limiting factor was summer range due to the denseness of vegetation. Logging produced the summer range, allowing a considerable increase in the deer herds. Today, however, logging has produced an over-abundance of summer range while whittling into the now-critical winter range.

●

Between 1963 and 1965 the Northwest Bay area reached that state where excess summer range resulting from logging produced a steady depression in that deer herd. Areas north of Campbell River are just reaching the point of excess in summer range where, if logging continues we can expect the deer population to drop.

A chart in the report shows changes in hunter success rates during the opening weekends. Smith believes that the success rates will change with certain weather conditions. For example, hunting fortunes will be much greater should the opening weekend be rainy. Hot, dry weather, on the other hand, will depress the success rate.

Altered methods at game checks have also changed the success rate. Prior to 1967, the number of deer taken was simply divided by the number of hunters, without reference to whether or not the hunt was a one-day trip. Since 1967, success rates have been calculated by dividing the number of hunters by the number of hunter-days.

"The pattern that emerges for Vancouver Island as a whole," to quote Smith, "reflects the relatively large effect that habitat changes (including the effects of logging and winter weather) can have upon the herd, and the relative unimportance of hunting in producing significant changes in deer densities."

●

"During the period that road checks have been operating on the Island, the most dramatic improvement in habitat has occured in the northern portion of the Island, where logging has created vast amounts of excellent deer summer range. This improvement in habitat appears to be reflected clearly in the improved hunter success recorded at Campbell River.

"The most dramatic deterioration in habitat has occured at Northwest Bay, where logging has since the mid-1960's resulted in the removal of virtually all the timber patches in which the deer took shelter during critical periods of adverse weather. Additionally, the reforestation of logged-over areas has resulted in the deterioration of such areas as summer range, further stressing the deer herd. These adverse habitat changes appear to have been reflected in the decreased hunter success rates recorded at the Northwest Bay game checks since 1963.

"The effects of winter weather are also evident from the hunter success rates. Over the Island as a whole, the most severe winters since the mid-1950s occured in 1964-65 and 1968-69. Additionally, the 1970-71 winter was severe in some portions of the east coast of the Island. With only one exception, hunter success rates dropped following these first two severe winters."

A second indication of the effects on the habitat is shown in the second section of the report through the age-class structure of the herd as indicated by jaw-bone samples taken at check points.

Of particular interest, explains Smith, "are changes within the oldest and youngest age groups, since the proportion of old animals in the population may be expected to decline if over-harvest is occuring, and since the proportion of young animals tends to reflect the severity of winter weather."

Statistics of the oldest group, those deer over 4.5 years of age, show a steady increase over the period 1962-69, indicating "that over-harvest is not occuring," says Smith.

Noteworthy was a sharp drop in the proportion of yearlings following the severe 1968-69 winter. The 1970 point, however, showed an excellent recovery. Smith states that this recovery appears to continue this year according to opening weekend checks.

BOWLER OF WEEK

First winners to be named in the ninth annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week contest are Jessie Holding (above) and Dave Anlear, who paced tenpin divisions during opening week of competition. Dave toppled pins for spectacular 230-236-206—672 series in Friday Niters League at Mayfair Lanes to top male tenpinners while Jessie rattled maples for 234-199-181—614 series in Ladies Classic League at same house to overshadow distaff keglers. Fivepinners rolling in regular leagues on the southern portion of Vancouver Island also compete in the 26-week competition.

Tie Helps Cubs To Move Ahead

Victoria Junior Cubs took over sole possession of first place in the Vancouver Island Hockey League on Wednesday despite settling for a 2-2 tie with Butler Brothers in one of two league games at Esquimalt Sports Centre.

In the other game, University of Victoria Norsemen rallied for two goals in the third period to snap a 2-2 deadlock and defeat CFB Esquimalt Buccaneers, 4-2.

Cubs held a 2-0 advantage going into the third period after goals by Mark Purdy in the first period and Earl O'Hara in the second.

Bill Westover notched the first Butler goal as an extra-sharp finish paid off. Ted Sarkissian tied the score at 18:45.

Norsemen collected their first victory of the season by outgunning the Buccaneers 31-16 overall and 12-4 in the third frame.

Brent Kaufmann led Norsemen with two goals while singles were added by Pierre Bergeron and Tom Kornyback.

Vern Neilson and Pete Okopski scored for Buccaneers in the first period.

Laver, Emerson Win Net Matches

COLOGNE, Germany (AP) — Australians Rod Laver and Roy Emerson won their matches in the 17th round of the world professional tennis championships Wednesday.

Laver ousted fellow Australian Bill Bowrey, 6-2, 6-4, while Emerson eliminated Allan Stone, also of Australia, 6-2, 7-6.

In other matches, Mark Cox of Britain defeated Australia's John Alexander, 7-6, 6-3, and Philip Dent of Australia defeated countryman Dick Crealy, 7-5, 6-4.

Cox Off Pace In Pro Test

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Lanny Watkins of Winston-Salem, N.C., the 1970 U.S. Amateur champion, shot a one-under-par 71 Wednesday for a three-day total of 210, leading the qualifying field in the Approved Tournament Players' School.

Seventy-five players started this 108-hole tournament Monday and 72 are still playing.

Watkins, a Wake Forest College player, was six under par for his three rounds over the par-72, 7,000-yard PGA National Golf Club course.

Steve Melnyk of Jacksonville, Fla., who won the U.S. Amateur in 1969 and the British Amateur this year, had a 70 for a 216 that put him in a tie for fifth place at the halfway mark of the tournament.

Robert Cox of Richmond, B.C., was well off the pace with a 230 total after shooting his best round, a 76, for the day.

Claremont Off On Right Foot

Stiff winds and sunny skies helper kick off the Victoria Senior High School Rugby League season Wednesday as defending champion Claremont, Victoria High Titans, and Mt. Douglas recorded opening victories.

The tricky gusts played a major role in each of the games.

Playing with the wind in the first half, Claremont grabbed an 8-0 lead and held off threats by Oak Bay to emerge with a 13-7 win.

Ken McRae scored two trys for Claremont and Tim Lott converted one of them. Lott also kicked a penalty goal. Oak Bay's points were scored on a try by Ian Grant and a penalty goal by Joe Whipple.

Trailing 4-10 at half time, Vic High used the wind to advantage in the second half to defeat Esquimalt 16-10. Stand-off-half Joe Stephenson scored all 12 points for the winners in the second half on a try, a conversion and two penalty goals. Norm Quinn scored a try for Vic High in the first half.

CALGARY (CP) — Reggie Holms, an import who plays either as an offensive or defensive back, has been put on a five-trial by Calgary Stampeders of the Western Football Conference.

England, Wales Win But Scots, Irish Fail

By REUTER

England, former world soccer champions, virtually made certain of a place among the last eight in next year's European championships Wednesday with a 3-2 win over Switzerland in Basel.

But the Swiss, who until meeting England in their Group Three match had gained maximum points from their previous four games, went down only to an own goal by Weibel in the 77th minute.

Hurst and Chivers were the other scorers for England. Jean-dupeaux and Kuenzli replied for Switzerland.

Wales by a 3-0 Group One victory over Finland in Swansea, Wales, also kept alive their chance of joining England in the quarter-finals, although to do so they have to beat Czechoslovakia and Rumania away.

Scotland had no chance of qualifying but they checked Portugal's chances in Group Five by beating the visitors, 2-1. Belgium has now only to draw one of their two remaining matches to stay ahead and go into the last eight.

Northern Ireland's 1-1 draw against the Soviet Union in Belfast was not good enough to get them any further in the competition and failed to halt their opponents progress into the next stage.

Tribe Seeks A New Chief

HOUSTON (AP) — Cleveland Indians announced Wednesday night that Johnny Lipon's contract as interim manager would not be renewed for the 1972 season. He replaced manager Alvin Dark midway through the season just ended.

Lipon said at his home here that Cleveland's president and general manager, Gabe Paul, told him Wednesday about the decision. He also confirmed that he had been offered another job in the organization.

"As of now I don't know," he said of the offer. "I want to sleep on it a couple of days."

Lipon took over as field boss of the Indians July 30. The Indians finished last in the American League's East Division this season with a 60-102 record.

Mazda 1600 sedan. $2469.*
And you thought economy meant compromise.

It's the things you don't have to give up that make the Mazda 1600 c.c. Sedan. Like driving. You can go all day without aching in your bones. Or in your pocketbook.

The Mazda 1600 is the most comfortable car in the class. It has a longer wheelbase. A wider stance. And the finest suspension system at any price.

For performance, the overhead cam piston engine is tough and efficient. You can climb mountains and cross prairies without strain. And you'll get top mileage on regular gas.

You don't have to give up on the interior. The Mazda 1600 is luxurious and roomy. With body contoured bucket seats. Wall-to-wall carpeting. Padded dash and fine instrumentation. And a back seat with plenty of legroom.

And unlike a lot of imports the Mazda 1600 Sedan doesn't give up on the outside. It's graceful with lines that flow instead of angles that jar. So it doesn't look like you're driving a bargain.

You could buy a lot of little cars for less. If you don't mind a lot of little compromises. Or you could buy a Mazda 1600 Sedan.

WELL-KNOWN CITY BOWLER DEAD AT 56

Funeral services were held Wednesday for one of Victoria's better-known fivepin bowlers, Cy Waters, who died suddenly Saturday at the age of 56.

He is survived by his wife, Mary, sons Jack and Clifford, and daughters, Mrs. Marylou Starkey, Mrs. Shirley Hunt and Mrs. Dorothy Brown.

OVER $10 REGISTRATION FEE

Kamloops to Defy Suspension

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Dennis Coates, president of the B.C. Junior Hockey League, said Wednesday that he has ordered Kamloops Rockets to fulfil all league commitments despite the fact the Rockets have been suspended by the B.C. Amateur Hockey Association.

The suspension was handed out by Ivan Temple of Victoria, BCAHA secretary-treasurer, for failure to pay a $10 registration fee and for not having players registered on time.

But Coates said he does not go along with the suspension because the league has never complied with the rule which states that all players must be registered with the BCAHA before playing exhibition and league games.

He said the failure to pay the $10 registration fee was probably just an oversight by the Rockets.

Coates said the league chooses to set it own signing deadline because of the league's high cost of operation.

"Our deadline has always been Nov. 1 and I see no reason why it must be changed now."

He added: "We are operating on an annual budget of nearly $500,000. We pay our own bills and when they start paying our bills for us, we'll go along with their rule."

Coates said it was his understanding that the suspension included the entire roster, the team's coach, Joe Tennant, and general-manager Jack Tennant.

Ironically, Coates was manager of the Rockets two years ago when they were suspended for similar reasons. That suspension was later lifted.

The Rockets are scheduled to meet Penticton Broncos in Kamloops Saturday and Coates said that the game will be played.

Sports Bodies Seek Financial Aid for Olympic-Bound Athletes

OTTAWA (CP) — A national conference on 1976 Olympics preparation has voted to ask for special government grants to athletes and coaches who show good chances of success in next year's Games in Munich.

Only athletes or coaches who could demonstrate that government aid would improve their Olympic performance would qualify for the money.

The proposal — which applied only to contenders for the Munich Games — was, some delegates said, outside the conference mandate, since it was convened to prepare for the 1976 Games in Montreal.

Another complaint was that direct government payments to athletes could threaten their amateur status.

The 175 representatives of amateur sports associations approved a related proposal that sports bodies themselves nominate the candidates or financial support. The money would come from the health department's fitness and amateur sport directorate.

The conference also wanted university athletic facilities opened for Olympic training.

Robert Osborne, co-chairman of the conference, told the closing meeting that sports groups must make a concerted effort to appeal to all university administrators for the free use of their gymnasiums and other facilities. He said a single letter to university presidents would not achieve success.

"Some of them may just laugh and throw it in the garbage."

Osborne, vice-president of the Canadian Olympic Association, chastised sports bodies that were without detailed plans for athletic development for the 1976 Games.

Then, to help them in their efforts, he called for "vastly increased government expenditures on sport development during the next five years."

Osborne formulated all the motions presented to the session and declared them unanimously carried, even though only about half the delegates at the meeting had actually voted on each one.

He nominated the absent Phillippe de Gaspe Beaubien as overseer of Olympic preparations. De Gaspe Beaubien, whose nomination was quickly approved, is chairman of the national advisory council on fitness and amateur sport.

Council Asked to Bend Zoning Law

Developer John Fitterer will ask Oak Bay council Monday for permission to violate the municipality's townhouse bylaw.

The council's zoning committee refused Wednesday to recommend Fitterer's plans to build 13 townhouse units on a 1.03 acre site in the 300 block on the east side of Foul Bay.

Under the bylaw only 10 units can be built on one acre of land.

At its last meeting the zoning committee had ruled that Fitterer's plans violated the bylaw, not only in the number of units, but also the lack of playground area and inadequate setback for one of the units.

When Fitterer and architect Clive Campbell appeared before the zoning committee they showed revised plans that included a playground area and the necessary setback.

Fitterer contended that it was not economically feasible to limit construction to 10 units because of the topography of the site.

Ald. Shirley Dowell noted, "This is your lot — you picked it. You knew this when you bought the lot."

Examining the revised plans, she said, "This looks more like row housing. If you can't live with 10 units an acre as far as I'm concerned that's it. I'm not prepared to change the bylaw."

Committee chairman Ald. Alan Hoey observed, "What it gets down to is that you have an economic density problem — that's the crux of the matter. We'll leave it open to council. It's up to individual members of council to express their opinion. We appreciate all the problems, we know it's not an easy site to build on.

"It will be up to council to decided whether it should be 10 or 13 units."

In other business, the committee decided to ask the municipal planner to produce details of present land use and tax revenues for the area bounded by the north sides of Granite and Milton, the west side of Elgin and the east side of Foul Bay.

Mayor Elford has asked council to consider designating the area as a development area under section 702A of the Municipal Act.

Together with the planner's report, the zoning committee will study the multiple-dwelling survey on the area, now being completed by Fred Zech, a town planning student at the University of British Columbia.

Aldermen turned down a request by C. C. Cook, 2118 Granite, that if zoned for development, the area be expanded to include the north side of Granite, from Granite House to Yale.

Hoey noted the municipality had already spent $79,000 on services for the original area and a similar amount would be needed if Cook's request was granted because the area he wanted included was on a different drainage system.

Cook owns Granite House and several other properties in the area.

The mayor, in urging that the original area be designated for development, said that section 702A gave municipal councils "very much stronger" control of development.

"If we allow the term development area to become a dirty word," she warned, "we will probably end up being the only municipality not taking advantage of this legislation."

UIC Coverage Poses Problem

Unemployment insurance for provincial government employees was called today "the single most important unresolved issue" faced by the B.C. Government Employees' Union.

Union general secretary John Fryer, in his report to the annual convention of the BCGEU being held in the Empress Hotel, said "a way must be found to protect the unemployment insurance coverage for the 6,000 of our members who presently are covered and who have been so for many years."

New federal legislation makes it mandatory this Jan. 1 for provincial governments to cover either all or none of their employees under the new unemployment insurance plan.

Under the existing legislation the B.C. government has extended unemployment insurance coverage to 6,000 temporary employees, most of them employed by the highways department, B.C. Ferries, B.C. forest service and the mental health branch.

"If the choice is made to cover all employees, many will complain that they do not feel they need this coverage since government employment is supposedly secure," Fryer said.

"If the decision is made to cover none, then 6,000 of our members who desperately need unemployment insurance coverage will lose it."

Fryer said the union's policy since 1958 has been that all government employees should be covered.

He said no decision has yet been made by the cabinet as to what action will be taken.

Ex-SS Men Sentenced

HANNOVER (AP) — A West German court sentenced six former members of Hitler's elite guard, the SS, to prison terms today ranging from 18 months to seven years for the murder of more than 3,000 Jews and Communists in occupied Latvia in 1941-42.

CRYSTAL BALLS JUST DON'T SEEM TO GRAB US

We read a good deal about advertising research and are frequently reminded of some mystical incantation—figures mysteriously projected, multiplied, divided, contorted to form a supposedly attractive story.

What ever happened to the good old how-many-copies-were-really-sold counts? That's the kind of stuff advertising rates are based on!

And it's just for that reason we have a no-nonsense, no-mystery ABC audit report of our circulation audience.

If you aren't strong on crystal balls either, just ask to see a copy of our latest report from the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A 21-year-old man was sentenced Wednesday by Judge William Ostler to 12 months in prison when he pleaded guilty to five counts of uttering worthless cheques.

Court was told that Kenneth F. Clements was sentenced in Vancouver to 18 months last July when convicted of escaping custody; false pretences and attempted false pretences.

In a higher court Wednesday morning, he was sentenced to six months consecutive to the July sentence for a drug trafficking offence in Victoria last January.

A city policeman testified that Clements wrote five worthless cheques totalling $91.54 last May 29 and June 5.

The cheques were for cash and merchandise from a local department store, two clothing shops, a music store and a sporting goods shop, the policeman said.

★ ★ ★

A 24-year-old man was charged with possession of heroin for the purposes of trafficking for the second day in a row.

John James Pilatzke, 422-A Craigflower, was charged Tuesday with a similar offence. The charge was dated Oct. 9.

Wednesday's charge was dated Oct. 12.

Ostler set no bail at the time after prosecutor John Macintyre said Pilatzke was already on $500 bail for an uttering offence and $2,500 for the first possession charge. He remanded the accused to Oct. 18.

★ ★ ★

Donald E. Raymond, of no fixed address, was sentenced to six months in prison for fraudulently obtaining lodging, food, and transportation.

He pleaded guilty Wednesday to writing a worthless cheque of $544 to pay for two tickets from Canadian Pacific Airlines Oct. 5.

A policeman said the tickets, one adult and one child, were for a flight from Victoria to Edmonton to Montreal and back to Edmonton.

The officer said when Raymond got to Edmonton he switched the tickets twice before taking a flight from the city to Calgary to Toronto and back to Edmonton. He returned to Edmonton Oct. 8.

The policeman said the airline company refused a small refund to Raymond on one of the tickets when they learned the original cheque was no good.

Earlier, Raymond had pleaded guilty to running up a bill of $46.45 for lodging and food at the Ingraham Hotel, 2915 Douglas, between Oct. 4 and Oct. 6.

Court was told that the accused was sentenced to 14 months in prison last March for false pretence offences and was paroled Sept. 24.

Ostler imposed six-month sentences concurrent on the fraud offences but consecutive with the March sentence.

★ ★ ★

Michael D. Lanning, 20, of 567 Trenor, was fined a total of $300 for two counts of theft under $50.

He earlier pleaded guilty to taking $30 from a till at the Colony Motor Inn, 2852 Douglas, about 1 a.m. Oct. 3.

He also pleaded guilty to stealing four glasses from the cocktail lounge of the motel inn. The glasses were found up his sleeves when he was apprehended.

★ ★ ★

Nadia Allen, 38, of 42 Linden, was fined $300 when she pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Ostler suspended her licence.

Court was told that the accused was observed driving on Government Street about 1 a.m. Wednesday. Her driving was erratic and she failed to stop when signalled to do so several times by a police cruiser.

She had a blood-alcohol content of .11 per cent at the time.

Caterina Silletta, 1138 Pembroke, was fined $250 when she pleaded guilty to taking a pair of $3 gloves from The Bay Oct. 12.

James G. Figler, 20, of Cobble Hill, was fined $350 by Judge E. F. M. Robinson for impaired driving. He was prohibited from driving for three months.

Commissions Cost $1.2M

OTTAWA (CP) — Royal commissions in 1970 cost the federal government $1,204,730. The sale of royal commission reports brought in $75,707.

Privy Council President Allan MacEachen, in a written reply to questions from John Gilbert (NDP—Toronto Broadview), said the 1970 costs covered preparatory work and publications by the royal commissions on bilingualism and biculturalism, pilotage, status of women, farm machinery, Indians claims, and the commission of inquiry into Montreal mail transport.

The cost of printing was $15,153.

THE WEATHER

Clearing did occur with initial area of cold air but a heavy dose of moisture has again spread cloud and showers into all regions. In the northern areas, with temperatures below freezing, snow flurries are occurring. Winds have dropped off in all regions and gale warnings have been dropped. Further clearing is expected Friday in coastal areas with some improvement also in the Interior.

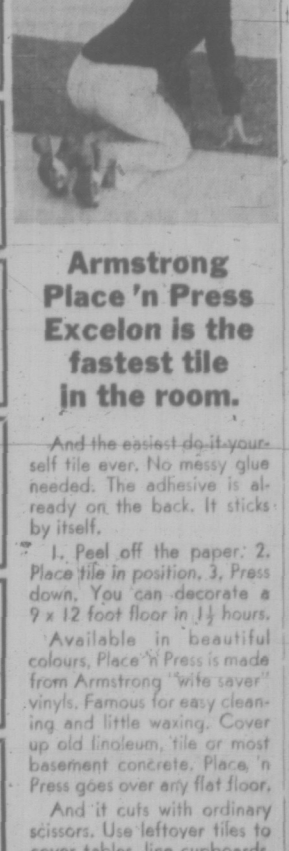
Small Crowds At Rallies

NEW YORK (AP) — Where many thousands have rallied in the past, relatively small crowds turned out this year to observe Moratorium Day Wednesday and speak out against the war in Indochina.

Anyway you look at it...



Armstrong Place 'n Press Excelon is the fastest tile in the room.

And the easiest do it-yourself tile ever. No messy glue needed. The adhesive is already on the back. It sticks by itself.

1. Peel off the paper. 2. Place tile in position. 3. Press down. You can decorate a 9 x 12 foot floor in 1½ hours.

Available in beautiful colours, Place 'n Press is made from Armstrong "wife saver" vinyls. Famous for easy cleaning and little waxing. Cover up old linoleum, tile or most basement concrete. Place 'n Press goes over any flat floor.

And it cuts with ordinary scissors. Use leftover tiles to cover tables, line cupboards, drawers or shelves.

Remember the name is what you do.

Glass Belted Tires

Your Choice: Summer or Winter Tread
Allstate Wideguard or Snowguard

The plain facts about Allstate Fibre Glass belted tires:
1—They give you better traction: wide, low profile, deep tread design lasts long and gives excellent road hold.
2—Fibre Glass belts prevent tire "squirm", thus tire will last up to twice as long as ordinary unbelted tires.
3—Easier handling with the wider tread and low profile.

Southern Cities Not Alone In Toxic Ozone Build-Up

MONTREAL (CP) — The air over Canadian cities may have greater amounts of ozone, a highly toxic gas, than is currently believed says a McGill University pollution expert.

Speaking at a symposium of the Canadian Chemical Engineering Conference, Dr. David Bates, chairman of the McGill interdisciplinary committee on air pollution, recommended that the Montreal Urban Community's air purification department take steps to find out the exact level of ozone.

"It has probably been erroneous to assume that ozone was not a problem in Montreal," Dr. Bates said.

HITS YOUNG, OLD

He cited a recent experience in Holland which indicated the possibility of ozone building up to harmful levels in cities located in northern latitudes.

Ozone is produced when oxides of nitrogen given off in motor vehicle exhaust combine with sunlight to produce photochemical smog. Until now it was believed that this occurred only in cities in southern latitudes experiencing long hours of sunshine, such as Los Angeles.

Dr. Bates said, however, that during a seven-day period in Rotterdam recently a blanket of smog covered 20 square miles and hospital wards had to be cleared to handle the patients, especially children and old people, suffering from itching eyes, irritated lungs, dizzy spells, vomiting and asthmatic attacks.

Rotterdam's ozone level during the smog was estimated at about eight parts per million and illnesses fluctuated with the level.

Ozone is lethal at a concentration of six parts per million. Lower amounts cause adverse respiratory effects, including acute inflammation and bronchitis. In experiments volunteers could not pedal a bicycle when the ozone level reached 0.7 parts per million.

Dr. Bates said oxides of nitrogen from car exhaust are far more serious than carbon monoxide, and projections to 1990 for the production of nitrogen oxides in the United States indicate a steady increase to the point where people will no longer be able to tolerate it physically.

SCHOOL MERGER APPROVED

Saanich school board has approved the amalgamation of Beaver Lake and Prospect Lake Schools under principal Mike Witter, and assistant administrator Al Traumweiser.

The schools have a total of 228 students and after meeting with parents it was agreed to shuffle classes, so that primary students attend Prospect Lake and intermediate grades are at Beaver Lake.

School superintendent Cory Holob emphasized at a board meeting Wednesday that this arrangement permits better use of teaching resources in the sparcely populated area.

In his administration report, Holob told the board pupil teacher ration for the Saanich district is 27 to one at elementary level, 20 to one at secondary school.

Adult education is on the increase according to latest figures which show an enrollment of 770 compared with 714 last year. There are 56 night school courses offered.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICE SUNDAY

Anglican Church Marks 111th Year

St. Luke's Church at Cedar Hill will mark its 111th anniversary Sunday.

The communion vessels brought by Rt. Rev. George Hills, when he arrived here to become Bishop of British Columbia in Jan. 1860 will be used at the anniversary service.

LICENCE ISSUED

In September 1860 Hills issued a licence to Rev. Alexander Garrett, who became a missionary clergyman, concentrating his work around what was known as Cedar Plains and which is now Cedar Hill.

He held 29 services that year and on Oct. 26 in 1861 a school chapel was opened on the site where the church stands today. After several years it was moved a short distance to make way for the building of a proper church.

It was used as a parish hall until 1911 when it was torn down. The original altar was preserved and is now part of the present altar in the church.

The present church building was erected in 1887 and opened in 1888.

The parish became self-supporting in 1891. At that time the parish of St. Michael's Lake, now known as St. Michael's, Royal Oak, was included in the parish as the Chapel of Ease.

The original parish has been subdivided many times since then.

Other parishes that have grown out of the original district are St. Mark's, Cloverdale; St. Alban's, Ryan Street; St. George's, Cadboro Bay; St. Dunstan's, Gordon Head; and St. Peter's, Lake Hill.

Many well-known clergy have served the parish, including the late Rt. Rev. George Wells, Bishop of Caribou.

The present rector, Archdeacon C. E. F. Wolff, was appointed in 1963.

Customs Man Jailed

VANCOUVER (CP) — A 53-year-old customs officer was sentenced Wednesday to 30 days in jail for stealing a bottle of whisky from a Vancouver waterfront warehouse.

Judge Larry Eckhardt said he handed Herbert Michael Sweeney the jail term on his first offence because he had been employed in a position of trust.

Sweeney was convicted of taking a 40-ounce bottle of scotch from an Empire Stevedoring Warehouse July 23.

"YOUR BEST BUYING GUIDE"

You've got a growing family, a one-car garage and a one-car budget...

Plymouth's got the answer:

'72 FURY

A new car for your family this year? It's a big decision.

You've got to pick one that's dependable, one that's comfortable, one that's going to last... one that's right for the kind of driving you do.

And let's be honest, you want one that is really new, too; one that looks good and performs well.

It's a tall order, but we think our new '72 Plymouth Fury fills the bill.

More than just a pretty face

There's more to Fury and its handsome new body than meets the eye. Body and chassis are, in fact, a single unitized structure, welded together for lasting strength, silence and solidity. And before it sees a spot of paint, it's thoroughly rustproofed. So it will last.

Room doesn't necessarily mean comfort.

Your growing family needs lots of room—and Fury provides it. But for real comfort you need a good suspension system, too. Fury uses torsion bars in front, leaf springs in the rear, to control "after-bump rebound", and swaying on corners.

Noise isn't comfortable, so Fury has a sound isolation system of special bushings, weatherstripping and sound-absorbing insulation to keep wind and road noise to a minimum.

What you really need is standard equipment.

Because you drive on highways with a full load of passengers and luggage, you need a V8 engine. So this year, we've made our smooth 318 V8 the standard Fury engine. And because both you and your wife drive in heavy traffic, we've made automatic transmissions and power steering standard equipment, too. Plymouth is concerned about the environment too. All Fury engines are equipped with the latest emission control devices.

The big difference is quality.

This year's Fury is the product of Chrysler's quality engineering. The differences are in many little things that really count—like pre-tested wiring, smoother transmissions, more efficient alternators. The net result is a better car, more dependable than ever before. Before you put your family into one of our Fury models, we expect you to ask a lot of questions. We want you to be sure.

Your Plymouth dealer is at your disposal. He's in business to help you, so go see him soon.

N-Plants Would Halve Power Costs: Engineer

NANAIMO — A consulting chemical engineer for the Atomic Energy Commission said here Wednesday that a nuclear power plant for Vancouver Island would produce energy at half the cost of any other method.

Trevor Davis of Sidney told Nanaimo Chamber of Commerce that if the previously suggested $175 million project were located in the Nanaimo area it would provide an economic stimulus to the community.

Davis also said the provincial government's plan to pipe natural gas to the island is uneconomical, and that this method of generating power has been discarded by other governments.

"The greater demand is pushing gas costs up and the only visible escape from this upward spiral is nuclear energy."

. . . economic stimulus

He said safety standards are "beyond belief," with safety equipment installed in triplicate.

Davis said energy demands on Vancouver Island are growing at eight per cent per year. The economical and technical feasibility of nuclear plants has been proven by one in Pickering, Ont., which "has power equal to the Peace River Dam yet takes up only 30 acres of land."

The AEC had recommended a 1972 start for design, he said, with federal government financing probably for a prototype station.

He added that Ontario's nuclear program now employs 20,000 workers while there are none so far in B.C. A five-year construction period would employ 2,000 men of all trades.

Save-the-Farms Drive Pressed

Social Credit MLA Robert Wenman of Delta Wednesday urged the government to save remaining farm land in the Fraser Valley.

Wenman appeared before the land use committee and urged it to initiate a system which would allow farmers to dedicate their land in perpetuity as farm land.

In return, Wenman said, farmers would be freed from most property taxation. Farmers who did not dedicate their land, he said, should pay higher taxes on the assumption that they were holding it for speculative purposes.

Wenman's proposals were outlined in his private members bill which failed to win approval at the last session of the legislature.

Wenman headed a delegation of farmers and municipal officials from the valley who met with Agriculture Minister Cyril Shelford, Mines Minister Frank Richter, Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell and Resources Minister Ray Williston.

Williston suggested an inventory of Fraser Valley farmland. He told the delegation the government is interested in protecting farmland.

"The question is how best to ensure that farmland can be maintained," Williston said.

As Another Year Rolls Around . . .

SPROAT LAKE (CP) — Vancouver Island's five-man Sproat Lake volunteer fire department — publicized as the world's smallest group of voluntary firefighters — is facing its annual problem: money.

The volunteers, who operate one pump-equipped jeep called Mabel, two boats and a truck holding a 750-gallon water tank, need $600 a year to remain solvent. The money goes for insurance for the men and equipment and gas and oil to keep the vehicles running.

The volunteer fire department cannot charge for its services or impose taxes.

A meeting will be held next week on proposals to raise the necessary funds. In the past, the department has sold honorary chief certificates for $5 each.

Three Asian Children Die

BRADFORD, England (AP) — Three Kenya Asian children died in a blaze early today and police said they suspected arson.

"We think the fire was started deliberately," police said.

The blaze which killed two sisters, 12 and 15, and their eight-year-old brother was the 12th in a series of fires which have hit homes of immigrants in this northern industrial city in the last five months.

Bradford has a large non-white community and race relations is a major problem.

The children's mother was reported seriously ill in hospital with her 17-year-old elder son. The father was working the night shift at a nearby textile mill, police said.

10 Years For Hashish

MONTREAL (CP) — Jean-Pierre Lellig of Ottawa was sentenced Wednesday to 10 years in prison after being convinced of importing 104 pounds of hashish.

Lellig was arrested at Montreal International Airport as he and a co-accused, Frank H. Nichols, tried to pick up a suitcase shipped from Afghanistan.

Nichols pleaded guilty to an importing charge two weeks ago and was sentenced to seven years.

Hear The Now Sounds of The "Lowrey Organ" Played By "Joe Carlo"

Listening to Carlo play is like hearing an entire orchestra, especially when he's performing on a Lowrey organ that features most everything from a complete rhythm section to the brass, strings and woodwinds. During his performance, Carlo will demonstrate the various special effects which can be achieved with just one solo instrument. He'll duplicate instrumental sounds with amazing authenticity. He will demonstrate that playing the Lowrey organ is an easier and more enjoyable pastime today than ever before for all age groups.

Computers Revoking Bill of Human Rights?

OTTAWA (CP) — Faster, more efficient computers gobble up and distribute more information about private citizens every year.

There are no adequate legal safeguards now for the individual whose private life may be invaded.

If the current trend continues, computers could pose a serious threat to individual privacy, says Richard Gwyn, director of the social planning branch of the communications department.

The government sees no immediate threat but has moved to prevent future problems by launching a study on computers and privacy, says Communications Minister Robert Stanbury.

The study is being carried out by the communications and justice departments and is expected to present its report to the government by Oct. 15. Mr. Gwyn is co-chairman of the study with Richard Olson, director of legal research for the justice department.

FAST ANSWERS

The problem of privacy existed before the computer. But information is harder to find in conventional filing systems than in computers. Computers answer immediately.

The growth of computer communications systems heightens the problem since information can be easily channelled to distant points. Telephone companies and other common carriers already carry computer messages across Canada.

Members of the United States Congress began questioning the power of computers over individual lives in 1966 when a national data bank was first proposed in Washington. Public concern about computers and privacy grew after the issue was raised.

The most extensive study in the world is being carried out by the National Academy of Sciences in the U.S. but Britain, West Germany, Sweden and Denmark are also examining the problem.

The federal investigating group has recruited consultants from universities and industry to undertake 13 separate studies which will be wrapped up into the final report.

SLOW U.S. REPLIES

More than 50 per cent of the 2,400 companies and government agencies approached by the task force have turned in replies to detailed questionnaires. U.S. data banks have been slower replying.

Teams of lawyers and computer scientists have visited the 46 largest operators of computer information systems in Canada to dig out answers.

Mr. Gwyn says computer communications systems can seriously affect individual lives by pumping out inaccurate information to a large number of customers. An individual may have no way of knowing that this mistaken information is on file.

Personal facts submitted by an individual may be combined with other material for a purpose that was not originally intended. Mr. Gwyn says this is particularly true in the U.S. where giant conglomerates own a variety of companies in several different fields.

But how far can personal privacy be extended? Is the public's right to know sometimes more important than the individual's right to privacy?

Mr. Gwyn says there is no clear answer to these questions.

The investigating group is also grappling with the problem of data banks in other countries. Will data banks move to countries where controls are less stringent—a sort of flag of convenience?

The French have raised this issue but it applies to Canada as well. Much of Canada's information already flows south to U.S. data banks.

If the government decides comprehensive national regulation is needed, federal and provincial authorities will have to co-operate closely, Mr. Gwyn says. Complementary legislation may be required at the federal and provincial levels.

Mr. Stanbury says another proposal is to set up a register listing what information leaves a data bank and where it goes. This would allow people to check inaccuracies and to find out where information about them has gone.

The West German state of Hesse has taken a different tack. It has named an ombudsman to look into abuses of privacy by computers.

INDIVIDUAL CONTROL

British computer experts are working on a professional code of ethics that they hope will protect the individual.

Perhaps the ultimate check against mistakes will be the individual himself.

Arthur Sherwin of Toronto, past president of the Canadian Industrial Communications Assembly, suggested recently that people may eventually voluntarily feed information into data banks to ensure that it is correct.

But government officials seem determined to act before a crisis develops.

Mr. Gwyn says it is harder to ban automobiles from downtown city streets when the roads are already clogged with cars than it is to act before this happens.

He suggests the same is true with computers. The industry is still young and measures to protect individual privacy may be more effective now than later.

4-Day Week Sought

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The Civil Service Employees Association says it will seek a four-day work week in its next round of bargaining talks with New York state. Under the proposal, state employees would work the same number of hours a week, 37½ for most New York workers.

If you're wondering where you can see the Fall line at Chargex, just look around you. It's everywhere. Shopping with your Chargex card is just like turning the whole town into one big department store.

It gives you the convenience of a department store charge service, plus the advantages of shopping wherever you like—which automatically gives you a better selection of goods and a wider price range to choose from.

In fact, what we've done is take a lot of the good things about department store shopping and spread them around.

We use a billing system that's as easy and efficient as four of Canada's leading banks know how to make it.

Every month, all of your purchases are shown on a single statement and mailed to you. You simply send us one cheque. If you pay for these purchases within 25 days of your billing date, you don't have to pay any service charge at all.

If you choose to spread your payments out, you can pay by the month just like you would with your department store card, and take advantage of terms and interest rates that are competitive with all other retail shopping cards.

Calgary Voters Return Sykes for Second Term

By The Canadian Press

Voters in Alberta cities were in no mood for a change Wednesday.

They quickly returned to office all except one of the incumbent city majors who sought re-election and rejected only a handful of the incumbent aldermen running for new terms.

The winners in the civic elections across Alberta included:

● Ivor Dent of Edmonton, 47, re-elected to a second term as mayor, former president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

● Rod Sykes of Calgary, re-elected to a second term, one of the most controversial mayors in the city's history.

● Harry Veiner, 67, re-elected to start his 20th year as mayor of Medicine Hat, longest term in the city's history.

● R. E. Barrett, 67, re-elected to a fourth term as mayor of Red Deer on a platform that stressed continuation of the same type of government.

● Andy Anderson, mayor of Lethbridge since 1968, returned by a large majority over 25-year-old schoolteacher Greg Hales.

Mayors were returned by acclamation in three of the nine Alberta cities: E. A. Toshach in Drumheller, Elmer Borstad in Grande Prairie and Rudy Swanson in Camrose.

The only upset in urban voting for mayor came in the small city of Wetaskiwin where Jack Pike, mayor during the 1960s, upset incumbent Leavert Johnson by 971 votes to 638.

The election — held in almost all cities, towns and villages in the province — marked the first time that all voted on the same day and the first time that all winners hold office for a standard three-year term.

The only exception is Lloydminster, which straddles the Alberta-Saskatchewan border and consequently operates under a special charter. It will elect a new city council on Dec. 1.

The first standardized election campaign was generally quiet throughout the province without many of the usual tooth-and-nail battles.

Turnouts at the polls were generally light, perhaps reflecting the quiet campaigns. Twenty-seven per cent of those eligible voted in Red Deer, 28 per cent in Grande Prairie, 37 per cent in Edmonton, 47 per cent in Lethbridge and 58 per cent in Medicine Hat. Results from other cities were not available.

Plebiscites asking voters in Calgary and Medicine Hat whether they favored the introduction of fluoridation in municipal water supplies were rejected.

The "no" vote in Calgary was 56,148 against 45,181 "yes" votes.

The vote ran about 3-1 against fluoridation in Medicine Hat although complete figures were unavailable.

Most of the city mayors gained re-election by large margins.

In Edmonton, Mayor Dent defeated Ald. Julian Kinisky by 60,948-27,270 while businessman Jack Holmes received 9,777 votes.

The Edmonton campaign had been based on two main issues, the 750-acre industrial airport and whether the city's growth should be limited.

Ald. Kinisky argued that the airport has no place in the middle of the city but the mayor said the airport is valuable because of its convenient location and the tax dollars that airport-based industries bring in. The mayor added however, that he would wait for the results of a federal aviation study before making a decision on the future of the airport.

Hail Costs High

EDMONTON (CP) — Hail caused about $3 million in crop losses this year, the Alberta Hail and Crop Insurance Corp. said Wednesday.

A corporation report said losses were double those in 1970 and three times greater than in 1969.

Hail damage occurred in insured areas on at least 43 days, with the most severe storms in central and northern areas.

A storm in the Red Deer district July 23 and a companion storm near Calgary the same day were the worst recorded in 20 years, the report said.

Hotel Project

SLAVE LAKE, Alta. (CP) — Construction has started on a $500,000 motor hotel designed to improve the economic situation of native people in this part of Northern Alberta.

The Sawridge Motor Hotel will be built with funds provided largely by the Sawridge Indian band with help from the federal and provincial governments.

A human resources development authority spokesman said band members will be employed both in construction and operation of the motel, expected to open next spring.

Visitors Increase

JASPER, Alta. (CP — An increase in the number of vehicles using the Yellowhead Highway and good weather were responsible for more visitors at Jasper National Park last month, Murray Dawson said Wednesday.

Dawson, program manager for the park, said that the number of vehicles entering the park in September increased 22 per cent over the same month last year.

ESKIMOS CAN AIR GRIEVANCES

OTTAWA (CP) — Beginning next month, Eskimos in the Keewatin settlement of Rankin Inlet will be able to pick up their telephones, dial O and broadcast a radio message to the entire settlement.

The experiment in Arctic communications, the idea of Bell Canada researcher E. P. (Paddy) Gardiner of Ottawa, has the backing of the Northwest Territories government, the communications department and the CBC.

Mr. Gardiner, in an interview Wednesday, said he has no idea of how the Eskimos will use the facility.

"It could be a great flop," he admits.

But he hopes it will be a stage for discussions of community problems and entertainment and provide a flow of information to the 600 residents of Rankin.

Because the experiment uses a radio frequency, a licence is needed from the Canadian Radio-Television Commission. This is expected to be issued when the CRTC meets in Regina Oct. 19.

Persons who want to keep their telephone conversations private will be able to do so as before.

But those who want to take part in a community conversation merely dial O and they are on the air. Anybody who wants to hear the conversations merely tunes in as they would a radio station.

Four persons can dial into the system at one time, leaving six other lines open for regular telephone traffic.

In a departure from usual programs introduced by governments, the system will be placed under the control of the predominantly Eskimo community council.

It will be up to council to crack down if there are abuses — people hogging the radio time or using it for purely selfish reasons.

Mr. Gardiner has hopes that his system can be used in other remote areas of Canada —both north and south.

But "results are totally unpredictable," he says, and it could be a year before the score is in.

Bootleg Barley Shakes Grain Confidence

EDMONTON (CP) — The barley-laden farm truck with Saskatchewan licence plates was pulled off the road by an RCMP patrol car on the Trans-Canada Highway just east of Medicine Hat.

Minutes later, in a scene that was repeated often in 1968-69, the truck driver-farmer was holding a ticket.

Speeding? Illegal use of tax-free purple gasoline? Intoxication? The charge was none of these.

The farmer had been charged under the Canadian Wheat Board Act because he had been caught bootlegging barley — transporting it into Alberta illegally across a provincial boundary.

Under present regulations the farmer could have sold his barley either to the wheat board or to a farmer within his own province, but transporting it across provincial lines is not allowed.

There is growing concern among western farm leaders that this year's bumper barley crop of 627 million bushels is going to generate fire-sale prices and result in another upsurge of such bootlegging.

The last time there was bootlegging to any degree was in 1968-69 when Saskatchewan farmers sought all possible ways to get a little cash during the period of meagre wheat sales.

Last year almost all the barley produced—about 391 million bushels—was sold by the wheat board in the wake of a disastrous blight which hit the corn crop in the United States.

With the promise of good sales, prairie farmers boosted their barley acreage this year to a record 14.6 million acres compared with 9.5 million in 1970 but at the same time the U.S. corn crop made a remarkable recovery this year and is expected to yield 5.3 billion bushels, a 31-per-cent increase over 1970.

Now, the prospects of a bumper prairie crop of barley has producers, government officials, and wheat board administrators looking toward a tough, highly competitive year on the international grains market.

MOVES WELL NOW

The wheat board emphasizes barley at this point is moving well—the grain selling agency still is filling orders placed during the world shortage last year — and, one spokesman said, "there doesn't appear to be the pressure that in other years resulted in a fair amount of bootlegging."

But illegal sales already have started, said a spokesman at the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, and the grain is being sold at fire-sale prices.

"At Swift Current two weeks ago, it was reported farmers were buying machinery and cars with barley for which they received a credit of 25 cents a bushel."

This is the type of transaction which has farm spokesmen worried because, they say, it undermines confidence in the orderly marketing of grain—essential if western agriculture is to survive.

Based on a production cost, including taxes, seed, sowing and harvesting and land maintenance, a Saskatchewan farmer is lucky if he can produce barley at less than $12 an acre.

"It can be seen that if he gets an average yield of 40 bushels of barley to the acre, that's a return of only $10 an acre at 25 cents a bushel and no one can exist that way very long," one pool spokesman said.

Determined to turn surplus grain into money, some Saskatchewan farmers are reported delivering barley up to 200 miles away to feedlots in Alberta for 50 or 60 cents a bushel.

They would get 70 to 75 cents a bushel for barley on the commercial market.

The wheat board has said it can sell about 250 million bushels of this year's barley crop which will leave a surplus of more than 300 million bushels.

Huge beef cattle feedlot operations in Alberta offer a ready market for millions of bushels of surplus barley.

Some of the court cases involving bootlegging in 1969 still are unresolved. Those that were convicted were given mainly token fines as magistrates and judges apparently sympathized with the producers' economic plight.

Corn Complaint Board Set

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Southwestern Ontario corn growers appointed a nine-man committee Wednesday to seek solutions to problems posed by a large corn crop in the United States this year.

More than 200 farmers voted to appoint the committee with representation from the National Farmers' Union, the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, the Commercial Corn Growers' Association, independent corn growers and the local business community.

A. N. Watson, Kent County representative of the federation of Agriculture, said this year's U.S. crop is estimated at 5.4 billion bushels. The estimate is 100 million bushels higher than earlier estimates, he said, and the increase is about equal to the entire Canadian crop.

A large U.S. crop drives the price down.

One grower suggested that the federal government subsidize the price of corn at a $1.35-a-bushel minimum. The price for corn Wednesday in Kent County was $1.03 a bushel.

Kent County is a major corn-producing area.

U.S. to Sell Uranium Stocks

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission has decided to start selling the $650-million U.S. uranium stockpile in 1974 because of the present stability in the United States nuclear weapons arsenal, Atomic Energy Commissioner Wilfrid Johnson said Wednesday.

"Nobody was certain how big the stockpile of uranium for weapons would have to be," said Johnson. "The decision was made on the safe side for national defence reasons."

Designing atomic weapons that use plutonium rather than enriched uranium as the fissionable explosive generated excesses in the 50,000-ton stockpile of uranium, he said in an interview.

Beside the stockpiled uranium, all of which will be sold before 1984, Johnson said the AEC will maintain in inventory of uranium sufficient for the development of future nuclear weapons, atomic powered naval vessels and reactor use.

The size of the inventory is secret for national security purposes.

Johnson also announced that before the end of the decade the United States would lift its ban on the processing of foreign uranium ore into the enriched fuel used in nuclear reactors and weapons.

14 Aid Relief

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Fourteen countries and the Vatican have pledged to the UN relief operation in East Pakistan a total in cash and kind of $83,649,146, the UN announced Wednesday. The United States has pledged about 75 per cent of the total. Canada is the next biggest contributor with nearly $7,500,000.

2 Burned Alive

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — An old woman and a child were burned alive when some 40 huts were set on fire in the only major violence reported during a 24-hour general strike call in west Bengal Wednesday.

Prison With a View

MARIESTAD, Sweden (AP) — A new prison unit just opened here has 20 cells with carpeting and telephones.

The unit is primarily for prisoners under temporary detention. Soft lighting floods the cells. Meals will be brought in from a nearby restaurant.

The exercise yard has architect-designed "bars" of stainless steel circles with vertical steel stringers. There is a pleasant view over meadows and woods.

Alf Johansson, the head warden, says: "It's wonderful to get away from the usual grey prison atmosphere."

The total cost of the centre has not been estimated.

"Our original estimate was $1 million, but that will not be enough," said E. G. Olofsson, an engineer.

Ask, Don't Guess When Dining Out

Don't be shy if you really want to enjoy a dinner out. If you aren't sure what's in something, ask before your order it. If you're uncertain about which wines to choose, ask.

That's the word from Tony Roldan, executive chef at a Toronto hotel. He says the head writer or the chef at a good restaurant will be gald to recommend a choice if you want them to, based on what you tell them you enjoy eating.

"If people ask, they will enjoy dining out, instead of getting something they don't like."

Mr. Roldan has been in Canada for 15 years, and he says Canadians during that time have learned to be expert eaters.

"The people are getting to be connoisseurs in food and wines. They are really beginning to know what they are eating and drinking."

Mr. Roldan is a member of the exclusive Chaine des Rotisseurs, an international association of knowledgeable food lovers. He says the rules they use when they dine together would help anyone to enjoy a good cinner.

"At our banquets we are not allowed to smoke, drink water or have salt on the table.

"It just doesn't do to drink water during a meal. Wines help give you the taste of any dish better. Wine washes the palate.

"You shouldn't drink heavy liquor before a meal, either. Have a nice aperitif and finish with brandy, which is based on wine. Then the things you drink are all the same.

"A lot of people smoke during a meal, which is wrong. I feel sorry when I see them do it. It doesn't matter if you give them a good meal or a bad meal, they can't taste it. Even the wine is spoiled.

"And you should not season food before you taste it. In a good place, when the onion soup comes from the kitchen, it is seasoned as it should be, but people put salt and pepper and cheese on it before they taste it.

"I get mad when the waiter comes and says a customer says something is too salty. It wasn't too salty when it left the kitchen.

"If I owned a restaurant, I would take the salt off the table."

Mr. Roldan says people don't ordinarily order too much food in a restaurant, but he has a rule of thumb to help order a balanced meal.

"Start with something light; then a little heavier, then heavy again and finish light. Or if you want a heavy dessert, have a light meal, fish or chicken or veal."

If you want to order something special for dinner, or something different, he suggests talking to the chef ahead of time.

"If I know a customer, I know what they want and may choose for them.

"If I don't know him, I will consult him. I won't necessarily choose the most expensive thing, I will ask him how much he wants to pay.

"If I don't know the guest, I want to know if he wants special hors d'oeuvres, heavy sauces or light, does he like garlic. That's very important. A lot of people are on a diet, they may want a meal without sauces. Most sauces have a quarter of a pound of butter in them.

"Some of the customers are a real challenge."

Equality—Not Liberation—For Socialists

VIENNA (Reuter) — Women's life styles in East Europe would hardly satisfy the women's liberation fighters of the West, even though sexual equality is enshrined in Socialist constitutions.

And the kind of aggressive, politically aimed demand for emancipation that marks the women's liberation movement elsewhere does not exist in the countries of East Europe.

Women are too busy earning salaries and tending families to have much energy left over for that kind of struggle.

In 1919, Lenin said: "Let there be equality — to work, to payment, to rest and leisure." The principle still gets reverent lip service.

But Western observers find that in Soviet reality, conservatism, discipline, even prudery, take precedence over such questions as sexual equality.

Women who pioneered the first pants suits in Moscow ran into a hard wall of prejudice from men and women. Some were expelled from theatres and restaurants. One girl was fired from her job on the spot by a no-nonsense Communist boss.

In East Germany after the Second World War there were three or four women to each man, due to war casualties and migration, and it was natural for women to take over jobs as crane operators, truck and bulldozer drivers.

In the Soviet Union it was normal during and after the war for women to engage in monotonous back-breaking chores to release men for more skilled tasks.

Throughout the whole region, during the feverish reconstruction period of the Stalinist 1950s when predominantly peasant economies were forced into heavy industrialization, women learned what a mine looked like underground, how to pour cement into a dam and how to perch on girders high above big construction jobs.

Now, with mechanization and rising living standards, women's work in Eastern Europe tends to be physically less arduous, although in the Soviet Union and elsewhere some still work at tough building and repair jobs.

But it remains true that many women are in economic bondage.

Millions of women in Socialist countries bear the double burden of having a job eight hours a day and then being the homemaker, mother, wife, cook, shopper and clothes washer.

Public transport in Socialist countries is often a minor torture and shopping involves lining up for food and other products that would be judged second or third rate in Western stores.

There is little doubt that the Socialist woman leads a harsher existence than her Western sister no matter what the statute books say.

It is little wonder that so many East European social studies these days focus on the falling birth rate, on divorce, fatigue and the rising infertility of working women.

The only country so far where it seemed that women were being relieved of one of their roles — the industrial one — was Poland, but that was due to an employment crisis.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We work in a large office with a young woman who has a tremendously large bosom. Because of this she is terribly self-consciuos and she always wears a coat. Even in 95-degree weather.

Can you suggest some way we can help her get rid of this complex? — Her Bosom Buddies.

DEAR BUDDIES: If she is top-heavy to the point of being freakishly out of proportion, perhaps she should be told plastic surgeons can correct that condition. It may be easier for her to reduce the size of her bosom than to get rid of her complex.

DEAR ABBY: My sister, a widow for the past year and the mother of an 11-year-old son, has developed some rather strange habits lately.

I visited her last week (she has a three bedroom home in Staten Island) and I found her giving her son a bath. Not only that but she was clad in a skimpy pair of panties and a loose fitting bra.

The next day I noticed the only bed that had been slept in the night before was her twin bed. She said her son had been sleeping in her bedroom since her husband's death because she was "lonely," and because Staten Island is almost a "rural area" she is afraid to sleep in her bedroom alone. That may be, but why two of them in one twin bed?

I told her it was unnatural, and she denied anything unnatural was going on between her and her son.

I knew my sister always had some kooky ideas, but this is the kookiest. Shouldn't something be done about this? I am afraid she has gone completely off her rocker. — Worried Sister.

DEAR WORRIED: She is more than "kooky." She is disturbed. Tell her doctor what you've written to me. Her son needs to be rescued, and fast.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for six years. We've both worked and saved in order to furnish a house the way we want it. We have no children and aren't planning on having any for at least two years.

We just put in wall-to-wall carpeting, and want to keep it nice for as long as possible. So we ask our friends and relatives to please leave their shoes outside the door. Almost everyone has gone along with our request, and the few who haven't didn't upset us much.

My husband is quite artistic and he wants to make a decorative sign to place beside our doorbell. It will read, "PLEASE LEAVE YOUR SHOES OUTSIDE."

Is this in poor taste? Would you do it? We live in Colorado, and if you've ever been there in the winter you know what the weather is like. — R and K.

DEAR R AND K: It's questionable taste. I wouldn't do it. I've been in Colorado in the winter and I still wouldn't do it.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Friday, Oct. 15, 1971
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Check reservations, appointments. Not wise to delegate duties. Get job done — yourself. Some now are apt to be careless — with your time, money. Know this and be a self-starter. Reward is due.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Slight delay actually can work in your favor. Maintain natural pace. Refuse to panic. Apparent confusion over funds will be rectified. Applied light touch. What you need will be forthcoming. Act like you know it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Be wary of commitment which could prevent you from making constructive moves. Means allow yourself freedom to be independent. Tread carefully; don't be taken in by fast talker.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Steer clear of neighbors, relatives who are anxious to do battle. Means keep the peace — especially inner peace. Some of your natural qualities, abilities receive added appreciation.

LEO (July 23-August 22): Highlight versatility. Use material at hand — in your own, unique manner. Message will become increasingly clear. Sagittarius is involved. Money situation may be muddled. Young person brings solution.

VIRGO (August 23-Sept. 22): What appears clear sailing needs a second look. Realize that slight delay is no reason for discouragement. Leo person can show you how to hurdle or bypass obstacle. Listen and learn.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Work in conjunction with associates, those familiar with your likes, dislikes. Grass is not necessarily greener far away. Realize this; get busy with what is available. Hold off on journey.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Financial situation improves. Friendly persuasion can be constuctively utilized. Highlight diplomacy. Gift purchase now brings favorable reaction. Be considerate. Remember anniversaries.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You may be trying too much at once. Expanding too quickly now would be an error. Accent is on willingness to check — contracts, agreements and to be aware of potential. Places figures prominently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some may ask for more than you are ready to give; heed your own counsel. Lunar emphasis is on long-haul rather than short-range view. You have some properties to do — review lessons, material.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Some wishes can now be fulfilled. Key is to utilize wide range of contracts. Promises are fine — put take steps to reinforce needs. If a self-starter, you get going on road to productivity.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Obtain necessary rights, permissions. You are in a hurry to get going. But you will retrace steps unless paper work first is cleared. Know this and act accordingly. Contract could be an issue.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are sensitive, appreciative of the arts and could have musical ability. Your voice often has been termed unusual. Recent emotional bruise is being healed. If single, marriage could be upcoming.

'Mayor's' First Problem: 350 Children

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

Major or mayor — he wears both hats with equal aplomb, heading the newest and least-known council in the Greater Victoria area.

In fact, when Major Derek Bamford, 43, was elected to mayoralty rank last month, few but his 262 constituents and their children were aware that history was being made at the polls.

These are the people who live in married quarters at Work Point, most of them attached to the 3rd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, but some from other branches of the armed forces.

Although Bamford and his eight councillors can sidestep most of the ills that plague their civilian counterparts — soaring property taxes to name one — Bamford has other jobs to tackle in their place.

For instance, finding recreation outlets for the 300 to 350 children who live in the four wards which make up his territory.

But Bamford is confident that this problem can be solved.

"Keeping kids busy is the name of the game. We are trying to get across that we are not a ghetto. We're tied into Esquimalt, and they have some pretty good programs going," he says.

"But we have to cater to the kids who don't get into those activities," he adds.

Not yet a month old, his council's recreation program is well launched, with plenty of volunteer instructors to help out with all kinds of sports and activities.

For example, the mayor has signed up as a soccer coach.

One problem, peculiar to Bamford's territory, is the risk that one of his council members will have to take a leave of absence because of service commitments. But this has been remedied by having council members double up on each other's duties.

Bamford and his council will also have to practise a special brand of diplomacy, unknown to non-service communities.

Bamford explains:

"If a woman feels she's getting the runaround on things that need to be done on her place we'll investigate, acting as a sort of safety valve for the base commander."

Diplomacy will also have to be used when handling neighbors who don't act neighborly.

Bamford is confident that he'll have no trouble balancing the communal budget.

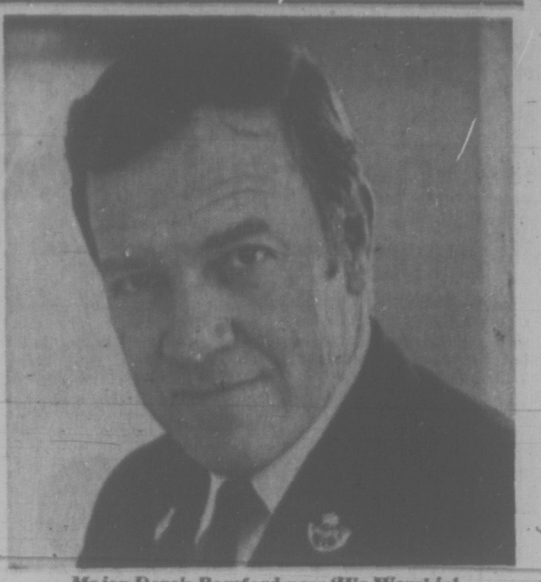
"We get $1 a head per year for each child from the base exchange profits. If this isn't enough to get the equipment or supplies we need, we'll put on bingo and other things."

Just in case you're wondering, there was no rank pulled when the major added His Worship to his titles.

"It was a secret ballot and we have everyone from major to corporal on council," Bamford says.

There was no hard-sell election campaign either.

"I guess they voted me in as mayor because I've lived here the longest and everyone knows me," says Bamford.



Major Derek Bamford now 'His Worship'

French Like Prefab Homes

PARIS (CP) — A pilot project utilizing Canadian prefabricated building techniques to construct 144 single dwellings or duplexes is a success, the promoters of the project have concluded.

They say that despite heavy rain, which hindered construction, and the inexperience of French workers with prefab techniques, the method is as economic and productive here as in Canada.

Jean-Luc Pepin, Canadian minister of industry, trade and commerce, and Robert Vivien, French secretary of housing, inaugurated the project in June, 1970, at Igny, 20 miles southwest of Paris. It was backed by a joint Franco-Canadian company, Dumez-Campeau.

The main object of the experiment was to show that Canadian prefab techniques could be used in France and Europe. Bricks or cement blocks are the major house-building materials in France.

The prefab houses were an immediate success, attracting thousands of interested home buyers as well as builders, civil servants and journalists from across Europe.

In the first month 76 of the homes were sold and the first occupant moved in in September, 1970.

The costs and data of all phases of the project have been studied and the results will be released to housing experts within a few months.

David Taylor, commercial secretary at the Canadian embassy here, says:

"The data from the project shows prefab methods can reach comparable levels of productivity here as in Canada.

"This is even more obvious in the more than 100 unskilled workers employed by the project who picked up their experience as construction progressed while the actual delays were caused by the nature of the pilot project.

"Time analysis studies show the level of productivity equalled and even passed the initial standards in terms of man-hours needed to complete jobs. The number of work units completed per hour progressed rapidly throughout the project.

"The great merit of the project was that it showed the houses would sell and the prefab technique could be used in Europe."

The homes were built at the rate of 12 a month. The prefab walls and roof sections were taken to the construction site on crane-equipped half trucks.

NO FORMULA FOR AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTS

Surcharge Presents Problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Imports of live chickens are subject to the 10 per cent supplementary duty ordered by the Nixon adminstration Aug. 15, while racing pigeons are not.

Human hair, used to make expensive wigs to meet the latest fashions, also is taxable, but hair from cattle, goat beards, badgers, skunk tails and horses is duty-free.

These examples are typical of the mystifying maze that surrounds application of the surcharge to agriculture-related products.

There is no formula for determining which products are under the duty order and which are exempt, according to a list published by the agriculatural department.

An item from the tail of an animal may be duty-free while a similar product from the back of another may be taxable.

Some basic rules apply broadly. Imports of fresh, frozen and chilled beef, for example, are exempted from the duty because they are controlled under a quota system.

Likewise, most cheeses are exempted because of standing controls on how much is admitted into the United States.

Another rule exempts items which customarily are admitted duty-free.

Another category not getting full treatment includes products which already are at or near maximum tariff levels specified by earlier tax actions.

Live asses and burros, and cattle weighing between 200 and 700 pounds are exempted, for example, because they already were being taxed at the maximum rates.

A common consumer item, canned ham, is exempted from the duty because it already is being taxed at the maximum duty rate of three cents a pound.

Imports of canned corn beef, however, currently carry a nine per cent regular duty, less than one-third permitted under tariff agreements, and thus are subject to the new duty. Frog meat is another item eligible for the added tax.

For various reasons, the new duty will apply to some items while others, in the same category, are exempted. Some of these inconsistencies include:

The tax applies on seeds of carrot, cauliflower and celery, but not to those for cabbage; mushrooms are taxed, truffles exempt; whole coconuts are free, their meat is taxed; Brazil nuts are free, while filberts are dutiable; and tung nut oil is free while sunflower oil is taxable.

Some other items, including a few not commonly known to consumers, which are subject to the 10 per cent import duty, are:

Shark oil, corn-on-the-cob, cucumbers, garlic, grapes, honey, curry powder, pineapple juice, beer, prune wine, rice wine, brandy, gin, rum, whisky, snuff, sesame seed chewing gum, hay, catgut, fish scales, cuttlefish bone, sponges, hops, peat moss, angora rabbit hair, synthetic vitamins, synthetic rubber, fish glue and camphor.

Cultural Values Confuse Teen

CHICAGO (UPI) — The sexual attitudes of adolescents have been altered by the complexity and acceleration of cultural life, according to Anne M. Juhasz, professor of education foundations at Loyola University.

"Until recently, young people striving to reach maturity . . . were assisted, in a way, by the regulations of the society in which they lived," Prof. Juhasz reported recently in a paper submitted to the American School Health Association.

Today, however, youth are questioning church, home and society, she said.

"Theory and practice don't match and confusion and mistrust result," she said.

Changes in traditional roles, coupled with acceleration of 20th century living, have hastened the pace of heterosexual social development, Prof. Juhasz said.

"The simple pleasures, the unsophisticated dating patterns of 25 to 30 years ago have been pushed down from the 19-20 year-old level to the 10-12 year-old level," she said.

Prof. Juhasz said problems in adolescent sexual behavior can not and should not necessarily be prevented. The answer, she said, lies in a proper supply of information and its rational use in problem solving.

Funeral Fee Set

The British Columbia Funeral Service Association has adopted as policy a fee of $100 for minimum services.

The basic service will include accepting and disposing of the body, registration of death, Laverne Sands, president of a local member funeral home, said Wednesday.

Disposal of a body means burial or cremation without services and without embalming, he said.

Lowest price for a complete service is $389 at his establishment. For welfare cases, it's $200, and for veterans, it's $389, which are contract prices with the government agency concerned.

Mrs. Joan Bennett, president of the Victoria branch of the Memorial Society of B.C., welcomed the move, but said she hoped the funeral homes would not make people feel guilty in choosing the minimum service over a costlier one.

The basic service of the memorial society is $125, but it also covers a cloth-covered plywood coffin and transportation to the crematorium or cemetery.

Paris Metro Rolls Again

PARIS (AP) — Subway unions today gave in to government pressure and ordered their members back to the Paris Metro Friday, ending a nine-day strike.

After an early morning meeting, leaders of the Metro workers' unions issued a statement saying the back-to-work call was being issued to preserve their unity. They said the fight for more money for their members would be resumed later.

Premier Jacques Chaban-Delmas had warned Wednesday night that the government would move to provide transport for five million Parisians if the 2,000 motormen did not go back to work.

Hardening of the Arteries An 'Inside Job' Says Doctor

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to the Times

SASKATOON — Hardening of the arteries may be an inside job, according to recent heart research reported here Wednesday.

Cholesterol is considered by most heart experts as the primary culprit in hardening of the arteries, which directly or indirectly kills many persons each year.

But cholesterol cannot do its damage without first being given an entry through a break in the artery wall, according to Dr. Paris Constantinides of the University of British Columbia and Dr. W. A. Thomas of the Albany (N.Y.) Medical College.

And the substances and mechanisms which cause the arteries to leak and "open the door to cholesterol" could include genetic factors, high blood pressure, chemicals produced naturally in the body, and even the ever-surging flow of life-sustaining blood.

In the latter case, turbulence at bends and junctions in the arteries may weaken the artery wall.

At the same time, the researchers noted there is increasing evidence that things from outside the body could cause sufficient damage to arteries to trigger hardening of the arteries. These might include man-made chemicals ingested in food or inhaled in air, and substances a person is allergic to that somehow get into the blood.

The theory of "an inside job" is already changing current thinking about the causes of hardening of the arteries. It already presents some interesting possibilities for prevention, such as giving the artery wall a wax-like coating (nicknamed the "Simoniz treatment").

Dr. Constantinides, professor of pathology, told doctors attending a scientific seminar at the University of Saskatchewan that animal experiments have shown that the first deposits of fats from the blood occur at points of damage on the artery wall.

It is this deposit of fats, related to high cholesterol in the blood, that is the beginning of hardening of the arteries. Heart attacks are one result.

The buildup of fat seems to be the result of cholesterol originally invading the smooth muscle tissue that makes up the artery wall.

Dr. Constantinides said he believes cholesterol (and fats generally) are too large to pass through the intact arterial wall, except at the ends of the arteries in the capillaries. Thus, a leak in the artery wall is necessary before cholesterol can get in and trigger the beginnings of fatty deposits and hardening of the arteries.

The most popular explanation for hardening of the arteries, known as the filtration theory, may have to be modified as a result of these recent experimental findings, Dr. Constantinides said.

New Graft Procedure Helps Sick Arteries

SASKATOON (CP) — Dr. Arthur Vineberg, Montreal heart surgeon, says his new procedure for bypassing diseased coronary arteries may be applicable to arteries elsewhere in the body.

In a preliminary report Wednesday to the Canadian Cardiovascular Society, he told in detail of his newest procedure, termed aorto-coronary omental strip bypass graft.

The technique, involving grafts of abdominal tissue called the greater omentum, has been used as supplement to other procedures Dr. Vineberg has developed in more than 20 years of pioneering.

Dr. Vineberg said the new procedure is unproven except for the heart, but other possible applications are in bypassing multiple obstructive lesions in arteries of the lower legs, major arteries of the neck and perhaps even arteries on the surface of the brain.

He reported he has already operated on a few patients whose heart condition was such that only the omentum could be used, and gave minute detail of the operation on one patient.

OTHER METHODS USELESS

Ruled out for this patient were such procedures as the internal mammary artery implant—placing the chest artery within the heart itself to supply needed blood—and the epicardiectomy—removal of the outer layer of the heart to increase blood circulation to the left ventricle, the heart's main pumping chamber.

The omentum is an apron-like tissue that normally does a trouble-shooting job within the abdomen by sealing off areas of infection. It is attached to its own blood supply.

When detached it loses this supply but promptly seeks its own arterial blood. It can tap any artery with which its surface comes in contact.

Its ability to set up communication channels formed the basis for its use as a supplement to implantation of the left internal mamary artery. This combination has been used by Dr. Vineberg in treatment of 248 cases of coronary artery disease.

There have been many cases, said the report, where extensive scarring in the ventricle wall has made it unwise to use the omental graft, and so implantation alone is used.

In other cases, because of diffuse intermittent scarring, only the omentum can be used because there is no area in the left ventricle suitable to implant.

PATIENT IN PAIN

The patient whose operation is described was in almost constant pain, especially during slight exertion in the morning. He was unable to walk rapidly or climb one flight of stairs. He had pain on slight emotion. He was also a diabetic.

He was discharged from hospital in March, 1969, a month after admittance. A letter from him in 1970 said his general physical condition was steadily improving. Blood pressure was normal and other bodily processes seemed to be functioning normally.

Chest pains had all but disappeared. The patient was occasionally playing golf and had returned to competition in pistol shooting. He was able to walk long distances without difficulty.

Just this month, Dr. Vineberg said, the patient's physician reported there was little or no pain. The heart was a bit larger, compared with a pre-operative film in 1968. Dr. Vineberg said this was to be expected since the heart had been completely wrapped in omentum.

Prior to coming to Saskatoon, Dr. Vineberg presented papers to cardiological bodies at a meeting in Paris. They dealt largely with all his earlier procedures for restoring the heart's blood supply.

U.S. Males Favor Vasectomy

By C. G. McDANIEL
AP Science Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Make love, not babies.

This seems to be the attitude of the modern American male.

The number of men undergoing vasectomy—the male sterilization operation—has shown a sensational increase recently, says John R. Ragué, executive director of the Association for Voluntary Sterilization in New York City. He estimated 750,000 American males had vasectomies in 1970.

That's up from an estimated 200,000 the year before.

SIMPLE PROCEDURE

And Ragué predicted in an interview that the 1971 figure will be even greater than 1970's.

So far, an estimated three million men in the United States have had sterilization surgery — a simple procedure —done often in the doctor's office in a few minutes.

The American male is not alone.

In India, where reduction in the birth rate is a major concern, an estimated 8.2 million men have been sterilized. In Great Britain some 20,000 men underwent vasectomies last year and it is estimated the figure will be double for 1971.

Ragué said 154 vasectomy clinics have opened in 36 skates. Among them are 82 hospitals which do vasectomies in their out-patient departments.

Ragué, as well as medical authorities, attributes the recent upsurge in requests for male vasectomies to fears about possible adverse side effects from the contraceptive pills taken by women.

ABILITY NOT IMPAIRED

An obstacle to male sterilization has been the popular misconception that the operation makes the man less masculine, less able to perform sexually.

This is untrue.

A survey by the Association for Voluntary Sterilization of 25,000 men who had had vasectomies found that 85 per cent of the men felt that their sexual performances was better, 13 per cent felt it was about the same, and two per cent felt that it had declined.

In the last group, Ragué noted the aging process could have been a factor. And he estimated that fewer than .5 per cent of the men who have vasectomies ask to have it reversed, a difficult but sometimes possible operation.

Flood Talks Held

WINNIPEG (CP) — Two levels of government from both Canada and the United States held a one-day closed door meeting at the Manitoba legislature Wednesday and came up with a set of recommendations to help alleviate annual spring flooding problems along the Manitoba-North Dakota border.

The recommendations will be forwarded to the state, provincial and federal governments for approval.

PHOSPHATES 'HAZARD'

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — The director of the Canada Centre for Inland Waters criticized the surgeon-general of the United States Wednesday for saying recently that detergent phosphates aren't the pollution-hazard earlier supposed.

Dr. J. P. Bruce told a Queen's University audience that Canada still considers phosphates significantly harmful to the environment and intends to progressively eliminate as many as possible from draining into waterways.

He also criticized statements by the surgeon-general that NTA, a substitute for phosphates in detergents, has been "insufficiently tested" and is "suspect" of causing cancer.

Juvenile Court Experiment

GIRL PLEADS ON TV

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — The 17-year-old girl had been charged with being a runaway, being incorrigible, and shoplifting. As she pleaded with the judge to let her return home, television cameras recorded the hearing for broadcast later.

The departure from the normal court reluctance to disclose details of juvenile cases was authorized by Judge Michael Corrigan of Sedgwick County juvenile court as part of his quest for new methods to deter crime.

His search for new methods also includes a program to build up a corps of 250 volunteer probation counsellors.

Names of the juveniles are sometimes withheld in reporting cases from the court, but for the televised case the girl's name was used and cameras were allowed to show a front view of her.

Crews from KAKE-TV in Wichita filmed both the pretrial hearing and a later court session to determine disposition of her case. The material was then telecast during a Sunday night news program.

Corrigan granted the girl's request to return home with her mother, with the understanding that both mother and daughter would undergo counselling by a court-appointed psychiatrist.

Corrigan, 34, a father of three, says favorable reaction to the televising of the girl's case has led him to consider some additional televised coverage, particularly in cases involving drugs, where he believes public awareness is critical.

"I believe this exposure is a system of checks and balances of the judge and the court . . . and I believe this is something the people should have. This filming was an educational process — to bring the people into the court and make them a part of the court. Only through this graphic presentation can I arouse the interest of the public."

Kissinger to China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced today that Dr. Henry A. Kissinger will leave for Peking Saturday to work out final plans for President Nixon's forthcoming trip to China.

Kissinger, Nixon's assistant for national security affairs, will spend about four days in the Chinese capital. Kissinger and his party will arrive in Peking Tuesday.

IF AMBASSADOR CAN AFFORD AIR FARE TO UN

Tiny Nation Holds Key to China Vote

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — With the China representation debate coming up in the General Assembly next week, a tiny group of islands in the Indian Ocean is achieving stature far out of proportion to its size.

The islands are the Maldives, members of the UN. The Nationalist Chinese of Taiwan count them as supporters.

But the Maldives, with a population of about 107,000, are not rich. Their ambassador to the UN and the United States has derived most of his living over the years selling Maldivian stamps in Washington.

Now the Washington—and thus UN—embassy has closed and the ambassador has moved to London, giving no indication to UN officials when he will return here.

The vote on China representation is expected to be close enough so that the way the Maldives go could be the way the UN goes.

CHINA QUESTION NEXT

The 131-country General Assembly finished its general debate Wednesday and the next big order of business will be the China representation question which opens Monday.

Officially, the assembly will deal with the item submitted annually by Albania calling for the expulsion of the Nationalists and the seating of the People's Republic of China.

But the United States plans to use parliamentary procedures to seat the People's Republic in the assembly and the Security Council and keep a seat for the Nationalists in the assembly.

First, the Americans will attempt to have the assembly declare that the expulsion of the Nationalists is an important question needing a two-thirds majority of those voting for passage and, second, amend the Albanian resolution to provide for membership of both Chinas.

The U.S. expressed some optimism Wednesday for its two-China policy. State Secretary William Rogers told reporters that the U.S. has received "some encouragement from those who weren't committed."

Vice-President Spiro Agnew is expected to attempt to seek support from Turkey, Iran and Greece during his current visits to those countries.

Bolivia and Mauritius have joined the co-sponsors of various U.S. two-China resolutions, it was announced Wednesday. With the exception of Australia, New Zealand, Japan and the Philippines the majority of the U.S. co-sponsors are small countries with little influence.

Meanwhile, the U.S. continued to say that the expulsion of the Nationalists from the UN could effect congressional approval of funds for the UN.

In Washington, a Nixon administration official told congressmen Wednesday that the U.S. is making no threats to reduce its UN contributions.

He appeared before a House of Representatives subcommittee which heard former UN ambassadors Henry Cabot Lodge and Nicholas Katzenbach express opposition to the fund-cutting threat suggested earlier this week by Senator James L. Buckley, Conservative Republican of New York.

Nixon was represented with petitions signed by 336 members of the House expressing strong opposition to the expulsion of Taiwan.

Co-Ops, Credit Unions Get Tax Break

OTTAWA (CP) — Co-operatives, credit unions and investmnt funds stand to benefit under 95 amendments to the government's tax-change bill proposed by Finance Minister E. J. Benson Wednesday.

He tabled the proposed amendments in the Commons as MPs began clause-by-clause consideration of the bill in committee of the whole House.

Most of the amendments—which will be officially introduced as consideration of the bill continues—are technical.

But in two areas they represented concessions.

Co-operatives and credit unions generally would be able to return more patronage dividends and interest rebates to their members, although still not as much as now.

In addition, their tougher tax regime would be introduced over 10 years instead of all at once.

Also, retirement savings trusts would be given until 1974 to rearrange their investments to avoid losing tax benefits on investments that have more than 10 per cent foreign content.

The tax bill, which received second reading in the Commons Tuesday, would widely change the country's tax structure.

Among changes are increased basic exemptions for all taxpayers, decreased corporation taxes, introduction of a capital gains tax and abolition of federal estate taxes.

CAN'T EARN DEDUCTIONS

Treatment of co-ops and credit unions was a major issue during second-reading debate on the bill, and Mr. Benson said his proposed alterations acknowledged this.

Co-ops and credit unions now cannot earn tax deductions by giving out patronage dividends or interest rebates once they reduce tseir taxable income to less than three per cent of member capital.

For example, if a co-op were using $100,000 in member funds to operate and made profits of $12,000 for the year, it could declare $9,000 in dividends to its members.

That $9,000 would represent profits—$12,000—minus the three per cent of members funds—$3,000—that the government now insists on taxing.

Under the bill introduced last June 18, dividends would be further limited by requiring that five per cent of member funds used be the minimum tax base.

Thus, only $7,000—$12,000 profit minus $5,000 base—could be returned to members as dividends.

Under an amendment proposed Wednesday by Mr. Benson, co-ops could either use the five-per-cent regulation in the bill or a new alternative—dividends could not reduce taxable income below one-third of profits after interest rebates.

Thus, $18,000 could be returned as patronage dividends in the above example—two-thirds of profits, leaving one-third taxable.

Credit unions returning interest rebates to members would have the same options.

Investment funds with more than 10 per cent of their money invested outside Canada would be given 3½ years to reduce that outside investment for taxation purposes.

Money now in pension plans, retirement plans, savings-plan trusts and deferred profit-sharing plan trusts get a tax deferment because it is not taxed until benefits return to individual investors.

Under the tax bill, they would lose that deferment if more than 10 per cent were invested outside Canada either directly or indirectly through mutual funds or trust company pools.

The proposed amendments would give those intermediary mutual funds or trusts until 1974 to bring their investment ratio up to 90 per cent Canadian.

But another amendment would make investment corporations subject to the same foreign-content regulations as mutual funds and trusts.

Commons opposition Wednesday was in the same generalities that marked the 12 days of second-reading debate on the bill.

The one exception was John Burton (NDP—Regina East), who commended Mr. Benson for making concessions to the co-ops and credit unions.

Hijacked Texan Dies in Cuba

HAVANA (Reuter) — A Texas businessman died of a heart attack aboard a Venezuelan airliner as a hijacker diverted it from Caracas and forced it to land here early Wednesday.

The Cuban foreign ministry announced the death of Leonard A. Coats, an employee of Petroleum Machines Works Co., and gave the cause of death as heart failure.

Reports from Caracas said that the Convair 580 was commandeered as it was about to land there after a flight from Barcelona, Venezuela, 150 miles east of the capital.

The United States Federal Aviation Agency in Miami reported that the plane made a refueling stop at Curacao in the Netherlands West Indies and the hijacker allowed an ailing man and three women with small babies to leave the plane.

LEWIS JUSTIFIES SOME TAKEOVERS

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said today the New Democratic Party does not advocate widespread nationalization of industry, but public takeover is justified in some cases.

For example, he said, the Texpack Ltd. plant in Brantford, Ont., beset by strikes and other labor problems for several months, might fare better if it became publicly-owned.

"Texpack largely sells to the government and therefore in a case like Texpack you could make a good argument, I think, for taking it over."

Mr. Lewis told interviewers Pierre Berton and Charles Templeton on a program on radio station CKEY that his party does not subscribe to the economic nationalism advocated by the NDP's Waffle group or the old-line socialists.

"I'm saying that the old socialism as it applied in European experience turned out to be more bureaucratic, more inefficient and more rigid in many ways than using economic and fiscal and budgetary policy to achieve the same ends."

Admits 'Friendship'

VATICAN CITY (Reuter) — An Argentine bishop, Msgr. Jeronimo Jose Podesta, denied Wednesday that he is married, but confessed he has a deep friendship with a woman.

"I consider it a grace and I cannot give it up," the bishop told a news conference.

Msgr. Podesta, titular bishop of Orrea, resigned as bishop in charge of Avelleneda, a poor suburb of Buenos Aires, for what he described as "socio-political reasons."

Convicted FLQers Air Complaints

MONTREAL (CP) — Six men, including Francis Simard, convicted murderer of Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, have issued a written complaint of the treatment they are allegedly receiving at St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary.

The seven-page document, signed by Michel Viger, Pierre Boucher, Robert Hudson, Pierre Demers, Francois Schirm and Simard, was written Oct. 4 and released Wednesday by lawyer Robert Limieux.

The men say they have been "subjected to excessive surveillance measures not usual for other prisoners" and have been separated from other prisoners for political reasons.

All men are serving prison terms for sentences related to Front de Liberation du Quebec activities.

Their major complaint is that they are being kept in cells which measure 4½ feet by eight feet and which they say were condemned by the minister of health in 1934.

Other complaints in the document were:

- That the men received leftover laundry and that some had not received a change of underwear in 15 days because they were not given their proper size;
- That they have not been allowed to follow school courses they were undertaking in other institutions;
- That one man has not been able to see a medical specialist about a back problem;

The six men claim the measures being used against them were specially ordered by Solicitor-General Jean-Pierre Goyer.

New Water Act 'Fails To Protect Public'

VANCOUVER (CP) — The anti-pollution group SPEC says the government's proposed water resources act is filled with autocratic and "big brother, government" provisions, omitting adequate protection for either the public interest or private rights.

SPEC's attack on the bill is contained in a "critique" which has been sent to Ray Williston, minister of lands, forests and water resources, by Derrick Mallard, executive director of the group.

Mr. Williston introduced the bill to the legislature last March, explaining that he would not ask the house to proceed with enactment until the 1972 session, after interested parties had a chance to study it and offer their criticisms to the government.

He said at the time that the bill had been made deliberately "provocative" — but he did not indicate which parts he regarded that way.

In his comments to Williston, Mr. Mallard praised the government "for its democratic initiative that will permit public debate on proposed legislation." He then went on the attack.

He said the bill should clearly state the government's intent in bringing in the legislation.

"Since there is a great need for wise management and conservation of water resources," wrote Mr. Mallard, "we could applaud an act intended for this purpose.

"If this is actually intended, we would recommend a title change to this act with a preface clearly outlining its aims and intent."

Mr. Mallard said some sections of the bill — especially those giving the minister tight controls over water resource surveys — "appear to place undue power in the hands of the government and the minister, thus precluding debate in the legislature and in the public domain."

Other sections which permit the making of "secretive decisions" on water resource management should be deleted, he recommended.

Quebec-Ottawa Family Allowance Talks Stalled

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa supports his health minister's claims that federal-provincial talks on family allowances are stalled, but remains optimistic that agreement will be reached somehow.

"There is a meeting of officials which is not working," Mr. Bourassa told reporters just before a cabinet meeting Wednesday night. "But that's not to say that you should immediately conclude there is nothing to be done."

Federal Welfare Minister John Munro told reporters Wednesday he was surprised by Quebec's annoyance but hoped "the disagreements are not serious." Officials of both governments have been meeting during the last 10 days.

Both governments have announced new family allowance plans that would take wealthier families out of the present programs and increase payments to poorer recipients.

Quebec has been seeking exclusive jurisdiction over such welfare programs within the province, while the federal government wants to retain its own power to distribute the money.

Yes, all it takes is an inexpensive, effectively worded Classified Ad in Victoria's Daily Newspapers to bring satisfactory results. Classified is THE PEOPLE'S marketplace, where goods and services are bought and sold EVERY DAY OF THE WEEK!

Enthusiastic people keep finding more and more uses for Classified, the advertising section devoted exclusively to their wants and needs.

SELL!

Inexpensive Classified Ads, effectively worded and released at the right time, will sell anything—from miscellaneous household items to important valuables. There is always someone looking for the very item you wish to sell.

BUY!

People who are ready to buy shop Classified for everything from the familiar to the unique. Every day you see column after column of houses for sale, new and used cars, musical instruments, sports equipment, appliances and miscellany. The Classified Columns are your reliable shopping guide.

RENT!

Classified is THE PEOPLE'S rental guide. Newcomers and established residents turn to Classified for information on houses and apartments for rent, business premises, commercial buildings and various types of lodgings. Vacancies are quickly filled through Classified.

HIRE!

Employment is a very busy feature of Classified. A well paying career has often been the result of answering a "Help Wanted" advertisement. Job hunters rely on "Situations Wanted" to help find employment. The Business Service Directory offers a great variety of trades services to fill every need. Classified is the place to look, and the place to advertise, when an employment problem presents itself.

Even Russian Police Gatecrash Ellington Jazz Tour

By ROBERT G. KAISER

MOSCOW (WP) — In Kiev, about half an hour before Duke Ellington's band began a concert two weeks ago, an American official travelling with the group took a last look around the big Palace of Sport to make sure everything was ready.

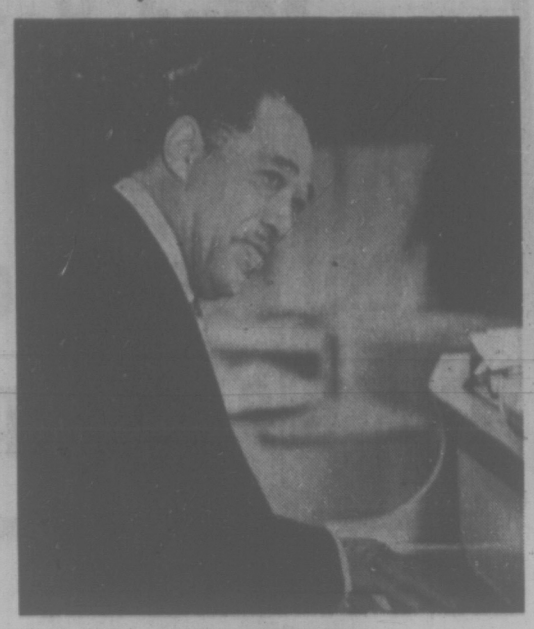
In the hall he found a great many policemen, and began chatting with one of them. Why so many police? the American wondered.

The Russian explained: "We're members of the police band, and we thought we could slip into the concert by wearing our uniforms."

It has been that kind of tour for the 72-year-old Ellington and his 16-man orchestra. In Moscow, where Ellington ended his tour Tuesday, the pressure for tickets was so intense that the government reversed itself and allowed two extra concerts here in the giant sports palace which seats about 10,000. As late as last Friday those extra concerts had not been authorized and tickets for the Duke's four performances in a small downtown Moscow theatre were selling for 50 rubles (about $55) each on the black market. Reportedly, even some influential people in high places were unable to get tickets for the Ellington concerts, which may explain why the two extra performances in the big palace of sport were approved.

"We've been waiting for you for centuries!" a young Moscow fan yelled at Ellington when he arrived here last month, and so it seemed — at least for this country's dedicated jazz fans.

In Leningrad local enthusiasts had staged their own Duke Ellington festival two years ago, and they were more than ready to greet the great man himself. Some young Leningraders got into trouble with Soviet authorities for pursuing Ellington and his band too avidly.



DUKE ELLINGTON
. . . sell-out tour

At least one Leningrader was so taken with Ellington after seeing the orchestra in his home town that he travelled to Moscow to see him again. In all, more than 110,000 people have seen one of Ellington's 22 concerts here.

The official Soviet reaction to the Ellington tour has also been favorable. Izvestia, the government paper, ran a small item Monday night with a picture of the Duke, praising his music and noting that "Ellington is not only a musician, but is also an ardent fighter and active defender of the civil rights of Negro people."

Ellington and his men seem to have survived the Soviet Union rather than thrived on it. When a reporter dropped into the band's Moscow hotel he found that almost half the men had gone to the American embassy to see the doctor there.

The musicians have mixed opinions about this country. Money Johnson, a trumpeter who has been here before, says Russia "is beautiful, these people are all beautiful."

Another musician observed that "this place is like confined or something." An English businessman living in the same hotel said the band "seems to have a lot of parties" late at night. Ellington himself said on the day he arrived here — when he was besieged by about 50 jazz fans at the airport — that "I feel like I'm surrounded by old friends who've been listening to what we've been doing for a long time." He repeated similar sentiments all month.

Ellington and his musicians met many Russians, and played with local musicians several times. Probably the gayest party at the American Embassy in many years took place at the weekend when Ambassador Jacob D. Beam entertained the Ellington orchestra and dozens of Soviet citizens in his cavernous residence. The Duke, his men, Russian musicians and eventually even Mrs. Beam entertained the crowd with music and song.

Color photographs of the Duke were passed out to the guests at the party, and all evening long senior Soviet officials walked around the room with a copy of this picture clutched in their hands, looking for Ellington to get an autograph, or showing off the autograph they already had.

Writer Duo Wins 5 Gold Song Awards

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Jerry Foster and Bill Rice, one of Nashville's hottest country songwriter teams, won five gold awards for themselves and their publisher Wednesday night at the annual ASCAP Country Music Awards show.

Foster and Rice won awards for five songs—At Least Part of the Way, Dixie Belle, Give Him Love, Travelin', Minstrel Man, and What About the Hurt.

In addition, Rice won an artist award for Travelin', Minstrel Man, and their publisher, Jack and Bill Music, won five publisher awards.

The awards were the latest presented during Nashville's big week of country music celebrations.

War has been with us a long time. Somebody once said that the history of a country is the history of its wars. Another man said war is stupid, vicious, self-defeating. A third man said let's put an end to war.

In 1914 began the most destructive war the world had ever known. It was a war to end all wars. Four years later, with a continent devastated and millions dead...it was over. The great struggle had ended.

Dalton Trumbo's "Johnny Got His Gun," is not about the 80 millions who died, but about one man who survived. It is the story of a man who fought the war to end all wars . . . the war which would make the world safe for democracy.

See it – it may change your life!

New-Look Haymes Shuns Nostalgia in Comeback

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The warm baritone sounds the same, and he looks as boyish as before, although the brown hair is streaked with silver. But there is a different attitude about Dick Haymes as he returns to Hollywood for the first time in 10 years.

The name conjures a flock of memories: his quick ascent to singing fame in the crooner era created by Frank Sinatra; his stardom in glittering Fox musicals, usually opposite Betty Grable; his six marriages, including much-headlined ones to Rita Hayworth, Joanne Dru and Nora Eddington Flynn.

The more recent news was less pleasant: bankruptcy proceedings in Britain, where he owed $38,400. Ten years ago he was bankrupt in the U.S. with debts of $446,000.

NEW ATTENTION

If such problems weigh on Dick Haymes, it isn't noticeable. Here to appear with co-star Grable on a Tennessee Ernie Ford TV special for NBC, Haymes was brimming with optimism.

"The amount of the English bankruptcy is very small," he remarked, and I have already paid back a third of it. The rest will be repaid soon. Things are beginning to happen."

He was speaking of his career, which lately had been limited to concert dates in Britain. His bankruptcy hearing in July brought him new attention from the show world, which aims to cash in on the nostalgia craze.

"But I don't just want to sing the old songs," Haymes insisted.

"The old days don't interest me; I'm very much a part of today."

He hopes to land a couple of other TV variety shows. A record contract is in the works, and there is the possibility of a Las Vegas date. He played there 15 times in his heyday.

Meanwhile Haymes, born in Argentina of Scottish-Irish parents, lives in Madrid with wife Wendy, a former English model and their two young children. He plans to enter film production there.

TOO LAZY

Despite the troubles that have plagued his later years, the 52-year-old singer takes a mellow view. He mused:

"Why did I have so many problems? Laziness. That was it, pure and simple. I was simply too lazy to take care of the things that I should have. I was too lazy to fight the child support and alimony suits that I was faced with. I simply said, 'Oh, let them take it.' And so I ended up with nothing."

At one point he sought booze as relief from his troubles.

"That was another mistake," he said. "I was drinking so much I didn't realize what was going on. That's over now, I don't take a drop, not even beer. I never liked beer, anyway."

A touch of religion entered his life as well: "I'm not one of those religious nuts, but I've drawn a lot of strength from relying on God. I don't have an agent now; God is my agent. And He's doing very well by me."

City Store Operators Charged

Three Greater Victoria food market operators were charged Wednesday with short-weighting meat and other produce sold in their stores.

Spencer Kong, carrying on business as Porter's Lucky Dollar, 2077 Cadboro Bay, William Michaud, of Wakeham's Quality Meats, 2564 Sinclair, and Peter Seto, as The Food Palace, 2 West Gorge, were charged separately under the Weights and Measures Act.

Judge William Ostler remanded all three to Oct. 22 for plea.

Kong was charged with selling round steak to a person May 5 for $1.09 that was 1¼ ounces short of the one-pound listed weight.

Michaud was charged with selling $3.60 worth of meat May 7 that was 6½ ounces short of the listed weight. He was also charged with selling more meat for $1.80 that was one ounce short.

Peter Seto was charged with selling meat at $1.39 that was 3 ounces short and 65 cents of potato salad that was 2½ ounces short of the one-pound listed weight.

TRAIL HIKE TO MARK RANGER DAY

Victoria and district Rangers will celebrate National Ranger Day Saturday with a ranger and guest hike along Centennial Trail, finishing with a picnic supper at Goldstream Park.

This will be followed by an invitational campfire at Girl Guide headquarters on Mason with other youth groups taking part.

Formerly known as Sea, Land or Air Rangers, the three divisions have now combined as Rangers in order to broaden their scope of activities, which include hiking, camping, boating and community service.

Italian Industry Faltering, Coke Closure Makes It Official

By CLAIRE STERLING

ROME (WP) — Now that budget minister Antonio Giolitti has come right out and said so, there is no longer much doubt that Italy is sliding down the slippery slope into what may be its worst postwar recession.

For the first time in nearly a quarter of a century, more than a million workers are unemployed here. Industrial production has actually dropped, and is lower now than it was two years ago. Industrial working time has been cut by 143 million hours in the last eight months. Mass layoffs are spreading from the chronically sick building and textile industries to such sturdy giants as Pirelli, Mangeti Marelli, Maserati, and Zanussi, European king of domestic appliances. Plant after plant is closing down altogether, the latest and splashiest case being Coca-Cola in Rome.

Forecasts of the 1971 growth rate, scaled down steadily from last January, to have just hit zero.

It was the budget minister himself who admitted the possibility of a zero growth rate this week, along with the equally gloomy admission that the rest of 1971 was "too full of uncertainties" for him to make any predictions at all about 1972.

Whatever the many different reasons for this situation, its origins are traceable to the hot autumn of 1969, when practically the whole Italian working-class was out on strike, on an off, from September until Christmas.

The strike wave, which set world records for man-hours lost, ended with a succession of large wage increases.

The nation's convulsive reactions to this change are essentially what has knocked and kept the economy off balance.

What happened was much the same this time as in 1964, when a first postwar round of big wage increases brought on Italy's first postwar recession. But this one may be harder to get out of, as the Bank of Italy's governor, Guido Carli, warned some months ago.

The economy might have rolled with, and even thrived on, the 1969 wage jump if productivity had kept pace. Assuming it would, many big industries here began to expand early in 1970. Developments from then on are generally blamed by everybody concerned on everybody else.

Productivity sagged as workers showed a positive aversion to overtime, made still more wage demands and went on striking. Industry stopped investing. The government, which might be said to have stopped governing if it were doing much in that line before, failed to push through elementary reforms pending for 20 years — schools, taxes, cheap housing — that might have calmed the workers enough to reassure industrialists.

Perpetually rising labour costs very nearly eliminated Italy's competitive edge abroad, and dented corporate profits too much to leave enough over for self-financing. Credit thereupon grew tighter as bankers grew more nervous.

Vision Fading

LONDON (Reuter) — The eyesight of black revolutionary Angela Davis is deteriorating in prison, her sister said Wednesday. On the first anniversary of Miss Davis' arrest, her sister, Fania Jordan, told an audience of several hundred in London's Central Hall: "She is virtually in solitary confinement and her vision is deteriorating. She is rapidly losing weight as the food she is eating is so nauseating."

Crash Writ For CP Air

CANBERRA (Reuter) — Insurers for the Australian government-owned Trans-Australian Airlines have taken out a writ in the high court against the Australian government and Canadian Pacific Airlines for unspecified damages, Civil Aviation Minister Robert Cotton disclosed Wednesday.

The writ follows an aircraft collison in Sydney last January between a TAA Boeing 727 taking off from Mascot Airport and a Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-8 which had just landed.

Although none of the passengers in the two planes was injured, damage to both aircraft was considerable.

Cotton, tabling in Parliament the official report of his department's investigation, said it showed that errors by the crews of both aircraft and by air traffic controllers at Sydney's international airport had caused the accident.

RED CARPET UNROLLING FOR KOSYGIN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two complete floors of the Hotel Vancouver have been reserved for Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin and his official party of about 75 for their Oct. 22-24 visit here.

One of the reserved floors is Plaza 14, formerly known as the Royal Suite, which consists of three large luxury suites.

Kosygin may stay on this floor or he may use an executive suite, a hotel spokesman said Wednesday.

Groos Makes Nuclear Plea

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — David Groos, Victoria Liberal MP who is a member of the Canadian delegation, called for a ban on all nuclear tests in the general assembly's special political committee Wednesday.

He said that Canada sincerely hopes that the "abhorrence of nuclear testing" of the past "will continue to bear heavily on the conscience of those governments who at present persist in continuing their test programs."

The Age of AccuColor, Phase II:

RCA AccuColor brings you something better in color television—The Natural Look.

Just touch one of 16 'AccuTouch' channel numbers. Your station is tuned in electronically. Immediately—to The Natural Look of 'AccuColor'! With quiet electronic buttons carefully pre-tuned to present channels in your area, including UHF. (And provision for future ones as well.) You can also enjoy a model with Remote Tuning, the ultimate in comfortable color.

And color now behaves naturally. All the time. Never too weak or too wild. RCA's more advanced tuning system captures all the colors correctly. RCA's brighter picture tube puts them on your screen at their natural best. Then, easily, automatically, just one turn of the exclusive 'AccuMatic' switch holds them there. Naturally. All the time.

All RCA's 'Natural Look' superiority is backed up by the toughest chassis in our history. And there's a nice feeling of protection with RCA's comprehensive 5-Year Warranty Plan.

ROME (WP) — By next March a satellite called ERTS-A will be able to tell us how fast the Sahara is advancing northward and southward along a 400-mile front, where underground water is rising toward the surface beneath half a million square miles of Libyan desert, whether to expect shortfalls or bumper crops of grain in the northern or southern hemisphere, where pospectors ought to look for oil or molybdenum, whether potato blight is about to break out in Maine or coconut wilt in Kerala, who is dumping how much mercury into some Yugoslav river or the gulf of Mexico, which Antarctic icebergs might be towed to California to cool hot water from atomic power plants.

Alas, ERTS-A will not be able to take the temperature of plants coming down with a fever. But ERTS-B will, a year later.

492 MILES HIGH

The procedure is known as remote sensing, which it literally is. The sensing will be done from orbit 492 miles above the earth, with a battery of scatterometers, infrared scanners, laser profilers, side-looking radar, anti-lurch, shudder and yaw installations, antennae to communicate with earth sensors sending up ground truth, multi-spectral camera windows and Hasselblad cameras.

You don't really need all this to sense remotely. Any bush pilot can do it if he can fly a straight line in a Cessna two-seater, with infra-red Ektachrome film and filters he could buy anywhere.

Armies do quite a bit of it too, with more expensive lines of equipment (the U-2 senses very well remotely), and astronauts have inevitably done some in the course of doing other things.

EVERY CORNER

But there has never been anything like the earth mission satellite ERTS-A, which is going to sense every corner of the world every 18 days — 10,000 square miles in a single instant of time — for a year, with such stunning accuracy that it can learn more than a farmer knows about his own 10-acre field within a one per cent margin of error.

This will give the human race its first chance to take an inventory of the planet: What exactly is on it in the way of plants, animals, forests, land, water, minerals, people; what stresses nature, and we, are putting on it.

ALL INVITED

The project is NASA's and with it the credit for putting ERTS-A's singular talents at the world's disposal. Everybody was invited to sumit projects in a dozen fields — forestry, geology, hydrology, geography, cartography, meteorology, climatology, oceanography, demography, environmental quality — for its 350-odd experiments. Thirty-two countries did, and even those who didn't will be free to buy prints of any 10,000 square-mile picture for about $6.

It is not so much the versatility of this satellite as the harmony of the world it will explore that makes so many simultaneous and often revolutionary experiments possible.

SHADES OF RED

All objects on earth with temperatures above absolute zero (-372 C) radiate electromagnetic energy, and receive radiation from their surroundings. All of this shows up somewere on the electromagnetic spectrum, and can be sensed at enormous distances by laser or radar, or infra-red and panchromatic film.

On an Indian coconut plantation in Kerala, for instance, the crowns of healthy coconut palms show up red on infra-red false color film, jacktrees a brighter red, cashews pink, and some trees that look perfectly all right to the naked eye turn pale on film, meaning they have a virus.

There is hardly a limit to what ERTS-A will be able to "see" like this. Vigorous and ailing crops anywhere on the globe, moisture in soil, overgrazed land, lost or unsounted people, geological faults or folds suggesting, respectively mineral and fuel deposits, oil slicks on the sea, smoke plumes in the air, pollutants in lakes or rivers. It can even see which rivers can survive pollution better than others; and what it doesn't see it will hear, by radio, from the earth sensors.

A GODSEND

If it did nothing but tell countries what they are actually doing with their own land, ERTS-A would be a godsend. No country really knows, though all of them really must. The United States, for instance, simply cannot keep track of changing land use tending, among other things, to form megalopoli such as Bosnywash (Boston, New York, Washington) which will soon be needing three billion gallons of water daily.

Yet for all the U.S. technological ingenuity, the federal governments took 10 years to prepare a detailed land use map selling for $100 and hopelessly out of date on publication. Even the U-2, sensing remotely, would need to take a million pictures to do the U.S. job. ERTS-A can do it with 550.

For poor countries who often don't know not only what they're doing, but what they're not doing with their land — what rich soil may lie unused or timber uncut, what water may be waiting underground to be tapped, what dazzling natural wealth they may be sitting on — ERTS-A is a pearl peyond price.

They are evidently aware of it, too, since they are willing to pay. NASA, which has invested $100 million in ERTS-A and B, is not giving its product away for nothing. The data will be free, but all 32 countries taking part will have to pay for the interpreting and make the findings available to NASA.

Nobody seems to mind, not even indigent Mali, which hopes to develop the Niger basin's water resources with ERTS-A's help. Furthermore, when an intentional workshop was help at Ann Arbor last summer to teach people how to interpret ERTS data, 300 showed up from 53 countries, at their own expense.

Still, there's a limit to how much they can spend. Interpreting is nearly everything were remote sensing is concerned, an art as much as a science. Scientists and managers can be oriented in use of the data in only five weeks, at the University of California.

But it takes a year and a lot more money to train a really good interpreter. Scholarships are reportedly on the way, which the FAO hopes to administer and certainly ought to, if only to avoid giving the whole enterprise a too-sticky

Mars Trench Found

WESTFORD, Mass. (AP) — Massachusetts Institute of Technology scientists at Haystack Observatory have found a 2.5-mile-deep gorge and a 1,200-mile-diameter crater on Mars. The discoveries, announced Wednesday, were made in analysis of radar probes directed at Mars for the last three months with the observatory's 12-foot radio antenna.

IT DOESN'T SURPRISE ME THAT SO MANY MOTHERS keep BABY'S OWN TABLETS on hand at all times. One young mother I chatted with recently said "I found Baby's Own Tablets so helpful, not only when my baby was teething, but also when he had an upset tummy." It's true that whether it's a tummy upset, simple colic, fever or fretfulness, a frequent cause is irregularity. Particularly at teething time. Baby's Own Tablets are specially made for these occasions. They work gently to soothe the pain and relieve the cause. When irregularity upsets your baby, remember gentle-acting Baby's Own Tablets.

ADVERTISING CLAIMS INQUIRY

U.S. Auto Giants Explain It All

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Federal Trade Commission Wednesday made public the materials submitted by seven automobile companies to substantiate advertising claims.

The companies — the big four U.S. manufacturers plus three foreign car makers were asked to submit evidence to back up such claims as General Motors' contention that its Chevrolet Chevelle has "109 advantages to keep it from becoming old before its time."

GM's evidence consisted of a list of Chevelle's "features," including a number of anti-pollution and safety items required by federal law; items considered standard equipment, and styling attributes. Among the "109 advantages" were: automatic choke; back-up lights; balanced wheels and tires; new selection of interior colors (listed twice); outside rear-view mirror; full line of models, and padded sun visors.

The FTC released the information without comment, but is studying it to see if there has been any deceptive advertising. The documents are available for public inspection, and may be published at a later date.

To back up its advertising claim run in May, 1971, that the Ford LTD is "quieter than some of the world's most expensive cars," Ford Motor Co. submitted two reports more than five years old. One test, conducted in 1965, compared two used 1965 Rolls-Royces and five used 1965 Fords — only one of them an LTD. The other 1965 test compared new 1966 Fords with nine older foreign cars — including a 1963 Daimler with over 37,000 miles and a 1964 Jaguar with 20,000 miles.

Ford's claim that its LTD was "over 600 per cent quieter" was documented by a report on a series of tests in downtown Chicago where the noise level inside the car was compared to the noise level outside the car, not to a competitor's noise level. American Motors, asked to prove its claim that the Hornet is the "lowest priced compact made in America," submitted a list of the suggested retail prices for the lowest-priced two-door American compacts. The Hornet, at 2,174 dollars, was one dollar cheaper than its nearest competitor, the Ford Maverick. The common practice among dealers, however is to sell cars at prices significantly below the manufacturer's suggested retail price.

Nissan Motor Corp., asked to document ad claims of the Datsun it distributes, submitted as evidence the very advertisement from which the claims came. So did many other companies.

Other companies submitting data were Chrysler Corp., Volkswagen of America, Inc., and Toyota Motor Co., Ltd. Chrysler backed up a 30-mile-per-gallon claim for the Dodge Colt with a one-page report on a one-day gasoline mileage test involving only two cars.

A good deal of the data consisted of in-house company documents, not independent analysis. Quite a bit of evidence was in the form of magazine articles.

Ford, for instance, sent in a consumer reports article and survey of the frequency of auto repair to back up an ad for the Maverick. Consumer reports specifically prohibits the use of its tests conclusions in advertising.

The auto companies were the first major industry asked by the FTC to send in evidence to back up their ad claims. Makers of air conditioners and electric shavers were also asked, and another industry will be cited Thursday.

Escapee Recaptured

VANCOUVER (CP) — A man who escaped from jail at Squamish Tuesday night was recaptured Wednesday by Vancouver city police.

Police said Robert Valiquette, 20, escaped from the RCMP lockup by forcing a cell door.

Valiquette, along with Alan Laforest, 21, and Real Dubois, 22, was charged following an attempt to break open the vault of a Royal Bank branch at Britannia, Sept. 28.

Police said all three men were from the Montreal area.

Interment in Royal Oak Burial Park. Arrangements by the Sands Mortuary Limited.

The Lord is my shepherd: I shall not want,
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.
PSALM 23.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our grateful appreciation to our many friends, relatives and neighbors for the kindness and sympathy extended us at the loss of our beloved son and brother — Warren Gilmour Maclier. Special thanks to Mrs. Smith of St. Joseph's Hospital, the RCMP Colwood and Shawnigan Lake detachments and the loggers at the scene of the accident. Also we wish to thank Rev. A. Calder and Sands Mortuary. — Mr. and Mrs. Allan W. Maclier and Family.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends and neighbors who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement; special thanks to Rev. Wright and Dr. W. Foster.
—George and Anne Gunniss.

The family of Nicholas Cockburn wish to thank the many friends for flowers, cards, phone calls, and letters of condolence during their recent bereavement; especially members of the F.O.E. Also thanks to those who donated to the Heart Fund in lieu of flowers.

9 IN MEMORIAM

BOON — In loving memory of our dear Mother and Grandma, who passed away October 14, 1970. Those whom we love so out of sight,
But never out of mind.
They are cherished in the hearts Of those they leave behind.
—Always remembered by Frances, Tom and Jim and their families.

PAINTER — In loving memory of a dear Husband and Father, Bertram H. Painter, who passed away October 14th, 1969.
Two sad and lonely years have passed
Since our great sorrow fell.
The shock that we received that day
No one can ever tell.
God gave us courage to meet it,
And strength to bear the blow;
But what it meant to lose you,
No one will ever know.
It's lonely here without you,
We miss you more each day,
For life is not the same to us
Since you were called away.
You bade no one a last farewell.
Or even said goodbye;
You were gone before we realized
And only God knows why.
—So sadly missed and lovingly remembered by his wife, Gladys, and Margaret and Albert.

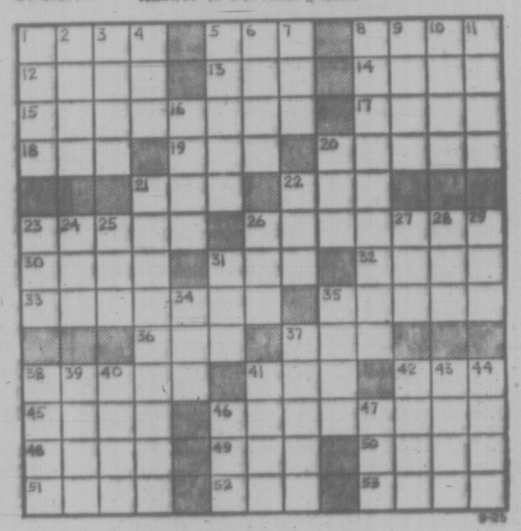
Answer to Previous Puzzle



YOUR HEALTH Dr. Walter Alvarez

Many years ago when I was in San Francisco, I had as a dear friend one of the finest gynecologists and obstetricians in the United States, Dr. Frederic M. Loomis. He wrote several books that sold wonderfully well. One of them caused many intelligent people to think a bit differently about life.

In his book, Dr. Loomis told how one night when he was at the hospital waiting for a woman to have her baby, he happened to pass the room of a fine woman patient who had come all the way from China for treatment. Seeing her door open, he dropped in to have a little chat with her. Later, when she returned to China, she wrote him a letter. She told that when she was in the big garden in the palace of the emperors in Peiping, she had seen a statement advising the reader that it is best not to put off doing what he really wants to do because "it may be later than you think."

My friend Dr. Loomis was so impressed with this bit of wisdom that he called up his closest friend, a prominent businessman in Oakland, and said, "I just bought tickets for the two of us to go on a vacation trip to South America." The man did what most people would do, and said, "I'm terribly sorry, Fred, but even though I would love to go, I had better stay and finish up a business deal." But Dr. Loomis said, "No, no; it may be later than you think." The businessman was so struck by the wisdom of this thought that he said, "All right, I'll go."

Years ago, one of my patients, an able and wealthy man, was told that he had an inoperable cancer of his prostate gland. Fortunately, it was growing so slowly that he could hope for a year of life. He said to his wife, "Let's not be sad; instead, let's make the next year the richest time of our life together. Let's invite interesting men and women to our home; let's listen to lovely music; let's read together the books we have always wanted to read; let's live each day as richly and happily as we can."

They lived according to his plan, and later, the man's wife told me how wonderful a year it had been. As she said, "When I think how we treasured every hour we had together, I am distressed whenever I see a man and wife ruining a day and making it unhappy over some little quarrel. How awful to waste a day."

I love what Helen Keller once said so wisely: "Use your eyes as if tomorrow you would be stricken blind." She wrote what she would do if she had three days to see. On the first day she would want to see the people whose kindness and companionship had made her life worth living. She would call in her friends and look for a long while into their faces. She would look, also, into the face of a baby. She would like to see the many books that had been read to her, and she would like to look into the loyal trusting eyes of her dogs. She would like to take a long walk in the woods.

The next day she would get up early to see the dawn. She would visit museums to learn of man's upward progress in the making of things. She would go, also, to an art museum to probe the soul of man by studying his pictures and sculptures. That evening she would go to a theatre, and perhaps see the grace of a great ballerina.

The third morning she would again greet the dawn, eager to discover new beauties in nature. She would spend this last day in the haunts of men, where they work. She would stand at a busy street corner, trying to understand something of the daily lives of people by looking into their faces and reading what is written there. She would see suffering and that would cause her to feel compassion.

On the last evening she would go to a theatre and see a hilariously funny play so as to appreciate the overtones of comedy in the human spirit.

All of us can learn from this great women: to use all our senses in our everyday living and to remember to do it now, because, as Dr. Loomis said, "It may be later than you think."

Swift Move Saves Trollerman's Life

Quick action on the part of pilotage officer Capt. Victor Fry saved the life of a Vancouver fisherman Wednesday when his 30-foot troller, the Glen A, swamped and sank of Ogden Point.

Fry was returning to the B.C. Pilotage office on Dallas at 1:30 p.m. when he noticed two trollers making their way east in heavy seas, whipped by winds gusting to 45 miles an hour.

Then the Glen A, owned by William Deeming, 42, was broached by a beam sea and she started to fill, then roll over.

The other boat, owned by James Bland, 324 Dallas, was powerless to alter direction in the heavy weather to come to Deeming's aid.

Fry rushed to the dock where one of the pilot boats, No. 21, was alongside. The skipper was not aboard.

He yelled to deckhand Don Collis, who cast off the lines as Fry started the engines.

No. 21 raced to the area, making a sweep in search of Deeming, who was clinging to his upturned boat.

Collis threw a line and hauled the shivering Deeming aboard. He had been in the frigid seas for almost 20 minutes.

When the No. 21 came alongside, she was met by an ambulance crew and Const. Ross Swanton of the city police.

Deeming was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital where he was treated for exposure and later released.

Recount Under Way On Senate Election

A recount of votes cast Tuesday for the two senate seats at the University of Victoria was to be held this afternoon, according to Michael Farr, returning officer.

The recount was demanded by Robert Higinbotham, last year's editor of the Martlet student newspaper, who narrowly lost the election for one of the seats.

Higinbotham trailed Brian Alguire's 795 votes by 27 votes. Derry McDonnell, the third competitor, polled 913 votes.

The senate race was part of the annual elections to the representative assembly of the Alma Mater Society.

Appeal Chairman Gets That Naked Feeling

United Appeal campaign chairman Eric Charman is minus a pair of undershorts today — but $85 in his pocket for his 1971 fund-raising drive.

The profitable exchange (for the United Appeal) took place Thursday night when Charman was guest speaker at the Jaycees' dinner at the Ingraham Hotel.

Pulling the rumpled bills and cheques from his pocket today, Charman said the Jaycees asked if he would be prepared to part with an article of clothing — his tie, shirt or perhaps a shoe — for their auction.

UNEXPECTED

"I agreed, providing the money was in my pocket first. Well, it came all right. In fact I helped to push up the bidding. But I certainly wasn't expecting that demand for my shorts."

The valuable garment will be put under the hammer again next Wednesday, at the Jaycees' United Appeal auction at the Bay Street Armory.

Meanwhile, Charman announced the fund to date totals $215,000, or 28.3 per cent of the 1971 goal of $758,723. The figure is about double that reached immediately prior to the residential canvass last year, he said.

The 1971 door-to-door canvass is on Saturday, and Charman said he is hoping for "a minimum" of $160,000 from this drive, $30,000 more than was raised last year.

"We're a little short of canvassers for some areas but if anyone doesn't hear from us on Saturday there is no need to worry; we'll get round to them eventually," he said.

Charman said he wants to stress that unless residents agree to pledge monthly or quarterly donations, on the same principle as employee deductions which have been popularly accepted this year, the appeal will not attain its target.

The special envelopes which canvassers will be leaving allow for such pledges, he said, or alternatively citizens may write a series of post-dated cheques.

As a small launch to the important day of canvassing, Charman will hold a Saturday morning breakfast in The Bay for 50 high school students who are in the 3,000-strong canvassing team.

He said the first 100 other canvassers who phone his secretary at 385-9765 will also be welcome at the breakfast.

'Funny Homes' Irk Socred MLA

CASTLEGAR, B.C. (CP) — Social Credit MLA Burt Campbell has demanded that Prime Minister Trudeau give every homeowner in his riding of Revelstoke-Slocan a $1,500 grant after visiting "funny homes" being built with 'opportunities for youth funds.

In a letter to the prime minister, Mr. Campbell said the grant is being used to build a "weird private home for American landed immigrants.

"If it is federal government policy to give grants to non-Canadians for funny homes, then I demand a $1,500 out-right no-strings attached cash grant for every private homeowner in my constituency," he wrote.

Campbell also called a $27,000 grant to the Pacific Community Self-Development Society at Vallican in the Slocan Valley "a sham and an unforgivable waste of taxpayers' money."

He said all the money has been used up "and all there is to show for it is a concrete foundation, cedar shakes, some decked logs and a pile of rock." He described the project as a "$27,000 boondoggle."

FREMONT, Calif. — A topless dancer who uses snakes in her act was in serious condition in hospital today after being bitten by one of the reptiles during a trip to the vet.

Carol Cybulski, 33, was bitten in the hand by a Florida rattlesnake before the vet had a chance to remove the poison.

TORONTO — The prosecution plans to seek an adjournment in the Oct. 25 trial of Harold Ballard, vice-president of Maple Leaf Gardens, on income tax charges following the death Wednesday of Gardens president C. Stafford Smythe. Smythe was co-defendant with Ballard on charges of theft of $146,000 in cash and securities from Maple Leaf Gardens between 1964 and 1969.

NEWHALL, Calif. — Gene Vincent, 36, rock star of the 1950s who was best known for his recording of Be-Bop-A-Lula, died in hospital here. Cause was not known.

LONDON — American film producer and actor, Mel Ferrer, collapsed in his home today and was taken to a London clinic. A hospital spokesman said it appeared he was suffering from overwork.

LONDON — Police today dropped a drunken driving charge against Oleg Lyalin, the 34-year-old employee of the Russian Trade Mission in London who helped trigger the expulsion of 105 Soviet diplomats and officials fro Britain last month. After his arrest Lyalin decided to defect and provided the information that led to the British action. Lyalin is still in hiding.

RENO — Some hunters will do anything to bag their deer. Devon Warren was in the hills on opening day when he heard a shot and saw a deer running down the mountain, a bullet wound in the shoulder. Warren grabbed his hunting knife, jumped on the deer and rode the animal 60 yards down the mountain, wrestled it to the ground and slit its throat. The hunter who shot the deer said: "Anyone who can ride a deer down the mountain deserves to have it."

HOME-GARDEN

Beauty, Money-Saving Features

By HILDA BEASTALL

The modern home garden combines practicality, comfort and beauty with money saving features. High initial property and living costs make any plan welcome if geared to long range savings. This is where an all weather (well, almost) garden structure comes into the picture.

Hilda

More cookouts have been observed this past season than ever before. Eating outdoors at home is twice as enjoyable when the food is cooked in the open air, but things must be convenient too.

The only solution to this is a combination of brick or stone fireplace, permanent table and bench, plus shower-proof roof shelter and solid flooring for lounge chairs.

Sketches and scale plans for a variety of setups suitable for our climate and way of life are to be found in books on garden structures at the Victoria Public Library.

Once the estimated initial cost is arrived at by pricing various types of materials, balance it against the estimated cost of away-from-home trips taken to get away from the home base.

These trips are often on hot evenings, weekends in summer, and various jaunts which include not only car expenses but extra cost of food purchased while away from home.

You may already have decided on a plan, but have hesitated all summer in getting it started.

While September has been ideal for such a project, there is still likely to be suitable weather for working on construction.

Choosing the exact site for maximum comfort will entail consultations with all adult members of the family, for the space must be fully utilized to be economically practical. If roofed and paved for year-round use, it will double as a safe play area in winter for small children.

Indeed, the main considerations will first be the flooring, the roof and at least one solid side. Perhaps by using a wall of a garage or the house, the constructed solid wall would be moveable from the windy northeast in winter to the sunny, hot southwest side for summer afternoons and evenings.

The chimney for the fireplace will need to conform to municipal regulations. If these cannot be met, you might compromise with outdoor electrical outlets for an all-purpose frypan and a two burner stove.

A fireplace however would serve the dual purpose of cooking and warming, widening the scope of use to cool fall days and evenings and even to sunny winter days.

The simple expediency of wearing warmer clothing keeps the family outdoors for longer periods.

Suitable shrubs and trees may already be growing in the garden. These will be the living link to blend the structure into a garden picture of which you will be justly proud.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED KARPIN

One of the advantages that the expert has over the non-expert is that the former, through experience, has learned to recognize immediately certain recurring situations and to handle them with consummate ease. Thus he is spared the trouble of working them out at the table when they arise.

The non-expert, on the other hand, is often compelled to take a "time-out" to study some previously unencountered situation. And, quite frequently, he feels that he is holding up the game if he takes too much time. So he plays hurriedly, and overlooks the winning solution.

The latter was the case in today's deal, in which an "unbeatable" slam contract was defeated simply because our South declarer did not take the time necessary to analyse the situation at hand.

Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West

Opening lead: Jack of ♡.

After winning West's opening heart lead with his queen, South led the three of diamonds to dummy's ace — and the roof caved in when East discarded a club. West, with the Q-10-6 of trumps remaining, could not now be prevented from winning two trumps tricks.

Without any doubt, declarer was unlucky into running into the 4-0 trump break, with West the possessor of the four missing trumps. The fact is however, that he could (and should) have fulfilled his contract.

At trick two, declarer should have led the trump king. With East failing to follow suit, the three of trumps would then be played, West putting up the 10 (if West followed with a low trump, dummy's eight would be inserted, with the assurance that it would win the trick).

Upon winning the trick with dummy's ace, the eight of diamonds would be led next, South playing low as West captured the trick with his queen. When he regained the lead, declarer's jack of trumps would pick up West's remaining trump.

The initial lead of the trump king would be guaranteed to restrict declarer's trump losers to a maximum of one trick. If, in theory, West had failed to follow suit to the first trump lead, a low trump would be led next to dummy's ace. Then would come a third trump lead off the board, and East, with the (hypothetical) Q-10 remaining in front of South's J-9-7, could make just one trump trick, his queen.

RHODESIA HOPES FOR SETTLEMENT

SALISBURY (Reuter) — Rhodesians, tired of six years of feuding and scarred by the effects of economic sanctions, consider chances of settling the independence issue with Britain better than ever before.

The next few months could be crucial in showing whether such thoughts are justified following the latest contacts here between the British and Rhodesian governments, or whether they will be dashed like previous moves.

British officials in London are cautious. Some senior ministers said the chances of a political practical settlement now could be considered 50-50.

But in Salisbury, the fresh attempts to end the simmering dispute about Rhodesia's unilateral declaration of independence Nov. 11, 1965, looked the most hopeful yet.

Some sources said an early meeting between British Foreign Secretary Sir Alec Douglas-Home and Rhodesian Premier Ian Smith, followed by the signing of Anglo-Rhodesian peace, now looks possible.

EMISSARY VISITS

The latest act in the slow-moving attempts to get a settlement came in September with a visit to Salisbury by Lord Goodman—his fourth mission as a British emissary to Rhodesia.

He spent a week in secret discussions, understood to have involved some tough bargaining. Reliable sources in Salisbury say he helped lay the groundwork for a top-level meeting, probably in November or December, between Sir Alec and Smith.

As Lord Goodman left, there was widespread speculation in the Rhodesian capital that he had taken a settlement formula with him.

If Lord Goodman has taken a formula back to London, it seems to suggest that either or both sides had significantly moved from the positions that have stood in the way of a settlement in the past.

It could also mean they had reached a meeting point on the most difficult of all problems—how to set the pace of African political development to some time in the future when Africans might run Rhodesia, ending white minority rule.

This is a key issue in the landlocked country where there are 225,000 whites and about 4,280,000 Africans.

Among the more cautious Rhodesians, the possibility of black majority rule seemed remote. Getting Smith's agreement to such a proposition seemed unimaginable.

'Promise Broken'

EDMONTON (CP) — Indian children have been damaged seriously by the social environment of white education, movie actor Chief Dan George of Vancouver said.

He told a news conference that closing of reserve schools and sending Indians to white schools is "just another promise that the white man has broken."

"It grieves me to see that our young people are learning a lot more than they should — not from books but from the examples they see."

Tory Military Boost May Aid U.K. Jobless

LONDON (CP) — Britain's decision to launch a substantial naval construction program and raise four new infantry battalions, coupled with a steadily-strengthening trade surplus, is giving renewed hope to embattled officials striving to alleviate the country's critical unemployment.

The new program was announced Wednesday by Lord Carrington, British defence minister, at the opening of the Conservative party's annual conference.

His statement was obscured somewhat by the conference's vote by an eight-to-one margin in favor of entry into the European Common Market and another ballot showing the 4,000 delegates largely in favor of restoring the death sentence for the murder of police and prison officials.

But observers predicted that the $175 million construction of two destroyers, four frigates and smaller support vessels will be of great benefit to the shipbuilding industry and unemployment generally.

Lord Carrington said this is partly in response to a build-up in Soviet naval power.

There was immediate speculation as to the possible effect of the new construction on bankrupt Upper Clyde shipbuilders.

But government officials indicated that any orders going to the Upper Clyde, now in a life-and-death struggle to remain operational, will be mainly for support vessels and smaller craft.

Over-all, the officials said, make work for at least 2,000 the new naval program will men in the shipbuilding industry with most orders going to those yards now short of orders.

"It could be a major step in putting some new life into the whole industry," said a government spokesman.

The formation of new army battalions has been necessitated mainly by the heavy commitment of British troops to riot-scarred Northern Ireland where total force strength now exceeds 13,500.

While Northern Ireland appears to be the main reason for adding four new infantry battalions to the existing 46, observers said the government has concluded the army is overstrained in many other areas as well.

Britain also showed a trade surplus of £57 million ($137 million) in September, which, measured on a three-month average shows a steadily-increasing surplus since April.

The annual rate of surplus on the balance of payments for the first nine months of the year was £800 million.

These movements have given many government officials and economists fresh hope that export-led expansion of the economy will stimulate rapid new investment and more employment.

Jobless Rate at 10-Year High

What's going on? Did an enemy force attempt to make an advance into Greater Victoria today? See page 17 for the answer.

Billion Dollar Rescue Proposed

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Seasonally adjusted unemployment last month soared to a 10-year high at 7.1 per cent of the labor force, Statistics Canada reported today.

The figure represents 434,000 persons and is nine per cent higher than a year earlier.

PCs Demand Immediate Action

The report shows seasonally adjusted unemployment climbing from 6.3 per cent in July to 6.5 per cent in August to 7.1 per cent in September.

Following news of the rise, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield demanded immediate government action to combat unemployment, including a new budget with income tax cuts.

And New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis called for a massive program of social works such as housing and urban transportation to stop the trend.

Lewis estimated that as much as $1 billion would be needed this winter to create 250,000 to 500,000 jobs.

However, the 434,000 figure was a decline from 455,000 who were unemployed in August. The jobless total for last September was 398,000.

The statistics bureau reported that the number of unemployed last month was 5 per cent of the labor force of 8.62 million. This was down from 5.1 per cent in August, but compared with an unemployment rate of 4.7 per cent in September last year.

The 7.1 per cent figure is one that has been adjusted by statisticians to indicate the over-all trend and is the one most closely watched by economists. The comparable figure for September last year was 6.8 per cent.

The statistics bureau said the underlying trend showed higher unemployment in both the under-25 and the 25-and-over age groups, and higher unemployment was more pronounced in the latter group.

Smaller Reduction Than Usual

Referring to the unadjusted figures, the bureau said the decline in the unemployment rate to 5 per cent from 5.1 in August was "a much smaller reduction than usual for this time of year."

There was an about-average decline in the number of people employed, as summer jobs disappeared, but fewer people left the labor force than usual in September. The August and September figures usually show the dramatic shift in the employment picture as students leave summer jobs and go back to school.

Compared with a year ago, Statistics Canada said, there were 238,000 more workers in the labor force, and 202,000 more workers with jobs. There were 36,000 more workers without jobs.

The statistics bureau reported there was a downward movement in the unemployment figures for those who were without work for more than a month.

Of the 434,000 unemployed estimated in the labor force survey for the week ended Sept. 18, 14,000 were listed as being on temporary layoff, expecting to go back to their old jobs.

The number of jobless who had been seeking work for less than a month in the September tally was 115,000, up significantly from 84,000 in August.

Those without work for one to three months declined in September to 143,000 from 183,000 in August. Another 64,000 were unemployed for four to six months in the September survey, compared with 65,000 in the August survey.

Workers who were jobless for six months or longer numbered 98,000 in the September survey, compared with 106,000 at mid-August.

★ B.C. Jobless On Rise

British Columbia is keeping up with the nation — at least in unemployment — with a seasonally adjusted rate of 7.1 per cent for last month compared with 6.8 per cent in August.

This rise occurred in spite of a 25,000 decrease in the B.C. labor force.

In a breakdown of figures, there were an estimated 31,000 men and 19,000 women unemployed in a provincial labor force of 913,000.

The largest decline in the work force was in the 14 to 19 age group with students returning to school, but a larger number than normal of persons between 20 and 24 remained out looking for jobs.

The goods producing industry experienced the largest reduction in employment, indicating the return of many younger workers to school, and there was a normal seasonal decline in the primary industries such as farming.

Current unsettled conditions, the manpower department said, were reflected in a large decrease in employment in finance, real estate and insurance, as well as retail trade.

The unadjusted figures for B.C. rose to 5.5 per cent in September from 5.4.

Provincial unemployment rates, as a percentage of the labor force in each province, ranged from a low of 2.4 per cent in Prince Edward Island to a high of 9.2 per cent in Newfoundland last month.

Hormone Hobbyist Wins Nobel Medical Prize

NEWS BRIEFS

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Dr. Earl Sutherland of the United States was awarded the 1971 Nobel Prize in physiology and medicine today for his research in hormones, a project he said had become almost a hobby.

Sutherland won the tax-free $88,000 and the prestige of the Nobel Prize for his "discoveries concerning the mechanism of the action of hormones," the Karolinska Medical Institute announce.

Sutherland, 55, of Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., received the prize for his discovery of the function of cyclic adenyiacid or cyclic AMP. This substance signals hormones to go to work.

"I like to call it a second messenger," Sutherland said at his home in Nashville, Tenn., site of Vanderbilt University.

He spoke of his years of research, saying: "In fact, in the beginning, it really was more like a hobby."

Tests have shown that the addition of AMP to cancerous tissues makes the cells either return to normal or die, he said. Much research is needed before any conclusions can be drawn.

Exclaiming "isn't that terrific," when informed he had won, he said he will go to Stockholm in December to receive the prize.

Sutherland has been studying hormones for more than 20 years. Hormones are chemical substances, mainly secreted by the endocrine or ductless glands. They influence the activities of the cells, tissues and organs of the body, controlling such important activities as growth, development, reproduction and metabolism.

This was the sixth year in a row that an American has won or shared the medicine-physiology prize.

Sutherland discovered a previously unknown chemical called cyclic AMP, for cyclic adenylic acid, which proved to be a missing link in a long series of biological control mechanisms.

Pirates Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Nelson Briles stopped Baltimore on two hits today as Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Orioles 4-0 and took a one-game lead in the World Series. It was the third straight victory for the Pirates after the Orioles had won the first two games in Baltimore. The Series now switches back to Baltimore for the sixth game Saturday and, if necessary, the seventh game Sunday.

Aerial Fight

DAMASCUS (UPI) — A Syrian military spokesman said a formation of Israeli warplanes crossed over the Syrian border today and were engaged by Syrian fighter planes. The report came as Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was consulting in Damascus with Lt.-Gen. Hafez Tassad, the Syrian president, on the options of war or peace in the Middle East.

Ex-Governor Dies

DACCA (AP) — East Pakistan's former governor, Abdul Monem Khan, died today at Dacca Medical College Hospital after he was shot by gunmen believed to be Bengalai guerrillas.

CAMPBELL TO ENTER FREE SCHOOL ROW

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today he likely will speak to Campbell River parents about their high school's accreditation difficulties.

Campbell said he would be speaking as a "professional educator" and not as municipal affairs minister. He is MLA for Comox, a riding which includes Campbell River.

Campbell was a school teacher. He refused to say what position he would take in the dispute, preferring to reserve his views for people in Campbell River.

Campbell River Secondary principal John Young has charged that the provincial government revoked accreditation at his school to stop his criticisms of the government's "anti-children policies."

A school board official in Campbell River has said the dispute is a minor one involving record keeping practices between the school and the provincial government.

Montreal Firemen Walk Off Jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's 2,400 firemen walked off their jobs today, leaving skeleton staffs in about one-quarter of the city's stations to handle emergency calls.

There were no major alarms in the first two hours of the walkout, which began about 11 a.m., but at least one false alarm was reported.

The decision to strike followed a meeting attended by about 1,000 off-duty policemen to consider a wage offer from mediator Jean Cournoyer, Quebec labor minister.

The men, disgruntled by the city's refusal to offer wage parity with Toronto firemen, left the meeting about 11 a.m. and began spreading the word that on-duty firefighters should attend a study session.

Raiders Hit Cuban Town

MIAMI (AP) — A commando group in two boats attacked a small fishing village on Cuba's northeast coast Tuesday, killing at least two persons and injuring four, Havana radio said today.

The broadcast monitored in Miami said the night-time attack was carried out "from the north" and blamed it on "the government of the United States and its accomplices."

After the assault by what the radio said were heavy and middle calibre weapons, the two attacking crafts "departed toward the north," the broadcast said.

It described one of the boats as a "mother ship" and the other "a speed launch."

The broadcast indicated villagers and army patrols had fired back, but apparently there was no attempt at a landing.

Appeal Goes Door-to-Door

Major effort in Greater Victoria's 1971 United Appeal campaign comes on Saturday, when 3,000 volunteers will carry out an intensive residential canvass.

This year's goal is $758,723, and campaign chairman Eric Charman said today he is hoping "at least" $160,000 of this will be raised in the door-to-door campaign.

On page 11 today, the Times shows a cross-section of the 23 agencies who are supported by the Community Chest.

Their aims and services are varied but they have a common need — financial support from the community at large.

Number of Programs—PM

The Cabinet met this morning for its regular session and government sources said a number of programs were under consideration.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday Canada was starting to feel the effects of the U.S. 10 per cent surcharge on imports — which affected about $2.5 billion of Canada's annual exports of $11 billion to the United States — But he did not say what action Ottawa would take to lessen the effects.

Trudeau said the government would announce further economic measures "very soon."

Government sources said the plans under consideration by cabinet included a number of spending proposals — such as major expansion of job retraining for persons under 25 years old — but the government was not planning any tax cuts to stimulate the economy.

As he entered the cabinet meeting, Trudeau refused to answer all questions about the unemployment figures, but he was angry over the premature release of the figures in the Montreal Gazette.

"Where the hell did the Gazette get these statistics?" Trudeau said. "They're not released until this morning."

Stanfield said there should be an immediate federal-

EDMONTON, CALGARY MAYORS RE-ELECTED

Alberta voters, who recently made a clean sweep at the provincial level, apparently were in a different mood Wednesday at municipal polls.

All but one of the incumbent city mayors who sought re-election were returned to office and only a handful of incumbent aldermen were rejected.

Among the easy winners were Rod Sykes of Calgary and Ivor Dent of Edmonton. See story on Page 30.

Discomfort Index Zooms to 10.6

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's economic discomfort index, an unofficial measure of unemployment and inflation, has shot up to 10.6 because of last month's high underlying rate of joblessness.

The discomfort index should not exceed six if the country were achieving its goals of relatively stable prices and full employment. It was 9.2 last year, and 8.8 during the first half of 1971.

Both Wednesday's report on consumer prices and today's report on last month's employment showed some signs of improvement in September over August statistics.

The September consumer price index fell to 134.7 from 135, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, and unemployment declined in September to 434,000 or five per cent of the labor force from 455,000 or 5.1 per cent of the labor force in August.

However, consumer prices were still running 3.5 per cent ahead of a year earlier, and the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment last month used by the statisticians to show the underlying job trend —rose sharply to 7.1 from 6.5.

The discomfort index, conceived by a United States economic adviser to show the combined effects of inflation and unemployment, ran to 9.2 in both 1969 and 1970, the highest since 1958. But it was cut to 8.8 in the first half of 1971, mainly by a slowing down in the consumer price index brought on by last fall's supermarket price war.

Since mid-year, however, the index has risen rapidly, to 9.9 in August and 10.6 in September. For the third quarter of 1971 it averaged 9.8.

Subsidy Makes One Job

A total of 1,243 persons have applied for job opportunity certificates, but only one person has been hired under the government wage subsidy scheme.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today that 743 certificates have been issued since committee staff began processing them two weeks ago. A job opportunity committee official said today that 50 companies have asked for referrals, but there is no way of knowing how many people they will hire until the companies apply for subsidy payments.

Persons who have been on welfare for three months and who have lived in B.C. for one year may apply for the certificates of opportunity. They present these to employers, and if hired must work for eight weeks.

The government pays 50 per cent of the employee's wages during the eight-week period.

Indians Organize Alberta School Boycott

ST. PAUL, Alta. (CP) — Alberta's 43 Indian chiefs will be asked to organize a provincial school boycott to protest federal Indian policies.

Indian parents, students and chiefs attending a two-day meeting Wednesday at Blue Quills school near this northeastern Alberta community said the boycott will be needed if a commitment isn't received from Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien.

About 200 students on Cold Lake and Kehewin reserves have been out of school for more than two weeks in protest and parents on the Saddle Lake reserve plan similar action Friday.

Mr. Chretien has ordered improvements to upgrade living conditions and education at Cold Lake and Kehewin but the Indians say the money will be taken from other Indian projects.

The boycott request will be presented to a three-day meeting of chiefs which starts Monday.

Wednesday's meeting also approved a recommendation to continue the boycott at Cold Lake and Kehewin and to continue "consultation meetings" at the Indian affairs office here. Last week students and their parents marched into the office and brought work to a standstill.

The Indians also will ask that the House of Commons standing committee on Indian affairs launch an investigation into problems on Alberta reserves.

Tom Barnett, New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Comox-Alberni, told the meeting that the present policy of transferring students from reserve schools to the provincial system is contrary to committee recommendations made in June.

"The special study on Indian affairs took over a year and we were never told officially that our recommendations were rejected."

The committee recommended that no transfers be made without approval of Indian parents.

"As a member of that committee I would certainly be willing to meet the request of the people of this district to investigate the situation," said Mr. Barnett.

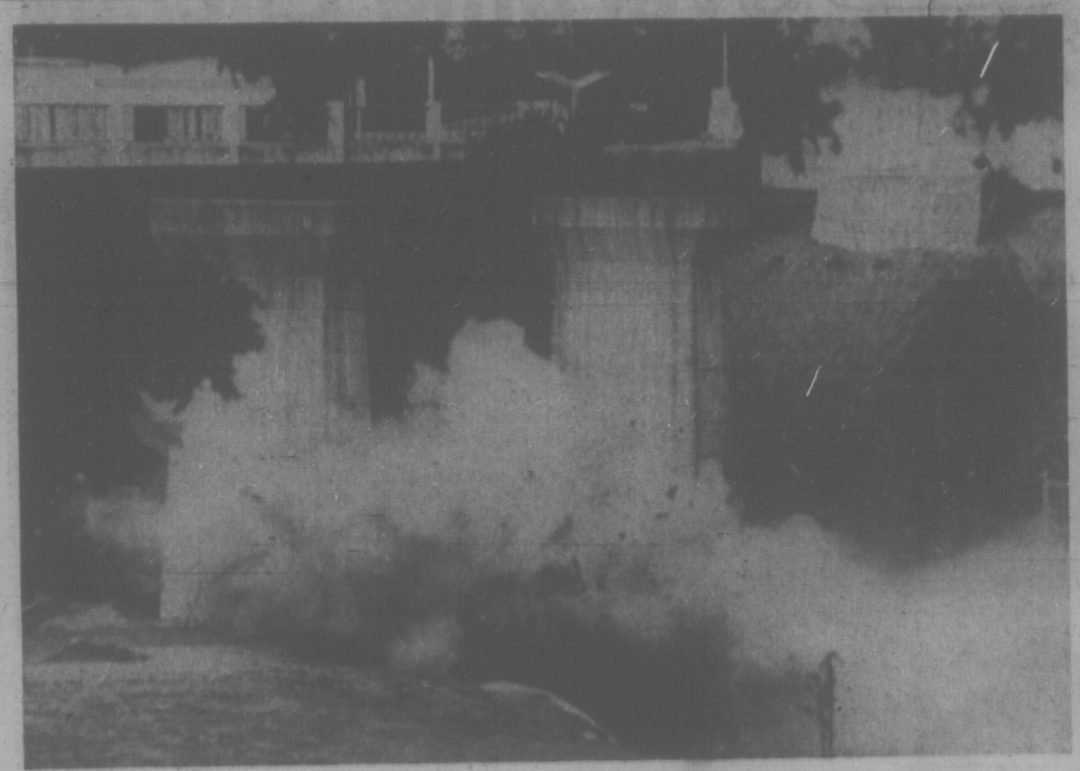
VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 14, 1971 —PAGE 17



—Bill Halkett photos

ARMY PERSONNEL FROM ACROSS CANADA came to the aid of the municipality of Saanich today, lending a hand in its beautification of Colquitz Creek. Seventeen soldiers, undergoing basic demolition training at the navy's diving unit, blew up a 25-foot retaining wall in the creek that was once used as a dam. Led by CPO William Allen they first constructed a blast mat to avoid fragments of the concrete being hurled into the air, lay 30 ounces of dynamite, seen detonating at left, and successfully cleared the major part of the wall, at right. A second smaller charge was laid this afternoon to clean up the remainder. Unit commander Lt.-Cmdr. Art Rowse described the exercise as a happy blending of the destructive and constructive.

In 14 Well-Chosen Words, He Had No Report on Uvic

The University of Victoria senate spent 45 minutes at its meeting Wednesday night deciding to ask senate chairman Bruce Partridge for a report on university activities.

Two hours later, it took Partridge 14 words to say he had no report to make.

The issue came up when David Dunsmuir, graduate student senator, noted aloud that the report of the chairman was not included on the agenda of the meeting.

Dunsmuir said it was "extremely disturbing and extremely distastefull" for the item to be omitted from the agenda, since the report of the chairman previously was useful for information on university affairs and a good opportunity for senators to ask questions of the university president.

The result of the 45 minutes of discussion was that senate voted to include the item on the agenda for the Wednesday meeting and all future meetings, even if the only report Partridge had was that he had no report.

* * *

Even the vote on the motion by Dunsmuir caused some controversy. The vote was originally counted to be seven in favor, eight opposed and six abstaining. In this form, the motion to include the chairman's report on the agenda would have been defeated.

But Dr. Rennie Warburton asked for a recount, saying he had counted differently. The recount was made, and the results came up nine in favor and seven opposed. Abstentions were not recounted.

Senators were asked who had changed his vote, but none answered and Partridge said changing votes for recounts was not customary in senate tradition.

It was found, however, that Dr. S. W. Jackman's hand had not been seen in the original count, accounting for one of the extra positive votes.

* * *

Dunsmuir had earlier expressed concern over the chairman's apparent reluctance to make a report in the public session of the senate meetings in the last year.

"The chairman's report is a useful umbrella under which matters of general university interest can be discussed," he said. "Although a report that there is no report is not very soul-satisfying it is at least an opportunity for discussion."

Dr. Bryan Farrell agreed with Dunsmuir that the chairman's report can be a valuable vehicle for reporting on the university, and that items which members of senate may consider trivial can be of utmost importance to the general public.

Partridge did not discount the possibility of future reports to senate, but he felt it "silly" to delay public announcements until the monthly senate meetings.

When the time for the report from the chair came up, Partridge said: "The chair is not prepared to make a report in this session of senate."

There was provision on the agenda for him to make a report in the closed session of the senate meeting.

World-Wide Talkfest

Area members of the Boy Scout and Girl Guide movements will chat by short-wave radio with similar groups around the world this weekend, courtesy of the Victoria Short Wave Club.

The occasion, the 14th annual Jamboree on the air, will see Club members set up a portable radio station for Cubs, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, Rovers and Venturers at the Sidney Scout Hall.

Gov't Slammed On Pay Scales

Delegates to the annual convention of the B.C. Government Employees' Union voted today to censure the government "for its tight-fisted wage policies" and indifference it has shown its employees.

The motion was passed amid wide applause after union treasurer Nancy Hamilton said many hundreds of government employees are "so poorly paid that they would be better off on welfare."

Close to 200 delegates from branches of the 16,000-member union are attending the convention which began this morning in the Empress Hotel.

Mrs. Hamilton referred to the increase in welfare rates recommended recently by a provincial appeal board.

WELFARE BETTER

The appeal involved Mrs. Toni Cowlishaw of Vancouver, who said she was unable to maintain a minimum standard of living for herself and her six children on $341 a month on welfare. The board recommended $491 a month.

"I'm not standing up here to criticize the board's decision," she told delegates.

"It may well be that even $491 a month isn't enough to support a woman trying to raise six children on her own. And I'm not here to criticize the concept of social welfare in any way.

"My purpose is to emphasize to this convention that the appeal board's decision makes it clear once again that many hundreds of the employees of the government of B.C. are so poorly paid that they would be better off on welfare."

She said the research department of the B.C. Government Employees Union hasn't had enough time to complete a survey of the numbers of provincial employees who are supporting five or six dependents on a take-home salary of $491 a month.

"But we do know this much," she said. "There are about 8,000 employees of the B.C. government who have less than $491 a month left after income tax, medical premiums and other deductions are subtracted from their gross monthly salary."

She said there are 77 job categories in the B.C. government with a gross salary of less than $500 a month.

Not all of these persons are supporting five or six dependents, she said, but many are supporting large families.

"It is outrageous that the B.C. government comes out every year with a throne speech which says that this province has a body of government employees second to none anywhere in terms of their dedication and competence, and then a few weeks later comes out with a budget that holds the salaries of many of them below the welfare line," she said.

BRAGGING

"It is outrageous for the B.C. government to keep so many of its employees living in near poverty while it continues to finish each fiscal year with a substantial surplus of revenue and brags about it."

Convention delegates instructed the union's executive to determine as precisely as possible how many provincial employees "are in a plight similar to that of Mrs. Cowlishaw" and to place this information before the Civil Service Commission, government and the public.

Longer Work Day Offered

The B.C. Hospital Employees Union has offered to lengthen members' work day in a new contract while seeking an over-all reduction in the work week.

Union spokesman Bill Rolfe said from Vancouver today the 7½-hour shift in hospitals operating 24 hours a day has proved unworkable. In bargaining talks which have just begun the union is offering to lengthen the work day to 8 hours while shortening the work week from 37½ to 36 hours.

In effect this would be the equivalent of a 4½-day work week but the union proposes the half-day a week be banked to be taken every other week.

80% WOMEN

The BCHEU represents 10,000 employees in most B.C. hospitals, 80 per cent of them women. Members include ward maids, practical nurses, orderlies, laboratory technicians in most hospitals, maintenance and crafts men.

It does not represent registered nurses who have their own association.

The union has about 2,500 members of Vancouver Island, including the majority of staff at St. Joseph's and Royal Jubilee Hospitals, Queen Alexandra Solarium, Mt. St. Mary's Hospital and The Priory, an extended care hospital at Colwood.

TALKS BREAK OFF

Rolfe said the union is applying today for a mediation officer after the first meeting with the B.C. Hospitals' Association negotiating committee Tuesday. The association bargains for 73 hospitals in B.C.

Talks broke off after three hours when the employers suggested an adjournment to Nov. 9.

Duncan Bradford, hospital association executive director, said it was a little premature to bring a third party into talks, adding his association needs the extra time to make a "responsible evaluation" of union demands.

Bradford said the union has proposed 130 contract changes which will increase annual hospital costs by 30 per cent or $27 million. The demands were received 10 days ago.

The current contract expires Dec. 31. The union is asking for a 25 per cent wage increase over two years in a pay settlement which would also establish a base rate of $500 a month.

Academic Planning Falls Short

Lack of over-all academic planning at the University of Victoria was the cause of considerable concern at Wednesday night's meeting of the Uvic senate.

Several senators said the job being done by the senate academic planning committee is not good enough, and is causing the university's campus planning committee to take too much of the load in decision-making.

Dean A. R. Fontaine of the faculty of graduate studies said a large part of the problem is the university's lack of a full-time administrator who could keep up on the inflow of information from planners and requests from university departments.

The academic planning committee, he said, is too large and cumbersome a body to do any effective work the way the planning system is currently set up.

Fontaine has been chairman of the academic planning committee the past several onths and said the job is too much for a person who already has other responsibilities. What is needed is a professional who can provide leadership and co-ordination in the field of planning, he said.

Dr. Beattie McLean said planners at the university should be prepared to answer the requests of the public, who want to know about possible nursing schools, law schools and other facilities.

The subject was referred to the Uvic administration, which will study the problem and recommend steps to provide a better planning facility for the campus.

Professors Must 'Show Their Wares'

University of Victoria faculty members who in the future are promoted to the rank of professor will be invited to give a public lecture as an initiation project.

The Uvic senate made this recommendation Wednesday night in keeping with a tradition carried on at some North American universities — that of the newly-promoted professor "showing his wares" to his colleagues and the public."

The suggestion came from Dr. S. W. Jackman, who said the presentations should be made within a year of the promotion of the faculty member.

Dr. Alexander Kirk and Dr. David Chabassol, both recently promoted to professors, voted against the motion. The measure will not affect them however, since it will come into effect after June 30, 1972.

'End of the Road' On Smoke Abatement

NELSON
. . . no conflict

Greater Victoria can expect no decrease in air pollution from the B.C. Forest Products mill on Gorge Road, according to Dr. Jack Fisher, the firm's manager of research and development.

"We've gone to the end of the road, so to speak, as far as combustion is concerned."

The crux of the problem, according to Fisher, is economics. The BCFP mill burns its wood wastes to generate power for its operation as well as to dispose of those wastes.

No other power source and waste disposal system would be feasible, he told members of the Society for the Prevention of Environmental Collapse Wednesday evening, and he added "I don't see any way a wood industry of our type can burn these wastes . . . without the white smoke."

Fisher and BCFP Victoria general manager Walter Nelson appeared at a meeting attended by about 20 SPEC members to discuss the issue of air pollution from the mill operation.

Nelson told the meeting he sees no conflict between "the aims of this association (SPEC) and our company," and detailed smoke abatement moves taken by the firm to date which he said have cost almost $1 million.

* * *

These moves included the elimination of beehive waste burners (Nelson pointed out that BCFP was the first such operation in the province to take this step), installation of a cinder collector which virtually eliminated carbon char from the smoke emitted, the use of photoelectric and television monitoring devices to maintain a check on quality of emissions, selective fuel use and most recently the installation of a mechanical bark remover to improve the burning quality of the fuel.

According to Fisher the white smoke which makes up the largest part of BCFP air pollution is 70 to 85 per cent common salt, and the remainder is a combination of "normal elements."

He said sulphur compounds are almost nonexistent in the mill's smoke discharge.

The city's air pollution bylaw, to which the company conforms according to the smoke inspector, limits the amount of sulphur gases emitted from a stack to 2,000 parts per million.

The bylaw also specifies that emissions must be kept lighter than a certain color (No. 2 on the Ringelmann Chart) except when for six minutes each hour the operation is allowed to do its worst for the purpose of cleaning the furnaces.

BCFP conforms.

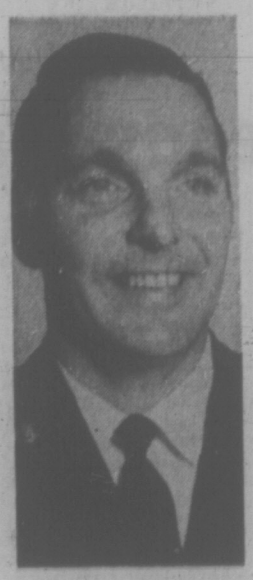
Trucker Killed

A driver was killed this morning when his truck slammed into a power pole in the 4600 block Blenkinsop Road, Saanich police said.

He was identified as Joseph Spark, 55, of 921 Falaise Crescent.

The accident occurred about 9:30 a.m.

New Saanich Chief Determined To Improve Policemen's Image



PETERSON
. . . unanimous choice

The man who will become the new Saanich police chief Jan. 1 says he is "determined" to maintain the good police image in Saanich, and also to try to improve national public attitudes towards the police.

Bob Peterson, 41, whose appointment was announced Wednesday by Mayor Hugh Curtis, said in an interview: "I'm concerned about the image of police officers across the country. I'm determined, in whatever way I can, to attempt to change that."

Curtis said Peterson was the unanimous choice of the three-member Saanich police commission to replace retiring chief Bert Pearson.

"No one else was approached, discussed, considered or referred to. We asked for the chief's recommendation and it was Peterson."

Pearson said he told the commission he "didn't know where in Canada they would go to find anyone who would be better qualified."

Born in Duncan, the son of a millwright, Peterson followed his father into the sawmilling industry after graduating from Mount Douglas high school in 1948.

His decision to enter public service in 1953 was prompted partly by his father's death in a 1950 sawmill accident.

After spending 10 years as a constable he was promoted to acting corporal Nov. 19, 1963, to sergeant June 1, 1964, to inspector Jan. 1, 1968, and to deputy Oct. 1 of the same year. He was one of the first two inspectors named in Saanich.

Last year at a Canadian Police College course Peterson was chosen valedictorian. Curtis said this was an "outstanding achievement" which "gave Saanich a pretty clear idea of the calibre of men we had available."

Curits said the outgoing chief had served Saanich well since the late 1930s and he had seen "the absolute transformation of the municipality from a quiet, rural district to a complex, active and very large part of a metropolitan area."

He said Pearson had met the challenge and "come through with flying colors."

Jobless Rate at 10-Year High

What's going on? Did an enemy force attempt to make an advance into Greater Victoria today? See page 17 for the answer.

Commons Calls Special Debate

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Seasonally adjusted unemployment last month soared to a 10-year high at 7.1 per cent of the labor force, Statistics Canada reported today.

The figure represents 434,000 persons and is nine per cent higher than a year earlier.

PCs Demand Immediate Action

Immediately following the report a meeting of house leaders from all parties scheduled a special debate tonight, replacing regular Commons business.

The report shows seasonally adjusted unemployment climbing from 6.3 per cent in July to 6.5 per cent in August to 7.1 per cent in September.

Following news of the rise, Opposition Leader Robert Stasfield demanded immediate government action to combat unemployment, including a new budget with income tax cuts.

And New Democratic Party Leader David Lewis called for a massive program of social works such as housing and urban transportation to stop the trend.

Lewis estimated that as much as $1 billion would be needed this winter to create 250,000 to 500,000 jobs.

Smaller Reduction Than Usual

Referring to the unadjusted figures, the bureau said the decline in the unemployment rate to 5 per cent from 5.1 in August was "a much smaller reduction than usual for this time of year."

There was an about-average decline in the number of people employed, as summer jobs disappeared, but fewer people left the labor force than usual in September. The August and September figures usually show the dramatic shift in the employment picture as students leave summer jobs and go back to school.

Compared with a year ago, Statistics Canada said, there were 238,000 more workers in the labor force, and 202,000 more workers with jobs. There were 36,000 more workers without jobs.

The statistics bureau reported there was a downward movement in the unemployment figures for those who were without work for more than a month.

Of the 434,000 unemployed estimated in the labor force survey for the week ended Sept. 18, 14,000 were listed as being on temporary layoff, expecting to go back to their old jobs.

The number of jobless who had been seeking work for less than a month in the September tally was 115,000, up significantly from 84,000 in August.

Those without work for one to three months declined in September to 143,000 from 183,000 in August.

Workers who were jobless for six months or longer numbered 98,000 in the September survey, compared with 106,000 at mid-August.

However, the 434,000 figure was a decline from 455,000 who were unemployed in August. The jobless total for last September was 398,000.

The statistics bureau reported that the number of unemployed last month was 5 per cent of the labor force of 8.62 million. This was down from 5.1 per cent in August, but compared with an unemployment rate of 4.7 per cent in September last year.

The 7.1 per cent figure is one that has been adjusted by statisticians to indicate the over-all trend and is the one most closely watched by economists. The comparable figure for September last year was 6.8 per cent.

The statistics bureau said the underlying trend showed higher unemployment in both the under-25 and the 25-and-over age groups, and higher unemployment was more pronounced in the latter group.

B.C. Jobless On Rise

British Columbia is keeping up with the nation — at least in unemployment — with a seasonally adjusted rate of 7.1 per cent for last month compared with 6.8 per cent in August.

This rise occurred in spite of a 25,000 decrease in the B.C. labor force.

In a breakdown of figures, there were an estimated 31,000 men and 19,000 women unemployed in a provincial labor force of 913,000.

The largest decline in the work force was in the 14 to 19 age group with students returning to school, but a larger number than normal of persons between 20 and 24 remained out looking for jobs.

The goods producing industry experienced the largest reduction in employment, indicating the return of many younger workers to school, and there was a normal seasonal decline in the primary industries such as farming.

Current unsettled conditions, the manpower department said, were reflected in a large decrease in employment in finance, real estate and insurance, as well as retail trade.

The unadjusted figures for B.C. rose to 5.5 per cent in September from 5.4.

Provincial unemployment rates, as a percentage of the labor force in each province, ranged from a low of 2.4 per cent in Prince Edward Island to a high of 9.2 per cent in Newfoundland last month.

Hormone Hobbyist Wins Nobel Medical Prize

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Dr. Earl Sutherland of the United States was awarded the 1971 Nobel Prize in physiology and medicine today for his research in hormones, a project he said had become almost a hobby.

Sutherland won the tax-free $88,000 and the prestige of the Nobel Prize for his "discoveries concerning the mechanism of the action of hormones," the Karolinska Medical Institute announce.

Sutherland, 55, of Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., received the prize for his discovery of the function of cyclic adenylacid or cyclic AMP. This substance signals hormones to go to work.

"I like to call it a second messenger," Sutherland said at his home in Nashville, Tenn., site of Vanderbilt University.

He spoke of his years of research, saying: "In fact, in the beginning, it really was more like a hobby."

Tests have shown that the addition of AMP to cancerous tissues makes the cells either return to normal or die, he said. Much research is needed before any conclusions can be drawn.

Exclaiming "isn't that terrific," when informed he had won, he said he will go to Stockholm in December to receive the prize.

Sutherland has been studying hormones for more than 20 years. Hormones are chemical substances, mainly secreted by the endocrine or ductless glands. They influence the activities of the cells, tissues and organs of the body, controlling such important activities as growth, development, reproduction and metabolism.

NEWS BRIEFS

Pirates Win

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Nelson Briles stopped Baltimore on two hits today as Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Orioles 4-0 and took a one-game lead in the World Series. It was the third straight victory for the Pirates after the Orioles had won the first two games in Baltimore. The Series now switches back to Baltimore for the sixth game Saturday and, if necessary, the seventh game Sunday.

Aerial Fight

DAMASCUS (UPI) — A Syrian military spokesman said a formation of Israeli warplanes crossed over the Syrian border today and were engaged by Syrian fighter planes. The report came as Egyptian President Anwar Sadat was consulting in Damascus with Lt.-Gen. Hafez Tassad, the Syrian president, on the options of war or peace in the Middle East.

Ex-Governor Dies

DACCA (AP) — East Pakistan's former governor, Abdul Monen Khan, died today at Dacca Medical College Hospital after he was shot by gunmen believed to be Bengali guerrillas.

CAMPBELL TO ENTER FREE SCHOOL ROW

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today he likely will speak to Campbell River parents about their high school's accreditation difficulties.

Campbell said he would be speaking as a "professional educator" and not as municipal affairs minister. He is MLA for Comox, a riding which includes Campbell River.

Campbell was a school teacher. He refused to say what position he would take in the dispute, preferring to reserve his views for people in Campbell River.

Campbell River Secondary principal John Young has charged that the provincial government revoked accreditation at his school to stop his criticisms of the government's "anti-children policies."

A school board official in Campbell River has said the dispute is a minor one involving record keeping practices between the school and the provincial government.

Montreal Firemen Walk Off Jobs

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's 2,400 firemen walked off their jobs today, leaving skeleton staffs in about one-quarter of the city's stations to handle emergency calls.

There were no major alarms in the first two hours of the walkout, which began about 11 a.m., but at least one false alarm was reported.

The decision to strike followed a meeting attended by about 1,000 off-duty firemen to consider a wage offer from mediator Jean Cournoyer, Quebec labor minister.

The men, disgruntled by the city's refusal to offer wage parity with Toronto firemen, left the meeting about 11 a.m. and began spreading the word that on-duty firefighters should attend a study session.

Raiders Hit Cuban Town

MIAMI (AP) — A commando group in two boats attacked a small fishing village on Cuba's northeast coast Tuesday, killing at least two persons and injuring four, Havana radio said today.

The broadcast monitored in Miami said the night-time attack was carried out "from the north" and blamed it on "the government of the United States and its accomplices."

After the assault by what the radio said were heavy and middle calibre weapons, the two attacking crafts "departed toward the north," the broadcast said.

It described one of the boats as a "mother ship" and the other "a speed launch."

The broadcast indicated villagers and army patrols had fired back, but apparently there was no attempt at a landing.

Appeal Goes Door-to-Door

Major effort in Greater Victoria's 1971 United Appeal campaign comes on Saturday, when 3,000 volunteers will carry out an intensive residential canvass.

This year's goal is $758,723, and campaign chairman Eric Charman said today he is hoping "at least" $160,000 of this will be raised in the door-to-door campaign.

On page 11 today, the Times shows a cross-section of the 23 agencies who are supported by the Community Chest.

Their aims and services are varied but they have a common need — financial support from the community at large.

Number of Programs—PM

The Cabinet met this morning for its regular session, and government sources said a number of programs were under consideration.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Wednesday Canada was starting to feel the effects of the U.S. 10 per cent surcharge on imports — which affected about $2.5 billion of Canada's annual exports of $11 billion to the United States — But he did not say what action Ottawa would take to lessen the effects.

Trudeau said the government would announce further economic measures "very soon."

Government sources said be the plans under consideration by cabinet included a number of spending proposals — such as major expansion of job retraining for persons under 25 years old — but the government was not planning any tax cuts to stimulate the economy.

As he entered the cabinet meeting, Trudeau refused to answer all questions about the unemployment figures, but he was angry over the premature release of the figures in the Montreal Gazette.

"Where the hell did the Gazette get these statistics?" Trudeau said. "They're not released until this morning."

Stanfield said there should be an immediate federal-

EDMONTON, CALGARY MAYORS RE-ELECTED

Alberta voters, who recently made a clean sweep at the provincial level, apparently were in a different mood Wednesday at municipal polls.

All but one of the incumbent city mayors who sought re-election were returned to office and only a handful of incumbent aldermen were rejected.

Among the easy winners were Rod Sykes of Calgary and Ivor Dent of Edmonton. See story on Page 30.

Discomfort Index Zooms to 10.6

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's economic discomfort index, an unofficial measure of unemployment and inflation, has shot up to 10.6 because of last month's high underlying rate of joblessness.

The discomfort index should not exceed six if the country were achieving its goals of relatively stable prices and full employment. It was 9.2 last year, and 8.8 during the first half of 1971.

Both Wednesday's report on consumer prices and today's report on last month's employment showed some signs of improvement in September over August statistics.

The September consumer price index fell to 134.7 from 135, based on 1961 prices equalling 100, and unemployment declined in September to 434,000 or five per cent of the labor force from 455,000 or 5.1 per cent of the labor force, in August.

However, consumer prices were still running 3.5 per cent ahead of a year earlier, and the seasonally-adjusted rate of unemployment last month used by the statisticians to show the underlying job trend rose sharply to 7.1 from 6.5.

The discomfort index, conceived by a United States economic adviser to show the combined effects of inflation and unemployment, ran to 9.2 in both 1969 and 1970, the highest since 1958. But it was cut to 8.8 in the first half of 1971, mainly by a slowing down in the consumer price index brought on by last fall's supermarket price war.

Since mid-year, however, the index has risen rapidly, to 9.9 in August and 10.6 in September. For the third quarter of 1971 it averaged 9.8.

Subsidy Makes One Job

A total of 1,243 persons have applied for job opportunity certificates, but only one person has been hired under the government wage subsidy scheme.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell said today that 743 certificates have been issued since committee staff began processing them two weeks ago. A job opportunity committee official said today that 50 companies have asked for referrals, but there is no way of knowing how many people they will hire until the companies apply for subsidy payments.

Persons who have been on welfare for three months and who have lived in B.C. for one year may apply for the certificates of opportunity. They present these to employers, and if hired must work for eight weeks.

The government pays 50 per cent of the employee's wages during the eight-week period.

Indians Organize Alberta School Boycott

ST. PAUL, Alta. (CP) — Alberta's 43 Indian chiefs will be asked to organize a provincial school boycott to protest federal Indian policies.

Indian parents, students and chiefs attending a two-day meeting Wednesday at Blue Quills school near this northeastern Alberta community said the boycott will be needed if a commitment isn't received from Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien.

About 200 students on Cold Lake and Kehewin reserves have been out of school for more than two weeks in protest and parents on the Saddle Lake reserve plan similar action Friday.

Mr. Chretien has ordered improvements to upgrade living conditions and education at Cold Lake and Kehewin but the Indians say the money will be taken from other Indian projects.

The boycott request will be presented to a three-day meeting of chiefs which starts Monday.

Wednesday's meeting also approved a recommendation to continue the boycott at Cold Lake and Kehewin and to continue "consultation meetings" at the Indian affairs office here. Last week students and their parents marched into the office and brought work to a standstill.

The Indians also will ask that the House of Commons standing committee on Indian affairs launch an investigation into problems on Alberta reserves.

Tom Barnett, New Democratic Party member of Parliament for Comox-Alberni, told the meeting that the present policy of transferring students from reserve schools to the provincial system is contrary to committee recommendations made in June.

"The special study on Indian affairs took over a year and we were never told officially that our recommendations were rejected."

The committee recommended that no transfers be made without approval of Indian parents.

"As a member of that committee I would certainly be willing to meet the request of the people of this district to investigate the situation," said Mr. Barnett.

New Glow in Pittsburgh Kindled by Kiddie Corps

PITTSBURGH (AP) — There was a brand new glow in Pittsburgh Pirates for today's fifth World Series game against Baltimore Orioles and it was put there by a pair of rosey-cheeked youngsters who began the most important game of their lives kidding each other in the bullpen.

Bruce Kison pitched 6 1-3 innings of one-hit relief ball and Milt May, swinging for his buddy, stroked the pinch single that drove in the winning run as the Pirates trimmed the Orioles 4-3 Wednesday in the first World Series game ever played at night.

Their heroics tied the series at two victories apiece and set up today's pivotal fifth game, with the Orioles sending first game winner Dave McNally against Pittsburgh's Nelson Briles. The game starts at 1 p.m. EDT.

It would be tough for the Birds and Bucs to match the dramatic show that the pulsating fourth game provided.

DRAFTED TOGETHER

And in the end, the issue was decided by two 21-year-old rookies who hang together just the way you might expect they would.

"He's my best friend on the club," said Kison, grinning at May. "We were both drafted together in 1968 and we played together in the rookie league."

They were a long way from those early professionals days when Kison marched out of the bullpen in the first inning Wednesday night. The Orioles had jumped Pirate starter Luke Walker for three quick runs and it was up to the slim youngster to see that things didn't get worse.

Only a few minutes before he went into the game, Kison was joking with May in the bullpen.

"He was trying to sing the Star Spangled Banner," smiled Kison, "and it was terrible. I sort of glared at him . . . gave him a dirty look for the way he was singing."

HITS ARE SCARCE

Kison got the Pirates out of the first inning without further damage. Then Pittsburgh bounced off the deck with a pair of runs in the bottom of the first on doubles by Willie Stargell and Al Oliver—neither of whom had produced much in the series up to that point.

Stargell's run-batted-in was his first in post-season play and Oliver was 1-for-10 until he delivered.

The two runs left the Pirates one down and Kison set about the mission of keeping it that way.

In the third, Richie Hebner singled and came along on hits by Roberto Clemente and Oliver. That tied it at 3-3 but the Bucs thought they should have had more.

On the pitch before his single, Clemente had cracked a line drive over the yellow home run line that circles the outfield fence. But Clemente's shot was waved foul by right field umpire John Rice, setting off a long protest.

But the single stood and so did the 3-3 tie despite Pirate threats that left the bases loaded in both the fifth and sixth innings.

"I knew," said Pirate manager Danny Murtaugh, "that sooner or later, we'd push one of those runs across."

With one out in the seventh, Bob Robertson singled and moved up on Manny Sanguillen's hit. Here Murtaugh went to his bench with Vic Davillo swinging for Jackie Hernandez and lofting a fly ball to left centre.

Paul Blair reached the ball salvaged an out anyway when Sanguillen got trapped between bases.

That left runners at first and third with two out and now Murtaugh went to May to swing for Kison.

May got a base hit to right that delivered the deciding run.

Armed with the lead, Murtaugh turned the wrapup job over to Dave Giusti, whom he calls "The best reliever in baseball." Giusti who had 30 saves during the regular season and three more in the National League Playoffs, mowed the last six Orioles down in order to preserve the victory.

Calgary Manages Overtime Escape

By ERNIE FEDORUK

You had to figure the Western Canada Hockey League bubble was going to break. It did, but Calgary Centennials' 5-4 overtime victory Wednesday over Victoria didn't pain the Cougars quite as much as the manner in which they allowed it to happen.

The surprising Cougars had a third straight victory virtually in the bag at Memorial Arena.

They led 4-2 with less than six minutes to play, then 4-3 with 2½ minutes remaining.

It popped, for sure, at 4:37 of sudden-death overtime when winger Russ Weichnick scored a power-play goal to provide Calgary with its third straight victory and undisputed possession of first place in the Western Division.

It was the first loss for Cougars, who now take to the road for introductions to other league centres. Cougars play in Edmonton on Friday, move to Medicine Hat on Saturday and wrap up the three-game hop Sunday in Swift Current.

Wednesday's rude awakening might indicate to the Cougars that there still is work to be done. Their mistakes against Calgary were more obvious than in either of Cougars' first two successes.

It is to their credit that they tried as hard as ever, and perhaps deserved a draw with Centennials. Playing before 1,789 customers, the Cats out-shot Centennials 35-26.

But the mistakes, particularly two late in the third period that allowed Calgary to fashion its comeback, were costly.

TWO FOR STRUCH

Centre Tim Struch's second goal of the night earlier in the session staked Cougars to their 4-2 lead. Mike Rogers got that one back at 14:05 with a quick, screened slapshot that was allowed when Cougar's Dave Okrainec miscued on a clearing attempt.

The crusher was Calgary's tying goal at 17:35, coming seconds after the Centennials were forced to kill off a minor penalty. Murray Kennett, a standout on Victoria's defence for most of the night, allowed the puck to spring loose from his control.

It darted towards a pileup of players in front of Victoria goalie Dave Maynard, then rookie Derek Black took a quick slap. It went in, and the teams forced the league's fifth sudden-death overtime session in 15 games.

A dubious hooking call against Victoria's Gary Donaldson opened the door for Calgary's winning goal.

DISASTROUS SLIP

Kennett, most unfortunately for Cougars, stumbled on some debris on the ice at the Victoria blueline. That allowed Calgary to roll into the Victoria zone on a three-on-one break, and Weichnick made no mistake with a blazing shot.

Rookie Danny Gare and starry Brian Walker counted Calgary's first two goals while Ervie Miller and Greg Robinson backed up Struch's two-goal performance. Struch now has counted five goals in three games for Cougars.

Victoria, as in each of the first two games, again drew the lion's share in penalties, but it was a relatively-tame affair. Referee Bunker Hill tagged Cougars with six minors, Calgary with five.

Walker counted his goal on a perfectly set-up power play while Miller and Robinson both connected for Victoria's first two goals while enjoying a man advantage.

The Cougars didn't skate with the authority they showed in the first two games, but exhibited some strong forechecking that caused the Centennials plenty of problems.

That included the high-scoring Calgary line of Walker, Doug Horbul and Ron Homeniuke.

Slow-Starting Bruins Begin to Make Noises

By The Canadian Press

If coach Punch Imlach is wise, he'll have his Buffalo Sabres honed to a keen edge for tonight's National Hockey League game in Boston.

The Bruins have begun to growl after a distressing start in the 1970-71 season. They turned vicious Wednesday and clawed New York Rangers 6-1 right on the Blueshirts' home ice.

Boston's star centre Phil Esposito got the opener, scoring on a power play in the early minutes of the game.

The Rangers, who tied an NHL record last year by losing only twice at home, tried to beat back the Bruins, but scored only once, late in the second period.

Rod Gilbert was the marksman, collecting his 500th career point, but Boston goalie Ed Johnston stopped 34 other shots.

GIACOMIN STOPS 35

Ed Giacomin also handled 35 shots in the New York net, but missed those fired by Ed Westfall, Mike Walton, Fred Stanfield and Derek Sanderson. Westfall accounted for two of the Boston goals.

In other games Wednesday, Chicago Black Hawks blanked St. Louis Blues 1-0, Pittsburgh Penguins defeated Los Angeles Kings 4-1 and Philadelphia Flyers edged California Golden Seals 5-4.

Cliff Koroll's goal at 18:43 of the second period was the only one the Hawks were able to register against the Blues, but it was good for two points for the team.

His goal took a little of the gloss off a brilliant performance by rookie goalie Peter McDuffe, who made 34 saves in his NHL debut.

Chicago's Keith Magnuson and St. Louis' George Morrison hooked up in a fight that enlivened the game in the second period, but both escaped with five minute penalties. Tony Esposito kicked out 18 shots gaining the shutout.

In Oakland, Gary Dornhoefer scooped Jean-Guy Gendron's rebound over goalie Gary Kurt to give the Flyers their victory.

Norm Ferguson scored three goals in a losing cause for the downtrodden Seals. Bobby Sheehan got the other one. It was the second time in his NHL career that Ferguson netted three goals in a game.

Serge Bernier, Bobby Clarke, Jimmy Johnson and Simon Nolet were Flyers' other marksmen.

Veteran Ken Schinkel's goal 56 seconds after the game opened put the Penguins into orbit. Rene Robert made it 2-0 before Billy Flett connected for the Kings. Jean Pronovost and Greg Polis scored insurance goals for Pittsburgh.

Hornets Share Lead After Tripping Bays

Saanich Hornets pulled off an upset victory at Royal Athletic Park Wednesday night, defeating Oak Bay Invaders 23-12 to grab a share of first place in the Vancouver Island Bantam Football League.

Hornets headed into Wednesday's game in third place, two points behind the previously-unbeaten Invaders.

Gord Mitchell, Chris Grew and Jamie Attenborough scored a touchdown each and Dave Sarsiat kicked three converts and one single for the Hornets. John Smith and Iain Benson replied with majors for Oak Bay.

Knights of Columbus got two touchdowns from Denny St. Pierre en route to their first win of the season — an 18-6 decision over Juan de Fuca Tigers. The loss dropped Tigers into a tie with Knights in the league basement.

Andy McKuck scored the other Knights' touchdown, while Del Liddicoat chalked up the Tigers' only major.

Minsky Accepts Race Invitation

LAUREL, Md. (CP) — Windfields Farm's Minsky, a full brother to the mighty Nijinsky, accepted an invitation Wednesday to represent Canada in the $150,000 Washington International at Laurel Race Course Oct. 25.

The three-year-old son of Northern Dancer was the top two-year-old in Ireland in 1970 and has won three stakes this year — two in England and one in Canada. He is trained by Sydney Watters and will be ridden by the leading North American rider of 1970, Sandy Hawley of Oshawa, Ont.

Lions Sign Replacement For Evenson

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League today announced the signing of Dick Lyons, a 195-pound fullback cut this year by New Orleans Saints of the National Football League.

He was signed as a temporary replacement for regular B.C. fullback Jim Evenson, who suffered stretched knee ligaments in a game Monday in Hamilton. Evenson's leg will be in a cast for 10 days and he isn't expected back in the lineup until B.C.'s final league game, Oct. 30 against Calgary.

The Lions have also lost tight end Dave Denny for the rest of the season. He suffered an ankle injury which will require surgery.

Canadian Paul Hendershot, a 175-pound defensive halfback, has been brought in for a five-day trial.

The Lions, tied with Winnipeg for third place in the Western Conference, meet Edmonton Eskimos Saturday night and then go against Saskatchewan the following weekend.

Canucks Assign Boddy to AHL

VANCOUVER (CP) — General manager Bud Poile of Vancouver Canucks announced Wednesday that defenceman Gregg Boddy has cleared National Hockey League waivers and has been assigned to Rochester of the American Hockey League.

The Canucks own the Rochester club.

Boddy is to report to Rochester in time for the club's home opener Friday night.

Ex-Cat Helps Flin Flon Snap Losing Streak

MEDICINE HAT — Ron Andruff isn't wasting any time in earning his spurs with Flin Flon Bombers of the Western Canada Hockey League.

Traded to the Bombers by Victoria Cougars, the rugged winger got the call for regular action after the defending Eastern Division champions lost their first three games of the season.

Andruff scored his second and third goals in two games Wednesday as the Bombers tripped Medicine Hat Tigers 7-5 to snap a four-game losing streak.

Veteran Blaine Stoughton also scored twice while Norm Michell, Al Hillier and Rod Loynachan counted singles. Veteran Jeff Ablett, with two, Tom Lysiak, Bill Christie and Stan Weir scored for Jack Shupe's Tigers, who trailed 6-2 midway through the third period then came to life and scored three goals in a span of 2½ minutes.

Referee Joe Cassidy assessed 17 penalties, 10 to the Bombers. Wade Anderson of Medicine Hat and Doug Hicks of Flin Flon each received a major for a third-period fight.

Bulldog Brown Defends Title

"Bulldog" Brown will defend his Pacific Coast wrestling title tonight in one of four scheduled bouts at Memorial Arena.

Brown meets Steven Little Bear, a former Pacific Coast champion. Mark Lewin struggles with Mark Webster; Pat O'Brien clashes with Wolfman Gorky and Great Ota joins forces with Gorgeous George to test Dean Higuchi and Freddy Barton in a four-man, tag-team bout.

Action gets under way at 8 p.m.

'Open' Soccer Final Arranged

TORONTO (CP) — Vancouver Eintracht will meet Toronto Croatia here Sunday afternoon to decide the first Canadian open soccer champion.

The Vancouver team won the Canadian amateur title when it beat Windsor Maple Leafs.

Croatia won the championship of the National Soccer League which embraces 14 Ontario teams.

HENNING, LUKOWICH TOPS . . . BRUINS HIGHLY RATED

New Westminster Presented Ready-Made Club

(Sixth of a Series)
By ERNIE FEDORUK

It's no longer a secret. Ernie (Punch) McLean, they say, has more good hockey players hiding behind Prairie granaries and grain elevators than anyone else in Western Canada.

Some will remain hidden because this year he needed only to fill in "a couple of spots" before introducing New Westminster Bruins as a leading contender for Western Canada Hockey League honors.

McLean transferred his Bruin franchise from Estevan to New Westminster and, along with that, a "ready-made club" that already is being touted as one to beat.

Early respect shows despite the graduation of seven 1970-71 regulars, including draft choices Ed Sidebottom, Dave Bonter, Glen Irwin and Yvon Bilodeau. Gone, too, are Bob Miller, the Bruins' No. 2 pointgetter in Estevan, and goaltender Grant Green, last year's shutout leader with five.

But Bruins still have all-star centre Lorne Henning, No. 3 in scoring last season with 64 goals and 66 assists, and all-star right winger Bernie Lukowich.

Henning is Mr. Big. He scored "only" 44 goals in his rookie campaign, blasted in 50 in his second season, and added the 64 last season. If the progression chart is right, he should reach the 70-goal level this season.

McLean figures his big line of Henning, Lukowich (a 36-goal scorer last season) and rookie left winger Emile Demoissac could produce "at least 150 goals."

The Bruins are blessed with exceptional strength at centre. In addition to Henning, Ken Ireland returns after a 17-42 season and McLean has been very impressed with rookie Vic Meredi, who finished third in the British Columbia Junior League scoring parade while toiling with Penticton Broncos last season.

B.C.'s all-star centre, Meredi missed almost a month of action because of a broken wrist.

Another notable acquisition from the BCJHL is Bob Craig of Vernon, a rugged performer who can play either defence or wing. Craig has been used on defence in pre-season play to add muscle to a rearguard lineup which includes holdovers Bob Stumpf and Barry Smith.

McLean's goaltending worries were eased considerably when he acquired ex-Edmonton Oil King Brian Newbert in a trade with Victoria Cougars.

Of course, if Punch isn't happy with what appears to be a "set" team, he can always reach in and see what comes out from behind the granary.

First in the Eastern Division last season but upset in the semi-final round by Winnipeg Jets, Bruins again are being considered a first-place club in the Western Division.

Though bracketed in a division with Edmonton and Calgary Centennials, Bruins may find a welcome advantage in playing their extra games of an unbalanced schedule against two new expansion entries — Victoria and Vancouver Nats.

Bruins haven't missed the playoffs since 1960 and it is highly unlikely the string will snap this season.

NEXT: Swift Current Broncos.
